WEST SIDE EVENTS.

Way the Fourth Was Observed in This Part of the City.

Several Fires.

The Fourth was quietly spent by West Siders. There was one fire of the regular Fourth-of-July order. The fireworks on the stand in front of J. D. Williams' South Main avenue store became ignited at 9:30 o'clock by a young man who held a pack of lighted crackers in his hand near the stand. There was a grand display for a few minutes. Skyrockets shot across the street and bombarded Mear's hall, and the pin-wheels sputtered in an attempt to go around on a nailless pivot. Then there were crackers and general what-not. Even the money on the stand went off and the small boy was the richer after a scrape in the debris.

The fire-works stand of B. I. Evans across the way was endeavored many times by the excitable salesman and a great tangle resulted when the stand went off and the small boy was the richer after a scrape in the debris.

The scene in the ice cream parlor at the rear of the store was pandemonium at its greatest. Everybody in the room sought the rear exit at once and a great tangle resulted when they found the door locked. Then they went out through windows. An alarm for fire was sent in from box 35 but the hose companies were not needed and "out" was sounded ten minutes after the start. The only other excitement was of the usual order with the customary annual reports.

The West Side wheelmen to the number of about twenty-five went to Pittston in the afternoon, and at the races there did well. Coleman, one of the club's racers, won four prizes of the six races run. Robert White, of Scranton, captured the remaining two with Dunne, of the West Side, the likely victor if an accident had not happened to the handle bar of his wheel. Dunne and Coleman were the heroes with the West Side contingent. A gold watch, two smoking sets, and a tin pin were the booty brought back by Coleman.

Two arrests were made, and both were for drunkenness, one of the prisoners being a woman.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

A most pleasant event occurred on Saturday evening, July 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edwards, of Broome avenue, it being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. The home was prettily decorated with ferns, flowers, etc., presenting a particularly charming appearance. The original programme was somewhat interfered with by the inclement weather, it being their intention to have entertained their friends in their garden, which had been especially decorated for the occasion, but, notwithstanding this slight disarrangement, a most enjoyable time was spent, diversified with music and speeches and other forms of entertainment. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards were the recipients of many costly presents, evidencing the high esteem in which they are held by their many friends. Among the large number present were the following: From Scranton, Mr. and Mrs. J. James, Mr. and Mrs. Walters, Mr. and Mrs. David Weed, Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schmalz, Mr. Mary Stanton, Mrs. George Boninger, Mrs. Edith Carter, Miss Lizzie Connors, Mr. and Mrs. Pike, Miss Rose, Mr. and Mrs. David Perry, Miss Lela Stanton, Miss Mary James, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Layshon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Soper, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Marks, Mr. and Mrs. Churchill, Mr. Rosa, Miss Cora Osbauer, Mr. Charles B. Edwards; from Moscow, Mr. and Mrs. William Decker and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards and son, Archie, and daughter, Margaret; from Tobyhanna, Mrs. C. W. Tranter, Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Cramer.

CATHARINE DAVIS' DEATH.

Catharine Davis, wife of D. M. Davis, formerly proprietor of the Eagle hotel, died Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the family home, 142 South Hyde Park avenue. She had suffered for over six months and has borne the strain with great resignation and christian fortitude. The friends she leaves are many and the neighborhood is the poorer by her demise. She was born in Dolans, Wales, on March 17, 1844. After coming to this country in 1866, she, with her husband, band, located in Pittston, where they lived for five years. They moved to Taylor and afterwards to Scranton, where they have lived since 1882. She was a member of the Calvary Baptist church at Taylor. Her husband and one daughter, Miss Louisa Davis, survive. The funeral will be held to-morrow from the late residence at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in Washburn Street cemetery.

OTHER DEATHS.

John E. O'Malley, the well-known contractor and builder, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his home, 1803 Jackson street. Deceased is survived by his wife and the following children: Barbara, Edward, John, Malachi, Walter Charles, Joseph and Arthur.

David Schenck of 214 Chestnut street died Friday afternoon and will be buried at two o'clock this afternoon from his late home. Deceased had suffered with an illness of a half-year's duration. He was 58 years of age. The funeral service will be conducted at the late home and at the German Methodist church on Adams Avenue. The Bazaar society will have charge of the services. Interment will be made in Forest Hill cemetery.

