

SCRANTON SOCIAL NEWS AND GOSSIP

Brief Mention of What is Doing in the Pleasure Way.

EVERYBODY IS LEAVING TOWN

All the Principal Residence Streets are Lined with Darkened Houses. The Recent Heat Drove Many Out of Town--Others are Going--Personal Mention.

Social activity just now might very properly be compared to sleighing in summer time--there is so very little of it. All the principal residence streets are lined with houses that are shuttered and darkened, and many of the few houses open are bound to be closed before the end of next week.

John Healey of West Market street and Miss Mary Garrison of the South Side will be married next Wednesday afternoon at Holy Rosary church, Providence.

The marriage of Miss Miriam Phillips of Price street to Daniel Hughes of North Summer avenue will be solemnized at the home of the former's parents next Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock.

CHURCH DOINGS AND RELIGIOUS TALK

Chronicles of Particular Interest to Church-Going People.

MANY PASTORS ON VACATION

The Church, Like Everything Else, Affected by the Summer Outpouring. About the Nay Aug Meetings--Religious Notes--Tomorrow's Church Services.

The church like business and everything else--except the summer resorts and railroads--feels the effect of the hot weather. Many of the churches hold but a morning and early evening service tomorrow and it is but comparatively few pulpits that will be occupied by the regular pastors. This is the pastor's month for recuperation and they help swell the list of those away from home.

Most of the West Side churches will hold prayer services tomorrow morning, owing to the absence on vacation of the several pastors. At St. David's Episcopal church Brother Francis will be in charge of the services. The Plymouth Congregational church will conduct special singing services in the evening. There will be no sermon preached. Under the leadership of Elias Evans the church choir will render the following program:

Hymn Congregation Scripture Reading: Prayer. Anthem, "Oh Praise the Lord".....Choir Anthem, "At Home".....Male Fanny Solo Miss Brownie Joseph Ladies' Quartette.....The Misses Joseph Anthem, "March of the Christian Soldier".....Choir Solo Phillips Female Chorus....."Hear Us, Oh Father" Solo, Softly Fades the Day." Male Chorus Miss Vannie Williams Hymn Congregation Solo, "Raise Me, Jesus".....D. E. Hughes Anthem, "Nearer My God to Thee".....Choir Anthem, "All Thy Saints Shall Praise Thee".....Choir Male Quartette, D. E. Hughes, John Phillips, Richard Phillips, William Phillips. Anthem, "Praise God, All ye Creatures".....Choir "Blessings Flow".....Choir

During the heated term the Young Men's Christian Association gospel services are held in the central reception hall of the association building. Those who attended the service last week said it was the coolest place in the city. Director Chance has arranged an attractive programme of music consisting of piano and violin duets. Male quartette selections for tomorrow. The address will be given by Attorney S. T. R. Cocker, a very agreeable and entertaining speaker. The building is open to visitors at 2.30 p. m. and the song service will begin at 3.45.

Preparations for the fall and winter work at the Young Men's Christian Association are being made thoroughly and carefully, and as early as possible, so that as the evenings grow longer and the young men turn their attention to indoor occupations and pleasures, we may be ready for them. The lecture and entertainment committee has almost completed arrangements for the Standard Course, and will be ready to announce it in full in the September issue. The educational committee have been carefully planning for the work of the institute classes, securing teachers and arranging such courses of study as will in their judgment be of the greatest practical value. A scholarship in the John Raymond Institute for this winter will be about the best thing to be had along educational lines. Physical Director Hoff is preparing to push his department of the work and will spend a part of his vacation at Chataqua studying new methods of work--Young Men.

"It has been decided to continue the Sunday afternoon meetings in the building throughout the summer, and that the Nay Aug Falls meetings will be conducted by superintendent in Sanborn of the Rescue Mission, with the cooperation of Secretaries Pearsall and Mahy and of the workers from both departments," says the current number of Young Men, the local Y. M. C. A. magazine. "This arrangement insures an aggressive outdoor campaign while at the same time there will be a continuation of the indoor work. We would suggest that our workers take turns in attending the Falls meetings, so that sufficient help may always be on hand. The meetings for July have been helpful, though not largely attended. Perhaps the best meeting of the month was that held on the 26th, and led by Mr. L. A. Dyer and a delegation of Dickinson students. The earnest words of the leader and the testimonies of his associates were most helpful to the young men present. Other speakers during July were Rev. G. L. Ulrich of the Grace Reformed church; Rev. Frank P. Doty, of the Hampton street Methodist Episcopal church, and Mr. H. H. Burroughs."

