TWO-THIRDS RULE SUSTAINED. Immediately following the final annoucement of the result of the fourth ballot, the chairman, Senator White, of California; said that the proceedings had reached the stage where it was necessary for the chair to state his construction of the two-thirds rule. A careful examination of the records of the Democratic conventions left but one decision open to the chair. The noise and confusion in the hall made the chairman nervous,

"Oh, gentlemen," he remonstrated,
"do keep quiet." Cries of "sit down,"

The chairman resumed his statement and said that the two-thirds rule had was cheered again and again. At 3:45 been acted upon without objection ever since its adoption in the Ohio convention of 1875. The rule that two-thirds of the whole number of votes given shall be necessary to a nomination for president and vice-president. Therefore, in the opinion of the chair, twothirds of the vote given would nominate the candidates for president and vicepresident. (Cheers.

"Call the roll," he ordered and the fifth ballot was begun.

At 245 the fifth roll call was begun and it soon became evident that Bryan would secure votes sufficient on this ballot to nominate him by the necessary majority. When Kentucky, which was one of the states which did not join in the procession, was reached, Mr. Ryan, who had put Senator Blackburn in nomination, rose and said: "While Kentucky loves her local Democrat, Joe Blackburn, and would be glad to see him elected president, yet as he served in the Confederate army, they do not seem to want him. (Faint hisses). Therefore Kentucky takes great pleasure in casting her 26 votes for the world's greatest orator-W. J. Bryan. (Cheers.)

Ohio still stood by McLean, Illinois, (which had asked to be passed, cast her 446 votes, 66 short of the necessary number. Oklahoma changed her six 454. Then Ohio withdrew the name of McLean and cast 46 votes for Bryan, making his total 500.

Before the result was announced, but received within a few votes of the necessary number, Governor Stone, of Missouri, ascended the platform and as soon as order could be obtained, he addressed the convention in these words: Gentlemen of the Convention: Two or three days since I received this note which I will now read in your hearing from Richard Parks Bland: "I wish it to be understood that I do not desire the nomination unless it is the judgment of the free silver delegates that I would be the stronger candilate. If it shall, at any time, appear that my candidacy is the least obstruction to the nomination of any candidate who is acceptable to the free coinage delegates of the convention, or one more acceptable to a majority of those delegates than myself, I wish my name ever asperity might exist between the at once, unconditionally withdrawn from further consideration. I am willing to live by the state instructions for me, if need be and let the free silver delegates need be and let the free silver delegates decide the whole matter. The cause must be put above the man." (Applause).

I came to this great city, continued Governor Stone, as one of the delegates from Missouri, volcing the sentiment of the Democracy of the state, to present for your deliberate consideration, name of the illustrious commoner for whom many of you have expressed a preference by your votes in this conven-tion. To those who have been our friends in this struggle I desire now to return my grateful thanks, but following the direction of Mr. Bland to myself that whenever a majority of the silver delegates expressed their preference for another, he desired his nam withdrawn. Now, in the name of Missouri, I lower the standard inder which we have fought throughout this convention and in its place I lift that of the gifted and glorious son of Ne braska. (Loud and long continued cheer-ing). So, now, gentlemen, I withdraw the of Richard Parks Bland and cast the 34 votes of the state of Missouri for William J. Bryan.

Governor Stone was listened to as no other orator had been, with the exception of Mr. Bryan, and at the close of his effective little speech, he was loudly cheerd.

BOIES DROPS OUT. Judge Van Wagen, of Iowa, was next recognized. He formally withdrew the tion and cast the 26 votes of Iowa for W. J. Bryan. Senator Jones stood on his chair to announce that Arkansas hanged her vote of sixteen from Bland to Bryan. Montana changed their six votes from Bland to the winner. "Senator Turple mounted the platform and said amid great noise and confusion that the delegates from Indiana had stood from first to last for the distinguished chief magistrate of Indiana; but, in view of the wave which had just swept over the convention, he was now authorized to withdraw the name of Governor Matthews, and to cast the vote of Indiana for William J. Bryan, of Nebraska. (Cheers.) In view of the unity which should prevail in the convention, I move that the nomination of W. J. Bryan be made unanimous. (Cheers.) After the vote of Texas had been shifted to Mr. Bryan the chairman put the question on Senator Turple's motion to make the nomination unanimous and leclared it carried—only a few votes in the negative coming from the Penn-sylvania delegation. When the announcement was made all order was cast to the winds. The delegates and the audience began to cheer and to wave hats and flags and banners; which while the march around the sections was again taken up all the state banners being carried in the procession. tion." (Chars.) Mr. Dockery attempted to take the stand to answer General Bragg's re-marks, and as the two Wisconsin antagonists confronted each other, General Bragg shook his finger in Mr.

