OBLIGING THE COLONEL.

They Missed it the First Time, but Were Willing to Try Again.

From the Detroit Free Press. There was not any particular excitement over the hanging of the man pointed out and arrested at Big Bend as the chap who stole a pack mule from Col. White's camp, over on Fish River.

One short letter from the United States Minister Taylor to Secretary Gresham in February 9, 1895, tells the story of a diplomatic victory that from its business value deserves a prominent place in the volume.

"I see. And you want him hung?" "I don't care no more about it myself, but I reckon the colonel would be pleased."

"I am willing to oblige Colonel White, as he's a good friend of mine, but do you think the crowd that has so many objections to being hung?"

"He don't look like a man who'd kick about it. 'Pears more like a critter who'd be glad to be off the earth."

"Wall, tolerably fit," replied Jim. "The 'cus who stole our pack mule is down in the tin-front saloon."

OUR DEALING WITH SPAIN

Interesting Facts Revealed by the Records of 1895.

ALLIANCE INCIDENT RECALLED.

Spain Anxious to Make Amends at the Time--The Mora Case has Been Settled by the Payment of $1,500,000--Important Differences Regarding Cuban Sympathizers.

Washington, D. C., July 14.--It requires seventy-one printed pages in the volume of foreign relations to set out the correspondence which has passed between the United States and Spain during the year 1895, yet in no case is there printed any matter in the nature of reports from United States officers touching the rebellion, its causes, progress or prospects.

The conclusion of this incident is for the first time told officially in this publication. The Spanish government showed an entire readiness to do everything that international law requires to smooth away the bad impression made by the incident, and after procuring a report on the subject from the Cuban officials, the Duke of Tetuan, Spanish minister of foreign affairs, delivered to United States Minister Taylor a statement in which he says that the Alliance was fired upon with a special purpose, not to hit her, she being outside of the jurisdictional zone of Spain.

THE INCIDENT CLOSED.

Mr. Uhl, then acting secretary of state, closed the incident by accepting the duke's communication as a sufficient and satisfactory explanation, without conceding that the exact location of the Alliance at the time the shot was fired, can be considered as a controlling circumstance.

the orange, cut the fruit open, and out dropped the coin. Then I went on: "And now, ladies and gentlemen, I will perform a still more difficult feat. I have passed that dollar into an orange. Now I will ask some member of the audience to step on the stage, and without going anywhere near him, I will pass the same dollar, marked, as you have seen, into his trousers pocket."

"True to his bargain, the boy stepped to the stage. I stepped opposite him and asked: "Now, sir, have you ever seen me before?"

"No, sir," was the answer. "I have here a dollar," I continued. "I am going to pass it into your right-hand trousers pocket. One--two--three--go!"

"I made the proper magician's pass and smiled confidently upon my audience. "Now," I said to my assistant, "put your hand in your right-hand trousers pocket and give me the dollar."

"The boy looked a bit sheepish, but he dived his fist down. Then, to my utterable horror, he produced a handful of silver and said: "I've only got ninety cents of it left, sir."

A HORSE'S WILD SPURT.

It Runs for Three Miles in Front of a Locomotive and Escapes Injury.

From the New York Press. Frank Pratt, of Batavia, this State, has a horse that should have the prize for both speed and luck, for it performed a feat that about caps the climax in both those directions.

When it reached the crossing it encountered a freight train bound west. The other train stopped the engine on the track ahead of the train and ran for three miles, dragging the cutter across three long bridges and a number of trestles and over several crossing guards.

It began to look to the trainmen as though the animal was going to make the whole distance in Buffalo ahead of the train when another train appeared on the other track. This headed off the horse, and it plunged down an embankment into a gravel pit and fetched up into a snow drift.

The train stopped and the men dug the rig out, then one man led the horse to a barn in the vicinity and left it. The other train started the engine to the owner, who took possession of the horse, expecting to find it half cut to pieces and the cutter smashed, but there was scarcely a scratch on the animal and the cutter was unharmed.