William Dapper died yesterday at his home, 222 West Lakawanna Avenue. Deceased was thirty years old. The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Washburn Street cemetery.

SOUTH SIDE NEWS.

Fight in the Rear of Pittston Avenue Resulted in John Boland Being Seriously Injured.

Rumors were current yesterday that John Boland, of Pittston avenue, was dead as the result of a blow on the forehead with a stone thrown by a young man named Kellerman. The two families live on an alley in the rear of Pittston avenue, near the corner of Willow street, and they were indulging during the afternoon and evening of Fourth of July to the extent that all hands got drunk and a fight started.

Stones flung as the most conspicuous weapons of warfare, and Boland, less fortunate than the others, got in front of one which was propelled with considerable force. It sent him to the ground and a doctor was sent for. An examination of the wound showed that it was not dangerous, though it required a few stitches and a half yard of plaster. Kellerman was not arrested.

LOOKING FOR A SITE.

The school board of Lackawanna township are looking up an available site for a new school for Minooka. The building now in use is inadequate to meet the demands of the place, and it is an old-style structure. The directors are not in favor of erecting the new school on the present site, and they are casting about for a desirable location. The corner of the main street and the street which runs down to the school is regarded as having the best advantages, and a school built on three lots in that locality would suit the people better than any other obtainable without paying a high price.

SHORTER PARAGRAPHS OF NEWS.

Barney Maclos, of Breck street, who was injured in Connel's mines last week and was brought to the Lackawanna hospital, is improving nicely. His injuries were such that it was doubtful whether or not he would recover.

Contractor P. J. May, of Bellevue, is erecting a residence for P. J. Neills, of Hickory street.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was imparted at St. John's church last evening by Rev. J. A. Moffat, at the Sacred Heart church, at 8 o'clock.

Rev. J. L. Pace, of Cedar avenue Methodist Episcopal church, preached a sermon last evening appropriate to the Fourth of July.

PROVIDENCE.

John Schultz, Joe Bostes, George Schler and Thomas Kupis were arrested Saturday evening for being drunk and disorderly. About 9 o'clock word was sent to the officers that a big fight was taking place in a house on Market street, occupied by John Schultz. The officers, accompanied by Special Officer Smith, were sent to the scene. When they arrived at the place John Schultz was beating his wife. They went into the house and learned that a free fight had taken place which was verified by the wrecked condition of the room. Pieces of glass were strewn about and pools of blood were found on the floor. John Schultz, Schler and Thomas Kupis were found in another room covered with blood. They were arrested.

Word was sent to the station house Saturday evening that four men were engaged in fighting in a house on Parker street. A squad of police were sent to the scene, but found everything quiet, with the exception of a party of men, who were rather boisterous. They were arrested.

The G. W. Social club held a banquet at their rooms, on North Main avenue, last Friday evening. A large number of invited guests were present. Speeches were made by the members. Music and games were indulged in throughout the evening. At a late hour the guests departed voting the club most excellent entertainment.

Harry Miller, of Church avenue, is convalescing.

Benjamin O. Williams, of Spring street, is slowly recovering.

Henry V. Davis, who boards on West Market street, and who was injured a few days ago in the Vop Storech street, died Saturday afternoon. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Saturday afternoon the house on Cayuga street owned by James McCarthy and occupied by John Mulharn was damaged by fire. The cause is thought to be a defective flue.

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Collins, of Elmira, is visiting their son, Edward, at the home of Major J. B. Fish and family are residing at Preston Park.

The Band of Hope of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist church of Wayne avenue, on Friday evening conducted an entertainment under the leadership of John Morgan. Thomas J. Morgan presided. After the entertainment a see-see cream treat was given to the Sunday school.

SECOND DAY ADVENTISTS.

Doing Missionary Work in a Tent on South Main Avenue.

In a tent on South Main avenue, West Side, about 150 people, most of whom were children, gathered last evening and listened to a discourse by K. C. Russell, an evangelist sent out by the Seventh Day Adventists of Pennsylvania. With Mr. Russell are W. H. Smith, of Wellsboro, and J. H. Schilling, of Allentown. They come here for several weeks' missionary work upon invitation of local Adventists.

