Refreshments and cigars were served and a general good time enjoyed.

Mr. Evans will take his family with him. They are Mrs. Evans, Mary Evans and David Evans.

ODD EXPERIENCES.

Some of the West Side officers have recently had very novel experiences that are being told about them with a good deal of relish. The best story is told at the expense of Constable John Davis. John upholds the law in the Fourth ward and he is quite successful. Last Saturday he had a warrant for a man named Steve Coggins whose home is on Luzerne street. Down goes John armed with the warrant, a club, a pair of nippers and a grim determination. He espied Coggins as the latter was making bee-line for Keyser Valley, but the feet of the law were the faster. "Come on," said John. But the man wouldn't "come," and John placed the nippers on one of the prisoner's wrists. Coggins braced himself by grasping an iron fence with his free hand. The constable pulled and pulled, but Coggins didn't flinch worth a cent. Again Davis pulled and, wonderful to relate! the prisoner's arm came off at the shoulder. John jumped back aghast, with the amputated arm dangling from the nippers. "Deu, deu," he said. After awhile it struck him that Coggins' arm was made from the limb of an oak tree and was simply wood.

Lieutenant Williams was called to arrest a drunken man Tuesday night. The fellow was supposed to be lying in a dark spot in the rear of Protheroe & Watkins' store on South Main avenue. The police overseer went down and Lieutenant of noticing a dark object on the ground he will leave this morning for a ten days' went to it and peered at it and pon-dered over it, "Where's his head?" murmured the lieutenant to the reporter who was watching the movements. Seven minutes passed; then the lieutenant discovered that he was wasting time over a discarded bushel basket. The drunken man was afterward found somewhere near the Oxford breaker, Constable Henry Burshell and Constable Timothy Jones were down in Kelly's patch recently with a war-rant for the arrest of Charles Chester. While one of the constables watched the prisoner in a 10x10 room the other went down stairs. When "the other" came back Chester had mysteriously disappeared and the watching constable was patiently waiting the re-turn of the prisoner. This is no joke as it was about four hours afterward when Chester was recaptured.

The pall bearers were: street under the railroad bridge he disdrivers noticed the box on the road. Drayman Charles Kiefer, of Cedar avenue saw the box lying in the middle of the road near the Cedar avenue bridge but when he got off and picked it up he little dreamed what it contained, and thought there might be a monkey wrench or such as that in it. When he saw the money he took steps immediately to find the loser and did not have far to go, for Kirwin and the other two drivers were searching farther up the street, and were in an excited frame of mind. When the money was eturned, Kirwin was a thankful man. IN THE FRONT RANK.

The Pittsburg Times of May 23, 1896, says of the Bloomsburg State Normal School:

"Since the opening of the school 29 years ago, it has stood in the front rank as an institution of learning, has advanced and improved with the times and enjoys a reputation among the leading educators as a model institution, where a complete education can be secured at a small cost." The National Educator of March 14,

1896, says of the same school: "The growth and prosperity of the school has been phenomenal. We will briefly enumerate some of the material changes. New furniture came first, beautiful auditorium was modeled. Next the large four-story dormitory and gymnasium were built. Electric lights, the new Library, the Elevator and the employees' Dormitory and Sanitarium soon followed. The new Athletic field is another remarkable feature of its growth. In short, the school has grown so wonderfully that those who have not visited it in five years would be astonished to see the transformation." The New Cathalogue of this School can be had by addressing the principal, Dr. J. P. Welsh. It is finely illustrated, and has much valuable information Hundreds of men and women in all parts of the United States owe their uccess and prosperity to the fact that they were educated at this excellent School. MARKETS AND STOCKS

Wall Street Review

New York, Aug. 7.—The bears had a field day at the Stock Exchange, ilquidations having been on a heavy scale putil the last hour of business when a steadier tone prevailed, the latter a result of covering of short contracts. The early loss in prices was equal to 1@7% per cent, in the usually active list and 2@3 per cent, in the specialties was due principally to the higher rates for money demanded by bankers generally which has compelled weak holders to market their securities. Today call money which has not risen above 3 per cent, for months suddenly advanced to per cent and closed near the toy figure. Dealings in time money war on a very moderate scale and in fact lenders were not disposed to do business in this department at all. To add to the nervousness a story was started tothe effect that the banks intended to issue clearing house certificates. There was nothing in this report but it had its influence. It is true that there has been considerable calling in of loans by the banks but this always happens when values are the stock exchange melt away the same as they did today. The west was also a seller for the account of operators who have sustained serious losses through the collapse of the Diamond Match deal. Another depressing factor was the alleged statement by ex-Secretary of the Navy Whitney that Bryan would carry New York This alarmed any number of small operators and resulted in the selling of quite a large amount of long stock. Low records were made in a number of instances and some stocks sold below the figures current in the Venezuelan war In the last hour the market improved

1663 per cent. owing to liberal purchases by the leading bears who wished to turn their paper profits into cash. Speculation closed steady in tone. Net losses in the usually active issues ranged from 15 to 6 per cent. Manhattan leading. Total sales were 354,006
