CELEBRATION OF GLORIOUS FOURTH
An Old-Fashioned Patriotic Demonstration in This City.

THE ORGANIZATIONS IN LINE
Trade Division Was One of the Great Features of the Parade—Fireworks in the Evening Postponed on Account of the Rain—Other Features of the Day's Observance.

Fourth of July was celebrated by the citizens of Scranton with a splendid demonstration of patriotic spirit, and the city was not outdone by any municipality in the country in the loyal and unstinted manner that the day of Freedom's birth was honored.

The parade was two and one-half miles in length, and was moving from 10 o'clock until noon. The weather was oppressive, but that in no way detracted from the appearance of the marchers.

A feature of the day's celebration which had been eagerly awaited was the fireworks display on the court house square in the evening. This had to be postponed on account of rain, but it will take place this evening, and Professor Hayin Evans and his male glee club and orchestra will give a concert. The fireworks will be shot off from the ground on which the Volunteers' tent is situated.

The city was crowded with people from 9 o'clock in the morning until 3 in the afternoon, and at this time the streets were pretty well deserted, the people having gone to the various pleasure resorts in and out of the city. Just about the time the rain started, then they began returning to town, and until 3 o'clock the street cars were packed like sardines, conveying the people home.

PARADE AND TRADE DISPLAY.
The first five divisions of the parade were made up of veterans, societies, carriages containing city and county officials, and bicyclists. The sixth division represented the push and enterprise of Scranton business men.

Grand Marshal H. N. Dummell gave the word of command and the long line assumed motion. George B. Rice was chief of staff; W. F. Albro was color-bearer; and Edward Richards was bugler. The staff was made up of Major James W. Oakford, James H. Hopkins, W. E. Davis, A. R. Whitmore, E. C. Young, J. W. Phillips, Emil Schimpff, C. W. DeWight, Joseph Oliver, John H. Fellows, James O'Hara, H. H. Syron, Isaac Brown and George D. Brown. All were mounted and they wore patriotic colors. Their steeds were caparisoned liberally with the red, white and blue.

THE CIVIC SOCIETIES.
John M. Hornbaker was marshal of the second division, which with the third consisted of the civic societies. The aids were Morton L. Wage, A. E. Vorhis, D. A. Beemer, G. W. Powell, H. F. Bradshaw, A. S. Pursel, M. D. Hockenbury, J. W. Benjamin and J. J. Green. Scranton Council, No. 229, Grand Council of Yorks, No. 229, Grand Council, No. 1022, and Moses Taylor Council, No. 151, of the Order of United American Mechanics, were first in line. They were captained respectively by M. D. Hockenbury, Henry Swinkle and Charles Sherratt. Guth's band furnished the music. Of these organizations the membership in line was about 400.

THE UNIFORMED SOCIETIES.
The third division was made up of three uniformed societies, Canton Scranton No. 4, Patriarchs' Militant, Seranton Division No. 69 uniformed rank, Knights of Pythias, and St. Aloysius Young Men's Total Abstinence and Benevolent Society of St. John's parish, South Side. W. C. Coules was commander of the first organization, Captain David Brown of the second, and P. F. Walsh of the third. The St. Aloysius members were led by Forest band in handsome new uniforms.

E. C. Deane was marshal of the division, and his aids were Sig. Brandt, Dr. G. E. Hill and George W. Skillhorn, and G. W. Houpt.

Deputy Register of Wills, James H. Hopkins, was marshal of the fourth division and it consisted of carriages containing the fire company and county officials: C. G. Boland, Jos. P. Phillips, S. W. Roberts, Giles Roberts, John DeMuth, C. E. Pryor, ex-Sheriff John J. Farey. A carriage decorated for the Seranton Truth contained the following persons connected with the paper: R. W. Jordan, James J. Cummings, Thomas F. Barrett, Martin O'Malley and Jerome Barrett.

The fifth division commanded by Alex. Dunn, Jr., was made up of the Caledonians, the Knights of Malta, Knights of the Mystic Chain, the Red Men and the Hay Makers. A band of Highland pipers furnished music for the Scots and Lawrence band played for the Knights of Malta.

ber again became obstreperous and only subsided when he was fined $2 for contempt of court. Sherwood was fined $25 and directed to reimburse Mr. Mac for his sign. The gun was confiscated.

Lyman Melvin, a watchman at Gould's carriage works, was arrested for firing a large cannon on Lackawanna avenue at noon when the street was literally jammed with people. His offense cost him $4.

William Lauson was arrested for being drunk and discharging blank cartridges at people he encountered on the street. He paid $2.

Michael Ruddy, of Pine Brook, was one of a gang that assaulted John Lytle and his nephew, Thomas Frehl, and was held in $200 bail for his appearance at court. The assault grew out of a general fight which took place on Capouse avenue, near the corner of Phelps street early in the evening.

Ruddy and his friends got the worst of it and after securing reinforcements started out to revenge themselves on Lyons and Frehl. The latter were drinking in a saloon when they heard that a gang was outside waiting for them. They discreetly went out the back way and headed for home.

Their departure was discovered before they had gone far and chase was given. At Wyoming avenue they overtook Lyons and gave him a brutal beating. He might have been killed had not L. Schopen, with the aid of a stout club, caused them to desist. Ruddy and his crowd then set out to find Frehl, but encountered the police and dispersed. Ruddy was the only one captured. Warrants are out for some of the others.

CALEDONIAN GAMES.
Those Who Won Prizes in Laurel Hill Park.