Last evening Mr. Russell gave a very interesting "lecture," as he calls it, and, by an older audience, his remarks might have been better appreciated. He started out to tell what and who the Adventists are and the audience was correspondingly absorbed as he began to define the denominational doctrine. But Mr. Russell last evening did not furnish a complete explanation. During the early part of his discourse he expatiated on one claim and told what Christ is, by what names He is mentioned in the bible, that He is the true foundation for Christian belief and that the apostles are built upon Him, contrary to any adverse interpretation based on the scripture text: "and are built upon the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the corner stone." Ephesians, 11:19-20.

Mr. Russell wished to impress his hearers with the idea that the apostles should not be considered as being part of the divine foundation. Jesus Christ is the foundation—and the only One—and on Him the faith of the apostles rest. To enforce his statement Mr. Russell quoted from Peter, 1:10-11 and Corinthians, 3:11. The speaker used the bible readily. "It is the old family bible," he said; "if of you can follow me when you get home." He said that his church recognizes and loves all other denominations. The Adventists believe in a Christ; they believe that there was a Christ not only in the new dispensation but also in the old; that Christ is mentioned all through the old testament, that He is not the "Jesus Christ" but that He is given, in the Scripture, many other names, all of which are synonyms for goodness and moral perfection. The idea about divine virtue was one of Mr. Russell's strong arguments. He attempted to convert his hearers to the belief that wherever a certain Godly grace and goodness is mentioned in either the old or new testament, that bears a direct reference to the Christ in an existing form. Then Mr. Russell pointed out passages from Exodus to prove his point.

In conversation with Mr. Schilling after the sermon the gentleman, who is a young student of the denominational school at Shenandoah, Virginia, mentioned as a further belief of the Adventists that Christ is yet to come; that He is all existent, and that He will again visit the earth in a corporal form. Mr. Schilling said that he never believed in immersion. In talking of the pool made by Mr. Russell that Christ existed in the old dispensation the question was asked: "If the ancient Jews of Abraham's time worshiped Jesus Christ, why was there a form of birth and an after crucifixion?" Mr. Schilling's explanation was that the birth and death ended all ceremonial worship, such as sacrifice. The Adventists believe in keeping the Seventh day, not the first, holy.

Lectures will be given every evening. Lectures of this week and perhaps, for several weeks. The tent is a large one, and can seat about 400 persons.

KILLED A RATTLER.

Two Tribune Employees Have a Fourth of July Experience.

A huge rattlesnake with twelve rattles and measuring 5 feet and 1 inch in length was killed Saturday afternoon by two Tribune employees, Eli Davis, machinist, and Louis Conner, advertisement compositor, in the roadway four miles north of Beaumont, on Bowman's creek, Wyoming county.

The men were riding their bicycles and were within about a mile of Ellisworth Smith's house, where they proposed stopping for the night. Davis was riding on the left and Conner on the right, and did not notice the big reptile until he heard its warning rattle. The snake lay coiled in the middle of the road and was within two feet of Davis' wheel. Davis turned sharply to the left but the snake wriggled off in the same direction. It gave vent to a loud hiss which ceased only when the bicycle passed over his body.

Conner, who was peddling along in the rear saw the occurrence and dismounted. Davis put on steam and didn't slow up until he was several rods away from the spot. Meanwhile the big rattler had gained the upper side of the road and lay coiled near the bank. It was making a great ado, hissing and rattling, but showed no desire to escape. Apparently it was challenging a fight, as its head was reared and neck arched and it looked first toward one of the disturbers and then toward the other, meantime keeping up an incessant hissing and rattling.

The two wheelmen decided on a duel with the big fellow and after securing a supply of large stones for ammunition approached from opposite directions. Either their aim was bad or the rattler was tough for the fusillade of rocks failed to drive him from his position, which he seemed to occupy as a kind of right and continued his hissing and rattle. Conner finally secured a large jagged rock weighing possibly twenty pounds and, approaching as close as he dared, he hit the snake's head. The aim was true and the missile ended the snake's life.