Dockery's face and said: about me you will suffer for it."

The chairman remarked that whatgentlemen from Wisconsin, ought not to enter into a national convention. He was satisfied that the gentlemen in the end would be friends, supporting the ticket and he refused to recognize Mr. Dockery for the purpose of addressing the convention.

Mr. Dockery then left the stand and this terminated the incident.

Governor Stone, of Missouri, was next recognized to move an adjournment. He said the work thus far done had been, in his judgment, well done, but they had yet to name an associate for their great leader on the ticket. He believed this was an important work which should not be hastily or inconsiderately performed. It should on the contrary be performed in the most mature and deliberate manner possoble to the end that the delegates have the opportunity to confer with each other and arrive at a conclusion which in the end would strengthen the ticket in order that no mistake might be made. He moved that the convention do now adjourn until 12 o'clock tohe galleries which were densely packed and which to a greater extent before than last night and undertook to take charge of the proceedings, here interposed a loud chorus of "no." Mr Henry Mississippi, moved to make the hour ten o'clock. Governor Stone accepted the amendment.

Mr. Rhea, of Kentucky, made the point of order that the motion had not been seconded, but the chair disregarding the point, ordered the secretary to

FIRST OPEN REVOULT. The first open revolt in the convention against the nomination of Gov. Altgeld, manifested itself when the governor in his capacity as chairman of the Illinois delegation, announced the 48 jumped up to challenge the accuracy of the count. His note of deflance was received with applause from the Chicago the situation and cheers followed each negative vote. Metropolitan and country delegates who had been lukewarm in their obedience to the governor's will and restless on numerous occasions, voted against adjournment. The vote was 24 ayes. 11 nays. 13 absent.

Under the unit rule this vote made 48 aye, but Mr. Donovan and others disputed its correctness, shouting that it took 25 votes to make a majority. 'What's the matter with Illinois now?' inquired the chairman good naturedly and closed the incident by ruling in favor of the governor. The audience followed the taking of the vote with quite as much interest as it had shown on the questions of the platform and the balloting for a presidential candidate, and whenever any delegation voted "no" on the question of adjournment, the vote was greeted with loud cheers. However, when the call of the roll had proceeded far enough to show that the motion for adjournment was to prevail, the crowds without awaiting for the termination of the vote, determined to "stand not upon the order of their going, but to go at once," and so they began an informal and rather tumultuous with-was arrived at and was announced as carrie din the affirmative. The chairman then stated at 9.30 p. m. that the convention adjourned until 10 a. m. to

WANTS NO SECOND TERM.

Mr. Pryan Declares That He Will Act as President But One Term.

Chicago, July 10.-Mr. Bryan received the news of his nomination in his own room at the Clifton House. The United Press reporter found him in the barber shop with his face covered with lather and unable to speak When the barber was through with him he immediately shook hands with the reporter and stated that all he wished to say was "that in order that I may have no ambition but to discharge faithfully the duties of the office, I desire to announce that if elected I shall under no circumstances be a candidate for reelection." Mrs. Bryan, wife of the nominee, who is a small, modest-looking woman, had a seat in the gallery to the left of the speaker's stand. When it was positively known that her husband had been named for the presidency, she was sur-rounded by admiring friends and heartily congratulated. She thanked each one pleasantly and throughout maintained a quiet demeanor that impressed those about her. To a reporter of the United Press she said: "I think my husband will try to deserve the great honor these men have conferred upon him. I appreciate it, I assure you. If his wife's ald is of value fect of heightening the enthusiasm, and in the endeavor to elect him, he will have all possible assistance from me p. m. the sergeant-at-arms in behalf of the chairman succeeded in getting a Mr. Bryan said: "This is not a sudden resolution on my part. I have had it in my evr since my nomination has been considered by my friends as a possibility. I believe it is a good principle for me to follow and I shall live up to it. The presidency is the when Senator White, of California, the highest honor that can be bestowed upon any human being by this country and the power placed in the hands of and a fair proportion of the New York | the president of the United States is so great there should be nonemptation thrown in his way to cause him to use

I desire to express my deep appreciation of the kindness shown to me by other candidates. My nomination is due to the peculiar cirthe right of the chair. He then stated cumstances which surround this campaign and not to any superior merit. In fact had the convention had considered who was most deserving the lot would have fallen upon another. I so highly appreciate the responsibility imposed by this nomination that I have avoided making any promises or pledges to any person.

