FELL INTO DEEP WATER.

Particulars of the Drowning of Howard Foster.

The body of Howard E. Foster, who was drowned at Nineveh Tuesday evening, was brought to this city on the 4.03 Delaware and Hudson train yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Foster, with a party of young people, went to the river to bathe. The place he chose for the bath was on a large sand bar which projected for some distance into the water. At the outer end of the bar it descended abruptly into deep water. It was here that Mr. Foster met his death, for he stepped off the bar into the deep water and, being unable to swim, was drowned before the eyes of his friends, who were unable to give him any assistance. It was not until after several hours' hard work that the body was recovered.

Mr. Foster was a young man of sterling character and a favorite among his many acquaintances. He was but twenty-four years of age, and had not as yet had a chance to develop the many talents of which he was possessed.

Dr. J. A. Kelley, who responded to the call for a physician, worked over her for some time and was at last rewarded by restoring the unfortunate young lady to consciousness. At present she is feeling a little better.

Mr. Stevenson To Leave.

Frank Stevenson, who for several years has very acceptably filled the position as operating engineer at the shipping office, will today begin his duties as station agent at Waymart, a position to which he has lately been promoted. The place was made vacant by the resignation of Fred Greenhill. The many friends of Mr. Stevenson congratulate him upon his promotion, but regret that his new duties will cause his removal from this city.

TO GET POWER FROM NIAGARA.

Dynamos at the Falls to Transmit Electricity to Other Cities.

New York, Aug. 12.—There are now in service in California three or four lines over which power is transmitted in the form of electricity for distances varying from twenty to thirty-five miles. The pressure under which the electricity is sent is from 10,000 to 12,000 volts. The amount thus conveyed is equivalent in each case to several thousand horse power. The great plant at Niagara has thus far supplied power only to factories close at hand. Active steps are now being taken, however, to furnish other cities.

The contract has been let for the construction of a line to Buffalo, fifteen miles away, over which eventually about 20,000 horse power will be transmitted. This would require all the output of the four 5,000 horse power dynamos. These machines are not all in place yet at the falls. For this and other reasons only 5,000 horse power will be delivered at first. At least 1,000 of this will be taken by the Buffalo Street Railway company, and it is hoped that connections will be made for this purpose by or before November 1. That particular customer pays $40 annually per horse power, but is to have it for $36 if it takes more than the amount just mentioned.

Weeklies devoted to electrical interests have within the last few days printed many details of the enterprise. The current is to be generated and transmitted according to the "three-phase system"—that is, three separate alternating currents will be sent, the waves of one being a fraction of a wave length behind another. Three copper wires will be required for this purpose. Each 5,000 horse power will have its own set of wires, so that there will be twelve of the latter eventually, when the whole 20,000 is in, delivered.

It has not yet been definitely decided whether to send the current at a voltage of 10,000 or 20,000. The dynamos generate it at 2,000 and the current will go through three-phase transformers at Niagara, which will raise the voltage to whatever figure is adopted. This is only for transmission purposes. In Buffalo another set of transformers will reduce the voltage (or pressure) to whatever degree is desired. On trolley roads it is customary to use a voltage of about 500.

There has been much talk about the danger to human life and to animals from accidental contact with wires containing high potential currents, and for that reason the idea of underground conduits has been considered. A pole line has been adopted, however. This line will run along a private right of way, and will be carefully fenced in. Nobody but trespassers or careless linemen, therefore, can get hurt. An additional wire to catch lightning will be strung along the same set of poles, and at each fifth pole it will be run to the ground, so as to conduct off any superfluous electricity gathered from the atmosphere.

The particular form of insulator to be used for the power wires on this line is the "petticoat" type, so that, no matter how wet the outside may become, there are dry inner surfaces which will practically check the leakage of electricity.
