THE FARMERS VISIT MAJOR M'KINLEY

Work of Populists Has Been in Vain in Knox County.

MR. M'KINLEY WILL GET THE VOTE

An Able Explanation of the Causes Which Have Reduced the Profits of Agriculture--The Most Enthusiastic Delegation That Has Visited Canton During the Campaign.

Canton, O., Aug. 24.—Eight hundred citizens of East Liverpool, Ohio, under the auspices of the McKinley and Hobart club of this city, called on Major McKinley this morning. East Liverpool is the center of the pottery industry in Ohio and most of the men in the delegation were workmen from the potteries. The delegation came on a special train and marched up the streets with flags flying and bands playing. The spokesman was introduced by William Sirls, marshal of the day. The spokesman was U. V. Blake, a potter who works at the bench. He made an excellent address to Major McKinley, congratulating him on the fact that he had remained a true and steady advocate of protection principles and assured him that the workmen of East-Ohio were enthusiastic in his support. Three rousing cheers were given for Major McKinley before he was permitted to speak.

THE FARMERS ARRIVE

A short time after the East Liverpool workmen departed a large delegation of farmers from Knox county, Ohio, marched up to the McKinley residence. They were most warmly greeted along their line of march. It was the first delegation composed entirely of farmers who had visited Major McKinley since his nomination, and there was uncommon interest on the part of the citizens of Canton, irrespective of party, to hear what the farmers would say to Major McKinley and what he would say to them for in this state as elsewhere, the farmers have been deeply interested in the discussion of the silver question.

Their spokesman, H. D. Critchfield, explained in his address to Major McKinley, that Knox county is a typical agricultural community of the central states, and that it contains men of all shades of opinion. The Populists have been active here, said, and still are. "But we are here to assure you, Major McKinley, that the vote of every Republican and some of the Democrats of the county will be cast for you." When Major McKinley stepped upon the chair to speak, the 500 farmers who faced him cheered long and lustily. Major McKinley spoke with deliberation at first, reading from a typewritten manuscript. His speech was full of points which were earnestly applauded. Depression in agriculture always follows the tariff legislation, he declared. The farmer is suffering today because the number of his competitors has increased and his best customers are out of work. We cannot decrease competition, but a restoration of the protective policy will give work to your customers. Major McKinley spoke of the benefits of reciprocity and showed what the farmers had lost in foreign markets. Free silver, he said, will not cure our over-production, nor under consumption. You don't get consumers through the tariff, you get them through the factories. These sentiments were heartily cheered. The delegation was one of the most enthusiastic that has visited Canton and gave evidence of the deepest interest in the discussion of money and tariff questions. Major McKinley's speech was carefully prepared.

M'KINLEY'S REMARKS

Major McKinley speaking to a delegation of farmers said in part: "I am glad especially to meet the farmers of Knox county, for the farmers of the United States are the most conservative force in our citizenship and in our civilization. (Applause.) A force that has stood for the tariff for government, for country, for liberty and for honesty. (Great applause.) Whatever the farmers are suffering today is because of his competitors having increased in numbers, and because his best customers are out of work. (Applause and cries of "you're right.") I do not know that we can decrease the number of your competitors, but with the adoption of a true American protective policy, we can set your best customers to work. (Tremendous cheering and cries of "hurrah for McKinley.") We have suffered in our foreign trade and we have suffered in our domestic trade. The farmers here have likewise suffered in the home market. Under the Republican tariff of 1890, we imported in 1893, 11,000,000 pounds of wool valued at over $13,000,000. In 1895, under the Democratic tariff law we imported 248,000,000 pounds of wool, valued at $53,000,000. Nearly 230,000,000 worth more of wool was imported under the Democratic tariff law than under the Republican tariff law in 1894. The imports of woolen goods in 1895 amounted to $16,800,000 and those of 1896 to $27,494,000. From the reports of the treasury department at Washington we find that there were 4,273,000 sheep in the United States in 1892, valued at $25,969,000. On the first of January, 1896, there were 38,288,000 sheep in the United States, valued at $45,000,000, a decrease of 9,000,000 in the number of sheep and of $9,000,000 in value, $2,000,000 worth more of shoddy was imported under the Democratic tariff law than under the Republican tariff law. In woolen goods the difference is more than $50,000,000 in favor

CHAIRMAN GARMAN'S CALL

Wilkes-Barre, Aug. 24.—The following call for the reconvening of the state Democratic convention at Harrisburg on Sept. 10 next was issued by State Chairman John M. Garman at his headquarters in this city tonight:

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 24, 1896. The Democratic state convention will meet at the opera house in Harrisburg, Pa., on Thursday, Sept. 10, 1896, at 9 o'clock, noon, for the purpose of nominating candidates for representatives-at-large and for presidential electors where vacancies may exist, by reason of resignations or otherwise; for the adoption of a platform in accordance with the principles declared by the national Democratic convention held in Chicago in July last, and for the transaction of such other business as may be necessary and proper.

BRYAN AT KINGSTON

He Makes a Speech to the Crowd That Had Gathered to See Him--Mrs. Bryan Shares the Honors.

Upper Red Hook, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Candidate Bryan and Mrs. Bryan and Private Secretary Cutright left Red Hook at noon today to begin their homeward journey to Lincoln.

At Kingston Point Mr. Bryan said: "I don't care to make any speech, but I never see people gathered together without wanting to make a speech. I believe I represent the best interest of the American people. I believe in platform--platforms not to get in on but platforms to stand on when you get in. I believe the money question is the paramount issue of this campaign. I want you to study the question, and when you study remember that there are some people who firmly believe in the gold standard. If you believe in bimetallic you ought to believe in it to the extent that you will vote with those who want to bring it about. No political party has ever declared for the gold standard. The man who advocated the gold standard in this country is a man without a party, and the man who thinks the gold standard is a bad thing, but that this nation must suffer until some other nation comes to our relief, will be a man without a party after this election, if I am anything of a prophet. We must make politics a business this year. I am much interested in it as a man who has a small business. It is all you have, and you have as much right to protect your small interests as any other man has to protect his. I must close, for if I talk much longer I will have made a speech. (Cheers.) About forty people were waiting to receive Mr. Bryan at the Kingston station. They shouted for a speech but the candidate shook his head and was going to speak for a few minutes here tomorrow," he told them, "and therefore will not speak any today. I'm glad to see you."
