Young Harris the Second to Die of the Lads Who Ate Poison---Analysis of Thomas Harris, one of the two 5year-old Dunmore boys who on Satarday ate roach poison which they found on the Oral school grounds, died yesterday morning from the effects of the poison. Harry Nimbley, the other lad, died Sunday. Coroner Longstreet, who had started to investigate the Nimbley boy's death, will now combine the two cases.

The inquest had been announced for this evening, but it has been postponed until Friday evening at 8 o'clock in he arbitration room of the court house, The postponement was at the request of the law firm of Warren & Knapp, which represented the Oral school and has some evidence to present concerning the presence of the polson on the or the claim that the boys grounds found it there.

The stomach of the Nimbley boy is in the possession of the coroner, but it will be analyzed during the week by Benjamin Benjamin of Spruce street and Franklin avenue.

He Came Here to See if the Contract Labor Law Has Been Violated. Left for Philadelphia This Morning, but Will Return in Ten Days to Resume the Investigation.

Robert Watchorn, formerly state factory inspector, now an inspector of immigration at Ellis Island in New York harbor, spent the past two days in the city and left at 5 o'clock this morning for Philadelphia. He will return to Scranton in ten days and resume the business on which he was engaged when he left.

Inspector Watchorn was detailed to Scranton to investigate the manner in which the contract labor law is observed in the Lackawanna coal fields. The news has been received at the bureau of immigration that foreigners in large numbers have come across the water, under contract to work in the mines or labor on the railroads when they arrived.

Last year nearly a thousand men were deported, who had come here under contract. Inspector Watchorn said that a mistaken notion prevails that a man in this country can write to a friend in the old country and tell him to come over and that there is a job waiting for him when he arrives.

A conference in relation to the differ-ences between the city and the Providence and Abington Turnpike company was held yesterday in the office of W. W. Watson, attorney for the company. Mayor Bailey and Street Commissioner Kinsley and H. E. Paine, of the company, were present. Yesterday the company had arranged to begin repairing the road. The expense was to have been charged to the city and was to have been charged to the city and the collection made through the courts. The purpose of the conference was to get the company to defer its repair work un-til the return home of City Solicitor Tor-rey and Attorney S. B. Price, the city's consulting attorney on the matter. That was the result of the meeting. Mayor Bailey desires an amicable settlement of the difficulty out of court.

ELKS' BIG NIGHT.

Roland Reed Took Part in the Parade and Social Session.

Last night was a big and busy night with local Elks. It witnessed a street parade, advertising tomorrow's excurtion to Lake Ariel; an open-air concert in front of the club house on Franklin avenue; a social session, and the presentation of a magnificent mounted Elk's head to the lodge by Roland Reed, who participated in and was a central figure in the whole programme. The parade took place at 8 o'clock and was headed by Bauer's band. About one hundred members of the order, each wearing a white cap and a souvenir badge, were in line. Mr. Reed, Frank Martin, past exalted ruler; Dr. P. F. Gunster, ditsrict deputy, and C. Ben Johnson, of Wilkes-Barre, past district deputy, rode in carriages and were folowed by the marchers. The parade was under the auspices of the excursion executive committee, Alex. T. Connell, hairman; Alex, Dunn, jr., George Kirby, secretary; W. S. Gould, treasurer; Chares Schadt, B. P. Connolly and

. R. Cohen. Mr. Reed was made chairman of the social session. His speech accompanyman, Irish, French, Italian, or a Caning the presentation of the Elk head adian.

VIOLATION OF THE LAW That constitutes a violation of the ontract labor law as fully as if a padrone were to go across the sea and hire a shipload over there. The laborer is crowded out of work in either instance. If a man sails for America to better his condition and does so on the strength of assurances received by letter that there is work and good wages here for every man of industry, that is a different case. Such as that is not a violation of the contract labor law.

It is not necessary that a man need be a boss. For instance, a Polish citizen may be working in this or that mine, or on that or the other railroad, or in any shop, factory, or mill. He says to his foreman that he has a cousin, brother, friend, or acquaintance in Poland, who would come to Scranton if he were sure of a job. The foreman tells him to write and say that there will be a job waiting for the individual when he arrives. That is a violation, and the penalty is $1,000 fine on the person who is instrumental in bringing the person here. The latter is punished by being sent back on the next boat. The law knows no country or government. It would be the same with the Englishman, Ger-

FINE WOULD BE THE SAME. A contractor who would make ar-rangements to bring 500 men into the country under contract would be fined $1,000 for each one, and the whole lot would be shipped back from whence they came. No specific charge has been made that there are many contract laborers in and around Scranton and in the towns and villages lying between here and Carbondale, dependent on the coal industry. Some information that he obtained yesterday on a visit to Olyphant was that there are 4,000 people in that borough and in the borough of Blakely who cannot talk a single word of English.

One would not need to do much guessing he said to be certain that among that number there are at least 25 per cent.who were brought over by friends who secured jobs for them in advance. There is much difficulty in finding out this fact from these people, but Inspector Watchhorn is going to enter into the work here when he returns and he will devote a good deal of time to it.

He is an intimate friend of Hon. T. V. Powderly and they spent an hour together in the latter's office yesterday afternoon talking over day's gone by.

DICKSON CITY CONTEST.

Hearing Before the Commissioners in O'Brien & Kelley's Office.

man earning an honest livelihood to be against the bankers and money grab-bers of the country. "When you see these fellows all combine," he said, "you can rest assured that they are hatching some foul conspiracy."

The committee talked over the details for the ratification meeting and it was the unanimous sentiment that Friday evening, August 14, will be a good date: this was not definitely settled, however for the reason that an effort will be made to bring Candidate Bryan to Scranton. Judge Stanton will write to National Chairman Jones to see whether or not Mr. Bryan can come.

Suit for Slander.

Mary Zachwich, a young woman living on Penn avenue, represented by Attorney M. W. Lowry, began an action of trespass yesterday in court against John Bartuchewitz for $1,000 damages for slander.