Despite the hot weather the gospel meetings South Main avenue, between Eynon and Elm streets, are being continued with an unabating interest. The programme of subjects to be presented Sunday and during the coming week will be of special interest to all lovers of Bible truth, and will be attractive to those who are not accustomed to studying their Bible. Sunday at 2.30 p. m. the subject will be "Our Nations Destiny." Sunday at 7.30 p. m. Mr. Russell will deliver a lecture on "Bible Temperance." The subject will be treated in an entirely different manner than have been ordinary lectures on this subject. There is a special invitation extended to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union's and other lovers of temperance that there may be a general rally for the cause of temperance. Next week there will be a series of sermons on the soul and spirit which will involve the subject as to where our departed friends are and the "Punishment of the Wicked" and many kindred subjects.

RELIGIOUS MISCELLANY. The Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Sunday school picnicked at the Round Woods Thursday.

Rev. Jacob Shetty, of Ohio, who has accepted the pastorate of the Chestnut street Presbyterian church, will locate here next month.

The Junior Epworth league of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church held an entertainment and ice cream social Thursday night.

St. Mark's Lutheran church conducted a largely attended lawn social Thursday evening on the lawn adjoining the church on Fourteenth street.

There will be a gospel meeting for young men Sunday afternoon at 3.45 in the rooms of te association, 205 Washington avenue. Miss Mary Kiesel will speak, her subject being "Deborah."

You and Your Grandfather. Are removed from each other by a span of years. He travelled in a slow-going express or a fast-moving electric car. When he was sick he was treated by old fashioned methods and given old fashioned medicine. His ailments were treated by medicine as well as in everything else. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine of today. It is prepared by modern methods and its preparation is brought the still and of modern science. Hood's Sarsaparilla acts promptly upon the blood and by making pure, rich blood it cures disease and establishes good health.

WORLD OF LETTERS.

AUGUST MAGAZINES.

A study of the Oriental Bismarck. Li Hung Chang, who is soon to visit the United States for the first time, is par excellence the feature of the Century this month. It is written by ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster, who was employed by the emperor of China to aid Li Hung Chang in negotiating peace with Japan. Marlon Crawford's illustrated paper describing the Vatican is also a specially noteworthy article. In addition there is a plentiful variety of midsummer fiction.

Most of the current Forum is devoted to politics. Senators Cullom and Morrill and General Porter exclaiming various phases of Republicanism and Charles S. Gleded and T. S. Van Dyke arguing certain branches of the currency question. Apart from politics, however, Julia H. Ward's study of Harriet Beecher Stowe, and J. B. Bishop's paper on the "Social and Economic Influence of the Bicycle" are the recommendable features.

In the Cosmopolitan this month Horatio C. Taylor, who is contributing a valuable series of papers on modern Spain, dwells entertainingly on "Cordoba, the City of Memories." Another readable feature is a narrative of Fremont's retreat from the San Luis valley, by the only survivor of that famous expedition. Amelia S. Barr has a strong story in this number, entitled "A Daughter of Folly."

McClure's for August is a fiction number, including most of its contributors Clinton Ross, Octave Thanet, Stephen Crane, Edward William Thompson, Anthony Hope and Annie Elliot. "Gladstone at Eighty-six," by William T. Stead, is an uncommonly interesting "human document" in this magazine. The portraits given of England's grand old men are worth many times the magazine's cost.

A critical review of the life and work of Johannes Brahms by Edgar Stillman Kelley, in connection with which appears a fine half-tone portrait, is the noteworthy feature of the August Looker-On. A paper by Harvey W. Lambin on "The Art of Accompanying" is also worthy of recommendation to all serious musicians.

CONTINUATION OF OUR GREAT AUGUST SALE

Still greater cuts have been made throughout our whole store, as we are determined to dispose of all spring and summer goods we still have left and at prices that will tempt somebody to purchase whether they need goods or not, but, as usual, all merchandise bought that is not entirely as represented, the money will cheerfully be refunded. Shall advise all who wish to buy good, new and desirable merchandise not to fail to attend this sale.

For showing himself, and the rest can be sent to him at Monticello.

"It was the last trace we could find of him, and we walked thirty miles to town, expecting every minute to be shot at."

IF WE HAD FREE COINAGE.

From the Times-Herald.

