It is the rule of the laws constitutionally enacted and finally interpreted by the judicial tribunal appointed by the constitution. The atmosphere of the Chicago convention was surcharged with the spirit vention was surcharged with the spirit of revolution. Its platform was carried and its nominations made with accom-panying incidents of frenzy that startled the onlookers and amazed the country. The courts and the president were arraigned for enforcing the laws and government by the mob was given pref-erence over government by the law en-forced by the court and decrees by executive orders. The spirit exhibited that itself in this convention was so wild and strangely enthused that Mr. Bryan himself likened it to the seal that the use of those terms. Biself in the use of the two metals as money, where they are both used. strangely enthused that Mr. Bryan him-self likened it to the zeal that possessed the crusaders when they responded to the impassioned appeals of Peter, the everything is to be measured. Now our the impassioned appeals of Peter, the hermit, to rescue the spulchre of our Lord from the hands of the infidels. His historical illustration was more potent and more forcible than he knew, for the zeal of the crusaders was a blind and ignorant zeal, they sought to rescue the transient and ineffectual sepulcies of silver it to be also the second to be equal to one of silver it to one ounce of gold, how many ounces of silver it to one ounce of silver it to cure the transient and increation space of the son of God, while they trampled upon the precepts of love and mercy which he had left for their guidance in life. (Applause.) He told us that his silver crusade had arrayed father against son and brother against brother and sundered the latterest of love.

Senator Hill, watching the proceedings, had to extend that brief political rich and prosperous. Mr. Tillman felt that change in the management of pub-lic affairs was to be so radical that he proposed sulphur fumigation for the ship before the new crew took possession of it .(Laughter.)

FRENZY AT CHICAGO. Now my friends all these things in-dicate the temper in which that plat-form was adopted and the spirit that prompted the nominations that were prompted the nominations that were made. There was no calim delibera-tion. There was frenzy. There was no thoughtful searching for the man who from experience was most able to direct public affairs. There was an im-pulsive response to an impassioned speech that selected the nominee. Not amid such surroundings as that, not under such influences, are these caim, discreet things done that will commend themselves to the judgment of the American people. (Applause). They denounce in their platform interference by fedearl authorities in local affairs United States and a crime against free institutions. Mr. Tillman in his speech approved this declaration. It was in-tended to be in words a direct con-demnation of Mr. Cleveland as president of the United States for using the power of executive to brush out of the way every obstacle to the free passage of the mail trains of the United States and the interstate commerce, and my friends, whenever our people approve the choice of a president who believes he must ask Gover-nor Altgeld or any other governor or any other state, permission to enforce the laws of the United States, we have surrendered the victory the boys won in 1861. (Applause).

Once we were asked, and a grave question was raised whether the United question was raised whether the United States could pass its troops through Kentucky to meet a rebel army in Tennessee. My friends this constitutional question, this division between the general and local authorities is a before at the poles of the planet and before at the plain and easy one. A disturbance state affair. The president cannot send state affair. The president canont send troops or lend any aid unless the legislature calls upon him for help, or the governor if the legislature is not in sesion. But when a law of the United States is invaded and broken it is the sworn duty of the president to execute it and this convention arraigns the president for doing what his oath combattle that the age might not lose its lustre will you consent after these years (cries of "no") that the doctrine which was shot to death in the great war shall be revived and made victorious in a civil campaign. (Cries of "no.") But this assault does not end there. The superme court of the United States plausible, as the contraction of the polar The superme court of the art are arraigned because they used the familiar writ of injunction to suppress violence, to restrain men from break-ing the law and that platform plainly means-I will show you that it was so understood in the convention and in the committee on resolutions which declared what the Democratic policy was, that when the policy was, that when the supreme court exercising its constitutional power and duty gave an inter-pretation to a law of the United States that was not pleasing to congress, they would increase the number of judges and pack the courts to get a decision to please them. (Applause.)

