HOME AT THREE A. M.

The tale is told that when Messrs. John Thomas, Arthur Stover and Bert Harrington, accompanied by friends, were returning home from Lake Winola at 9.30 o'clock Sunday evening they un-fortunately lost their way. Drivers to the lake are acquainted with the "corners," at the top of a hill in the country part, where there are two sign boards, one of which says, "10 miles to Newton," and the other, "8 miles to Scranton." It was dark and the sign posts were smothered in the gloom, When the people in the three-seated wagon recovered their thinking powers they found themselves in a little hamlet about two miles this side of Newton. And it was then 12 o'clock. Certainly the ride seemed long, but the young folks never knew the path of dalliance trod until the little hamlet was reached. Here they discovered that they were lost, and they retraced their way. Scranton was reached at 3.30 and Edna Saxe, Mr. and Mrs. M. Dimo'clock Monday morning.

There has been much dissatisfaction shown toward the present management of the only hotel at the lake, and the new hotel will have many friends.
