JERMYN.

The last sad rites over the earthly remains of Mrs. George Thomas, the victim of Thursday's fearful tragedy, was held at her late home in Scott township Saturday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. Ballantine of Green Ridge, and was largely attended. The floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful. The corpse was borne to its final resting place in Shady-side cemetery by the following gentlemen: Edward Statler, P. Friend, C. D. Winger, Ebenezer Lee, William Rawling and James Nicholson, Sr.

A deal was consummated on Friday by which M. J. Erk disposed of his stock, good will, etc., to Messrs. Eagen and O'Donnell, of Scranton, who will conduct a laundry business at the old stand. The new firm comes from Scranton, where they were in the employ of Howley Bros. Mr. Erk contemplates moving to a new field, but has not as yet decided upon his future location. His numerous friends here will regret exceedingly his determination to leave the town in which he has always had so deep a welfare.

Mrs. Theodore Townsend entertained friends and gave a tea on Friday at her home on Bacon street in honor of her guest, Mrs. Nelson Gould, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The following were present: Mr. Stanton and Mrs. Miller, of Carbondale; Mrs. John Mumford, Mrs. W. H. Houghton and Mrs. Thomas Bray, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner, of Main street, received word on Friday of the death of their granddaughter, Grace Orth, which fell at Lakewood on Friday morning. The deceased girl was about 9 years of age and her demise was due to heart failure. She visited in this place several times and was a child of sunny temperament and unusual intelligence.

Hie, the little 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Loughney, died at the home of her parents on South Main street yesterday. The funeral will be held on Wednesday at 2.30 p. m. C. L. Bell, of this borough, took a party to Carbondale Sunday evening to hear the singing of the choir at the gospel tent. When in the vicinity of the "Lookout," near Carbondale, on the return home, the party underwent an exciting ordeal, the horses becoming unmanageable owing to improper hitching and dashing along Gordon street at a high rate of speed. The position of the occupants of the vehicle was a dangerous one, as in the Stygian darkness that prevailed on that thoroughfare, they were unable to guide the infuriated animals in the least. When opposite the residence of James McDonough the team dashed into a telegraph pole with great force. The sudden shock threw Mr. Bell and his companions out of the carriage, but they mostly escaped luckily with some slight bruises, Mr. Bell faring the worst. One of the horses was so severely hurt that it moaned aloud with pain. The other animal did not injure. In the collision with the pole it became detached from its mate, and before anyone could prevent it had galloped away from the wreck. The horse came to Jermyn. The injured horse and damaged carriage were cared for on Mr. McDonough's property, while Mr. Bell and his companions made the remainder of their journey by way of street car.

The injured horse, it is thought, will die.

TAYLOR.

Some of the politicians here seem to take great interest in politics, the Republicans especially, on the sound money question. Why not organize a McKinley and Hobart club and have weekly discussions. There are good enthusiastic Republicans in this locality and by organizing a club they would become better acquainted with the sound money question. Now let the good work go on and let every Republican take a little interest in it and a McKinley and Hobart club can be organized in a short time.

MURDERER CONFESSES CRIME.

Henry Teuscher Admits Killing His Grandfather Last December.

Burlington, Iowa, Aug. 3.—The body of Louis Kreckel, an old man, was found buried head down under a pile of brush in a dry well on the farm of his grandson, Henry Teuscher, last December. Search had been made for him weeks before his body was found, but Teuscher, although the old man had lived with him, took no part in the search. He refused to pay the old man's funeral expenses and allowed him to be buried at the county's expense. The police have been unable to fix the crime del-