The body of the reptile was tied by its head to Davis' saddle and dragged to Mr. Smith's house where it was skinned. Last night Davis and Conner returned to Scranton with the skin of their prey and it is now a gruesome ornament of The Tribune's composing room.

HAS GONE TO GERMANY.

Professor Carl Stahler Given a Reception by His Friends.

The young ladies' class and the active members of the Scranton Turn Verein gave Professor Carl Stahler, their physical teacher and instructor, a reception and dance at their hall Friday evening in honor of Professor Stahler going to his home in Germany for a vacation for the next two months. Professor Stahler left New York city for Germany at 11:35 Saturday morning.

Among those who attended Friday night's event were: Misses Mary Poarch, Emma Miner, Annie Gravin, Schnell, McArcher, Mary Miner, Emma Miner, Rosa, Hoffmiller, Hough, Walker, Jennie Nott, Weiss, Messrs. Henry and William Vockroth, Theodore Huber, Will Hemmer, George Koch, Nelson G. Teete, Timothy and James Quinnan, George Gravin, Edward Vall, Charles F. House, Joseph Doster, Edward Bart, Professor. Satt furnished the music for dancing, and a very enjoyable time was had by all who attended.

George Koch, Nelson G. Teete, Edward Vall, Theodore Huber, Joseph McDoster and William Hart, of Vockroth and Charles House were the party who escorted the professor to the train. On his return home the professor will start to train his class for the grand Turn Fest in St. Louis, and expects to have a class with twenty or twenty-five members.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

If the heater fire is out at this season, and the morning happens to be chilly, don't send your child into the room, but wrap up in a warm blanket. Many a serious cold has been contracted in this way. A wrap thrown over the shoulders will be very little protection. Let the room be well aired and warmed. If it is impossible to allow the child, on account of school duties, to wait until the warmth of the sunlight takes away the morning dampness and chilliness, keep the fire in the heater for some time to come. Better economize on doctor's bills, rather than coal, at this season.

A CONVENIENT MULLIGEE.

A mother of several little tots who find scrap book making one of their most fascinating of pastimes, has accidentally discovered a convenient mulligee. At this season quantities of gummy sap oozes from cherry trees, and the child, bringing some of it into the house one day with no special object in view, left it soaking in a glass of water, where it soon formed a strong, good mulligee. It is needless to state that the mother took advantage of the fact, for reducing mulligee bills on future scrap books.

VARIOUS BOILED GREENS.

The "new cook" has displayed some excellent methods of treating the various sprouts and greens of springtime, and she manages to cook them without having that objectionable, dark, almost black color. They are 198 over the fire in plenty of salted boiling water, boiled until tender, then quickly drained and rinsed with cold water, allowing the cold water to run through them in the colander. This method of cooking greens will preserve both color and flavor. They should be drained immediately from the cold water, and quickly heated with any good sauce, or with salt, pepper and butter, and served as soon as they are hot. They will not lose color unless by continued exposure to the heat. Brussels sprouts, spinach, dandelions, chickery, and all of the field and garden greens may be treated in the same way with good results.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE.

It is difficult to improve on the old-fashioned strawberry shortcake of our grandmothers. None of the newer recipes seem to be so good. Plenty of good cream is absolutely necessary for it. Make a good soda-biscuit dough with buttermilk, sour milk and cream, or sour milk alone; using soda and cream or baking powder, or soda and cream of tartar, if sweet milk is used. Roll about one inch thick and bake in a quick oven. When nicely browned slip in on a large platter, and with a very slim, sharp knife divide the cake horizontally into three layers; butter the bottom piece liberally and put on a thick layer of berries, sprinkle on plenty of sugar and moisten well with sweet cream; then butter the middle layer of the under side and place over the berries, butter the top of this cover with berries, sugar and whipped cream, and put on the buttered top crust. Unless this is very tender, moisten the top with cream, or cover it with sweetened whipped cream.

A RICH SHORT CAKE.

Another good old-fashioned method of making berry shortcake is formed with a foundation of sweet layer cake. Use a plain cake recipe made up with one cup of sugar, one cup of milk, one-quarter cup of shortening, two eggs, and two and a half cups of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder thoroughly sifted through. Bake in two or three layers as desired, and when cold place plenty of berries, sugar and whipped cream between each layer and on top.