Mr. Bryan did not feel called upon to anything with regard to the platform. After inditing this declaration, Mr. Bryan accepted the congratulations that were tendered and in a few moments it was apparent that the room would not accommodate those who were surging to get in. In response to appeals. Mr. Eryan took a position in the lobby and for almost an hour shook hands with the crowds as they passed few words. He declared that he felt could add to the work of the convention, but asserted that no words of his could add dto the work of the convention. The convention, however, was but the beginning and whether its action was wise or not could only be determined in November next. It was not for him to say whether the convention had acted wisely, but it was his duty and all those who agreed with him to back up the convention and the plat form and make the election sure. Mr. Bryan closed his short but felicitous speech with the injunction to those present who believed in the Democratic party to make it their business to see that its success was assured this fall. Mr. Bryan has no plans for the immediate future. He will remain in Chicago until after the meeting of the new national committees, which will probably take place tomorrow. In the ously predicted that he could neve course of a few days he will return to duplicate that far-resounding perfor Lincoln, his home town. His eloquence, which did so much toward stampeding the convention to him, will be heard during the campaign, for Mr. Bryan intends to do his part in making the fight for the ticket which he will head.

SKETCH OF MR. BRYAN.

The "Boy Orator" a Life-Long Advocate of Free Silver.

William Jennings Bryan was born in Salem, Ill., March 19, 1860. He was graduated from the Illinois college at Jacksonville in 1881. To make his way through the Union College of Law he worked in Lyman Trumbull's law office. From his earliest years he had a fancy for public speaking, which developed his oratorical powers. In 1880 he won second prize as the representative of Illinois college in the state collegiate votes of the state for adjournment, oratorical contest. He was valedictor-Mr. Harry Donovan, of Chicago, who ian of his college class and came withhas been a Boles man from the start, in one vote of being elected to the same position in the law school. From 1880 he spoke in political campaigns. In 1887 he removed to Lincoln, Neb., and crowds in the gallery, who understood formed a partnership with a fellow class mate. "I don't think the fellow knows much law," said a veteran practitioner concerning Bryan soon after the latter began to practice, "but he can talk like a devil."

Bryan supported J. Sterling Morton for congress in 1888. The latter was defeated by 3,500 votes. In 1890 Bryan himself ran in the same district against the same opponent. He challenged his adversery to a series of joint debates and made such a brilliant showing that he carried the district, which had gone 3,500 Republican at the former election, by a majority of 6,700 votes.

The fame he gained in these joint debates, of which the tariff was the theme, induced Speaker Crisp to appoint Bryan on his ways and means committee, an honor which many congressmen have schemed years to secure. On March 12, 1892, he scored his first great oratorical success in a speech on free wool. The reapportionment in 1891 divided Bryan's congressional district in such a way that it made his canvas entirely new and extremely hard. The district was admittedly Republican by a majority of 3,500.

Bryan was elected, turning the Re publican majority into a Democratic many as Bryan. Mr. Bryan marired in 1884 Miss Mary refused renomination as congressman and campaigned for election to the United States senate. His platform for the 16 to 1 free coinage of silver caused Morton and other administration Democrats to fight him bitterly. He was, however, nominated by the state Demo-cratic convention. Two joint debates, at Lincoln and at Omaha respectively, with John M. Thurston, the Republican candidate for the senatorship, attracter much attention. The legislature was, however, Republican and Thurston was elected.

During the past two years, and especially since his defeat for the senate, Mr. Bryan has been lecturing on financial topics in every state in the union. Mr. Bryan married in 1894 Miss Mary E. Baird, the daughter of a merchant of Perry, Ill. She was a student in the annex of Illinois college while Bryan studied in the college. They graduated simultaneously, being valedictorians of their respective classes. She studied law and was admitted to the bar in Nebraska. She is a writer of much ability and president of the Lincoln Sorosis They have three children, Ruth, 11; William, 6; and Grace 5.