The annual games of the Scranton Caledonian club attracted a large crowd to Laurel Hill park Saturday afternoon. The rain interfered with the attendance at night. At 9:30 p. m. Professor L. N. SANG PLANTATION MELODIES.
Stowers' Packing Co. had a unique display. In the first wagon a group of colored employes singing plantation melodies sat around a large ham. A wagon loaded with hams, one containing a whole pig and another one loaded with hot frankfurters came next. The Scranton Sausage and Machinery Co. had a wagon in line loaded with machinery and drawn by four horses.

An arch represented the display of the Keystone Laundry. Under the Keystone a space opened revealing a locomotive bell which kept ringing continually.

Scheuer Bros.' Keystone Bakery, of Brook street, South Side, had its bread, cake and biscuit wagons in line. In succession came furniture dealer Mr. Hennigan's wagon, the Blue Label Cigar wagon, M. T. Keller's bicycle and carriage display, Lehr Organ Co.'s wagon, and a house built of bags of the Paragon Plaster Co.

Edward Siebecker's grocery wagon, loaded with goods, was the next, and following it came Megargel & Connell's display. Six of their colored employes were dressed in coats made from bags used in packing the plaster, and after them came a wagon advertising Gold Medal flour, another brand sold by the same firm. They had another wagon for general groceries.

The three wagons of Nolan, Gallagher & Manly's seven employes made a handsome showing and were admired for their neatness. Next in succession were wagons advertising the business of Carlucci Bros., contractors, Goldsmith's shoe store, Lewis, Reilly & Davis, and Clemons, Ferber and O'Malley.

CLARKE BROS' DISPLAY.
Clarke Bros., the enterprising West Side firm, is entitled to special mention for the elaborate display made. First came a cavalcade of twenty-eight of their employes in uniform, and after them the delivery wagons. Each of the various departments represented by a wagon was represented separately by a wagon.

Williams & McAnulty's display consisted of an attractive float in the center of which was a lady dressed in red, white and blue on a bicycle. The Lackawanna Wheel company had a float on which seven employes were at work making bicycles. Jernyn & Duff's delivery wagons were next in line. Protheroe's furniture store had three wagons in line with parlor, dining room and bedroom suits.

S. G. Kerr & Son's carpet and decorating business was represented by a float showing a room furnished in luxurious style. Their delivery wagons followed. Next came the wagons of Reese & Long, bill posters. Making up the rear of the parade's display were the wagons and carriages of H. N. Patrick's real estate business, Brown's Bee Hive, Jones & Hall, sewing machine agents, and a transparency announcing the annual excursion of St. Brenden council, Young Men's institute to Lake Ariel on July 14.

Following the wagons came a company of bicyclists under command of Captain D. B. Atherton. The Scranton Athletic club of the South Side, led by Germania band, was the last organization in line, but they made a most creditable showing with their linen dusters, canes and white stovepipe hats.

The parade moved along Jefferson avenue to Spruce street, to Franklin avenue, to Lackawanna avenue, to Jefferson avenue, to Pine street, to Adams avenue, to Spruce street, to Washington avenue, to Gilson street, counter-marching to Wyoming street, to Wyoming avenue, to Mulberry street, to Penn avenue, to Spruce street, to Wyoming, to Lackawanna, where ranks were broken. The reviewing stand was on Wyoming avenue, opposite the Wyoming house.

A new trade display was that of "Black the Tinker." C. P. Slack, 615 Green Ridge street. It included a cart and hot air furnace, and was the only display of its kind in the parade, and well illustrated the enterprise of Mr. Slack, its promoter.

SOME OTHER CELEBRATIONS.
In which the Police Cut Quite a Prominent Figure.

Twenty-four is the sum total of police arrests on the Fourth of July in all the precincts. Few, however, were for charges more serious than drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

The worst offender was Frank Sherwood, a hostler from the central city, who started out to have a regular old Arizona sort of a time. He borrowed a shotgun from Dan Webber, the Penn avenue butcher and set off down the street with the avowed intention of terrorizing the alley district. Before getting that far, however, his exuberance got the best of him.

In front of Gallen's store he leveled his gun at Druggist J. E. Harris, who was standing in his doorway and caused him to beat a hasty retreat into the store. Then raising the gun, he fired its contents into the sign over Some of the backshot, with which the gun was loaded, lodged in Arrigoni Ferdinando's porch, where his two daughters were sitting. He was looking around for another target for the remaining charge in the gun when Patrolmen May and Bloch pounced on him and took possession of him and the gun.

At the station house he was allowed to depart on depositing $25 for his appearance at police court in the morning. Sherwood, as a friend Webber came around in the evening to argue the matter with Desk Sergeant Deiter, and becoming somewhat boisterous, were thrown out, with the injunction not to return under penalty of arrest. At the hearing before Alderman Millar, Web-

DAY AT LAKE ARIEL.
Over Five Thousand Persons Spent the Day There.

St. Mary's congregation of Dunmore conducted an excursion to Lake Ariel Saturday which attracted upwards of five thousand persons. The day was very enjoyable to the excursionists and passed without accident.

The Eureka, of Providence, and the Morning Glories, of Dunmore, played a game of ball which was won by the latter by a score of 6-1.

Fourth at the Hillside Home.

There was a patriotic celebration at the Hillside Home Saturday, which was greatly enjoyed by the inmates. On Friday a flag pole ninety-five feet in height was erected, and Saturday a large American flag was unfurled from it and a patriotic oration delivered by Chaplain Smith, Superintendent Beemer, was in general charge of the exercises.