Suppose it became a reasonable certainty that the United States would adopt the policy of free coinage of silver at 16 to 1. From that moment hundreds, perhaps thousands, of men would rush into the market to buy silver, expecting that they could turn it into silver dollars that would be worth 125 cents per ounce. Under such a demand silver would advance in price until it reached very nearly, perhaps its full coinage value. For a few months, perhaps for a longer time, we would have an era of speculation such as has not been witnessed in many years. The speculation of the war would be repeated on a larger scale, for this speculation would not be confined to the United States alone. It would be spread over the world. Silver to buy or sell. Families would melt down their silverware and turn it into bullion, while before the war would be won and lost in a single day, for under the varying rumors constantly set afloat at such periods the fluctuations would be wide. Our gold speculation would be forgotten, and the daily and weekly fluctuations of that time drove men wild with the alternating emotions of hope and despair.

Such an all probability would be the result of free coinage, and this is in fact what the free silver men allege. They say that this extra demand will be met by human experience. This would all be for the advantage and benefit of the mine owners, the owners of silver, and the lucky speculators. Where now would the people, those who are not speculators, but are workers and producers, come in? The silver dollar would become intrinsically more valuable from day to day, and instead of being worth 100 cents, as it is now, it might become worth 125 cents. It would fluctuate, however, just as the market price for silver fluctuates, and sometimes be worth more and sometimes less. As money--as a measure of value--it would be the worst possible. It would resemble a yard-stick that one day would be twenty-five inches long, another day thirty inches long, the next thirty-six inches long, and the next back to thirty again. No person could buy or sell for less or more than the fluctuating value. Even the silver men admit this when they declare that they want free silver coinage for the very purpose of obtaining money in which to pay debts.

But whether they will or not, it is the unvarying law of nature that an inferior money driven out the superior. Our own monetary history furnishes all the examples of this truth that we need. But this would not be all. By and by the demand and the use for silver would decrease, and its price would decrease, gradually sinking back to its real commercial value with gold. We would then have, as Mexico has, a depreciated money, and our silver dollar would not be worth quite as much as the Mexican dollar. Meantime we would be obliged to carry on our commerce with the rest of the world on the gold basis just as we did during the war, subjecting ourselves to all the annoyances, perplexities and expense of an adverse foreign exchange.

Is it worth while to go through so much to get so little? Are the people who cannot profit by changing our money standard willing to subject themselves to all these disadvantages for the purpose only of putting extravagant profits into the pockets of the mine owners?

MUSICAL NOTES.

CAUGHT THE OFFICERS.

How a Moonshiner Collected a Reward Offered for His Capture.

"Cap" Nelson is a moonshiner whose stills in Clinton county, Kentucky, have never been found. The revenue officers have endeavored for years to catch him, but the nearest they ever succeeded was about two years ago, the details of which raid was told a Star reporter by Thaddeus Carter, one of the deputies who accompanied the posse.

"We left Point Burnside," he said, "and stopped the first night in Monticello, starting early the next morning for Boston mountain, near which Nelson was known to live. As we rode up the narrow ridge path, that is the easiest way to the top of the mountain, a mountaineer met us.

"Howdy, strangers," he said.

"Howdy," we answered.

"Goin' to Albany?" he inquired.

"Yes."

"Wall, I reckon I kin do yo' some good a' water 'an' 'ones' hold," he remarked. "One of yo' all jes' git down an' come h'ar."

"Our leader dismounted, and the man said, cautiously:

"Thar's a feller named 'Cap' Nelson h'ar, an' thar's rewards fur 'im. Ef yo' all will bring some men h'ar, I'll go hal' yo'."

"After a little sparring a deal was made with the fellow, who took us to a house for supper, where he said Nelson had an engagement to come that night. We watched the informer carefully and kept our weapons ready or use.

"Yo' want all go yander in the loft an' keep a sharp lookout. When he comes jump right down an' capter 'im s'udden. Take me, too, for my hide would'n be worth shucks of the hed any 'jee he war given away."

"We were a little suspicious, but kept a close watch upon the man. He was not out of our sight except when he went to feed the horses.

"About the time it grew dark there were sounds of horses' hoofs and our spy whispured us the left: 'He'll ride up an' I'll go out an' see 'im an' stop 'im. He won't come in 'cause thar's two others with 'im. When yo' all hear three pistol shots yo' kin know it's 'im. Git yo' critters an' surroun' 'im."

"We started after the horses, the pistol shots were heard as we reached the log stable. The horses were gone, the lights were out in the cabin, and when we got back it was deserted. We finally got into the house and loosely scrawled on a piece of brown paper was written, 'I told yo' all I'd show yo' Cap. Nelson for half the $2,000. Yo' all et supper with him, but he don't live h'ar as a general thing. He took the horses for half what yo' owe him."