Bryan, Champ Clark, the Missouri orator and statesman, after drawing a comparison between Samuel J. Randall and Mr. Bryan, thus describes the latter: "In four years service Bryan established a far greater reputation than old Randall in the same lenth of time. Indeed, it may be said without any extravagance that when Bryan quit congress he had as widespread fame as Randall had when he died after twenty years of congress. Whether the Nebraskan ployed his ideas as deeply into the minds of men as did the Pennsylvanian is an entirely different question; for as late as 1894 the line of cleavage made in Randall in the Democratic party on the tariff was easily discernible to the naked eye, when seventeen of his disciples bolted the Wilson bill, and several others had the will to bolt, but lacked the courage.

"Bryan is a collegiate scholar, and has stowed away in his capacious cranium much of the golden grain of wisdom and little of the husks, and it is all there for use, either as argument or embellishment. Some men are so ugly and ungainly that it is a positive advantage to them as public speakers Some are so handsome and graceful that they are on good terms with the audience before they open their lips. Of the latter class Bryan is a shining example. His appearance is a pass port to the affections of his fellow men which all can read. He is the picture of health, mental, moral and physical, He stands about five feet ten, weighs about 170, is a pronounced brunette, has a massive head, a clean-shaven face, an aquiline nose, large under jaw, square chin, a broad chest, large lustrous dark eyes, a mouth extending almost from ear to ear, teeth white as pearls, and hair-what there is left of it-black as midnight. Beneath his eyes is the protuberant flesh which physiognomists tells us is indicative of fluency of language and which was one of the most striking features in the face of Jame G. Blaine.

"Bryan neglects none of the accessories of oratory. Nature richly en-dowed him with rare grace, he is happy in attitude and pose. His ges tures are on Hogarth's line of beauty. Mellifluous is the one word that most aptly describes his voice. It is strong enough to be heard by thousands. It is sweet enough to charm those the least inclined to music. It is so modulated as not to vex the ear with monotony "If you make any personal remarks in line. It was a crowding, jostling asbout me you will suffer for it."

semblage, but good-natured. There were gentle, serious or humorous, with the nee and Mr. Bryan was forced to say a youth Bryan must have had a skillful teacher in elecution and must have been a docile pupil. He adorns hi speeches with illustrations from the classics or from the common occurrences of every-day life with equal felicity and facility. Some passages from his orations are gems and are be ing used as declamations by boys a school-the ultimate tribute to American eloquence.

"But his crowning gift as an orator is his evident sincerity. He is candor incarnate and, thoroughly believing what he says himself, it is no marvel that he makes others believe

Bryan's first speech in the house the one on the tariff in 1892-fixed his status as one of the crack orators of this generation. It astonished old stagers, electrified the country and stimu lated the ambition of every young man in the land. Envious carpers lugubrimance, that he would be like biggest when first hatched, and that his congressional song would be pitched in diminuendo instead of crescendo. But he utterly confounded these jealous Cassandras by delivering a speech on Cassandras by delivering a speech on silver which must forever remain as a classic in congressional literature.

"If it did not increase his fame much as did his initial effort, it was for the all-sufficient reason that there was not so much room for him to grow in If Daniel Webster himself could have come back to life, he could not by twenty years of ceaseless endeavor in crease his fame as an orator; for while here before he butted his lofty head against the stars. But Bryan went on to the end making speeches stronger and ever stronger, manifesting new powers every time he arose. Perhaps his later addresses lacked something in effervescence, brilliancy and piquancy, but they grew constantly more logical if less rhetorical." The Nebraska statesman and orator is a free silver man of no recent conversion. Fifteen years ago, while yet a struggling lawyer, his voice was lifted in behalf of the white metal, and since that time he has never wavered in his allegiance to the silver cause. While his name is not so intimately connected with legislation on this issue as that fault of Mr. Bryan, but rather the lack of opportunity. On the score of devotion to silver the record of W. J. Bryan cannot be questioned.

Mr. Bryan has always been a Demo crat. He cast his first vote for the Democratic ticket and has ever been consistant supporter of the tenets of that organization. In this respect he that organization. In this respect he cortain c. 87 ORR.