"What prevents such assaults on the fundamental law? Nothing but the fear of the people whose broad, good sense and attachment to the principles of the constitution may be generally relied on to condemn such a perversion of its powers. (Applause.) Our English friend did not misjudge, I think, the sound good, sense of the American people when an issue like this is to be ple when an issue like this is to be presented. Whatever the question is, whether Mr. Bryan's view or Mr. Tillwhether Mr. Bryan's view or Mr. Till-man's view of the constitutional ques-tion shall prevail or that of the august tribunal appointed by the constitution to settle it, the courts are the defence of the weak. The rich and powerful have other resources but the poor have not. The high minded independent ju-diciary that will hold to the line on questions between wealth and labor, between the rich and the poor, is the defence and security of the defenceless, (Applause.) I am quite as much opposed to the cheapening the American workingman and working woman as I am to cheap-ening our dollars. (Applause). I am quite as strongly in favor of keeping days' works at home as I am gold dollars. (Applause). My friends, as a Republican I am proud of many things, but I can sum up as the highest satisfaction I have had in the party and its career, the pros-did disturb business. (Applause). Referring to the silver question Mr. Harrison asked: "What is it? Do you want silver because we want more money? A larger circulating medium? I have not heard anybody say so. Mr. Bryan is not urging it upon that basis. If anybody were to seek to give that as a reason for wanting free silver he a reason for wanting free silver he would be very soon confounded by the statement that free silver would put more gold out of circulation than the mints of the United States could possibly bring in in years and that instead of having more money we would have less (Appleage). With that instead of having more money we would have less. (Applause). With our six hundred and odd millions of gold driven out of circulation, we will reduce the per capita money of this country between eight and nine dollars. So it is not for more money. We have an abundant supply of circulating medium—gold.silver, national bank paper, greenbacks, treasury notes and fractional silver. We have something like $22 per capits of our resultation. What $23 per capita of our population. What is it then that creates this demand for is it then that creates this demand for silver? It is openly avowed, it is not more dollars, but cheaper dollars that are wanted. It is a lower standard of value that they are demanding. They say gold has gone up until it has ceas-ed to be a proper standard of values, and they want silver. But how do they want it

Now, my friends, there is a great deal of talk about bimetallism and the double standard and a great deal of con-fusion in the use of those terms. Bi-

This government can fix its money unit. It can declare by law what shall be the relative value of an ounce of gold, and an ounce of silver, but it cannot make that last declaration good. code from which he had gained so much renown. He felt compelled to say: "I am a Democrat but I am not a revolutionist." (Applause.) Senator Vest realizing that they were inaugurating a revolution reminded the convention that revolutions did not begin with the office that is the defaration good. (Applause.) It is unquestionably fully within the power of this government to bring this country to a silver basis by coming silver dollars and making them legal tender. They can do that. This government shall say you shall take one of those dollars in discharge of any debt owing the transfer. owing to you for a dollar, notwith-standing you may have loaned gold dol-lars, but it cannot say, and enforce its decree—if you should call out the regular army, our navy and muster our great modern ships and add the militia and put William J. Bryan in command of them, it cannot enforce the decree that one ounce of gold is the equivalent of sixteen ounces of silver (great ap-plause and cheers) not only that, not France and England and Germany can do that unless the markets respond. (Applause.) We can of ourselves, of our own wisdom declare the unit of value. We can coin sliver freely, but we can ot make sixteen ounces of silver equal to one ounce of gold unless it is, (Applause.) And it is not unless the merchants take it at that rate.

In conclusion General Harrison said:

My countrymen, this country of ours, during the troublous times of the war may have had severe trials, but these financial questions are scarcely less troublous than those. Does noe every a violation of the constitution of the imstinct of pride, does not every instinct of self interest, does not every instinct ful affectionate interest in others, does not our sense of justice and honor rise up to rebuke the infamous proposition that this government and its people shall become a nation and a people of repudiators. Chlcago, Aug. 27.-The report from laws of the United States, we have Percival Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Arizona, yesterday announcing that polar snow had been seen on Mars, in latitude 76, longitude 26, about two has been accounted for by a number of theories.

The one most generally acepted is entertained by Professor Edward E. Barnard of this city.
