SHOOTING AT NO. 4.

The Guilty Man Then Goes to Bed. Jealousy the Cause.

There was a good deal of excitement in Justice Williams' office Saturday morning when Edmund Arnold, of No. 4, was given a hearing on the charge of shooting Joseph Hawkins, of the same place.

The shooting took place about nine o'clock Friday night. The wounded man and his assailant both differ in their stories. Arnold, who is married, says that Hawkins has been endeavoring to make him angry for some time and that Hawkins has been trying to pay attention to his wife in the hope of arousing jealousy.

Arnold said that when he came home from work Friday night there was no supper waiting for him and so he sent his little boy to look for his wife. He returned soon and said his wife had been out with Hawkins and refused to return. After a while Arnold went down the road taking with him his revolver. He met Hawkins and words passed upon which Hawkins struck Arnold. Arnold drew his revolver and the man ran away. Two shots were fired after him but did not seem to have hit the man. Arnold then went home and the first he knew that Hawkins had been hit was when the constable woke him up when he came to arrest him.

There are but two witnesses who know anything of the affair and they know very little. They heard the reports of the revolver and saw Arnold chase Hawkins, but that is all. Arnold was taken to Scranton and is lodged in the county jail.

The wounded man is not in a serious condition.

Mrs. S. S. Shields and H. C. Wheeler, who examined him, found that the bullet had entered just above the right hip and near the spinal column. The bullet had already been removed when the doctors arrived, having come out with the shreds of clothing which had been carried in with it.

POLITICAL GOSSIP FROM WASHINGTON

Impressions Created by the Nomination of Palmer and Backner.

KENTUCKY THE BATTLE GROUND

Washington's High-Toned Politicians Refuse to Carry Li Hung Chang's Chair-Warlike Pennsylvania Democrats--The Political Foes are Keeping Out of Sight.

Bureau of The Tribune, 501 14th St., N. W., Washington, Sept. 6.

The nomination of General Palmer for president by the sound money Democrats at Indianapolis on Thursday is variously regarded among politicians here. Some say it is a strong ticket, and will bring to it more than enough votes to insure the defeat of Bryan. Others, however, regard it as the weakest ticket the bolters could possibly have put in the field. Whatever the result may be, one thing is reasonably certain: The states of Illinois and Kentucky are placed in the extreme doubtful column by the nomination of these old war horses. General Palmer has been on all sides of the political fence in his day and for that reason he will not doubt be able to pull a big vote in his own state. He has always been popular with the people, no matter what party he belonged to. Among the old soldiers he is particularly popular, and will pull a big soldier vote. But whether he will pull more from the Democratic side than from the Republican is a question. The majority of the Illinois veterans are Republicans, and if they give their old commander the support they gave him during the early sixties on the field of battle it may endanger McKinley's election. A division of the soldier vote in Illinois will be a most serious thing for the Republican nominees. It may result in throwing the election into the hands of Bryan. In Kentucky it is different. General Buckner's strength lies in the ranks of the Democracy. He is a Confederate general during the war, and was and is still a great favorite among the old soldiers. A large percentage of them are Democrats. For this reason he may be able to pull enough votes to defeat the Bryan electors. This is what the Democratic managers fear, and from now until election day the old Blue Grass state will be good battle ground for the Republicans.

Ex-Governor Francis, of Missouri, the new secretary of the interior, has a remarkable memory for remembering names and faces. During the reception at the interior department on Thursday, just after he had been sworn in, he recognized an old Pittsburgh newspaper man whom he had not seen for many years. When introduced to the new secretary the newspaper man remarked that he had often interviewed him in Pittsburgh.

"Do you know," replied Secretary Francis, "that I thought I recognized you when you first entered the room?" "It has been a long time since you saw me, Mr. Secretary," said the reporter. "Well, it must be some time since, for I could not recall your name, although I knew your face," replied the secretary.

"Well, it is just nine years since I saw you, and that was at the Union station in Pittsburgh," was the reporter's reply. "Now, let me see if I can recall the time and circumstances," said Secretary Francis. "Wasn't it the time a committee from St. Louis was on its way to Washington to invite President Cleveland to attend the opening of the exposition in that city? I was mayor of St. Louis then and headed the delegation."

The reporter said it was, and then recalled the mammoth invitation the committee carried from St. Louis to Washington and extended to the president. It was in pamphlet form, handsomely printed and bound elaborately.

"That's so, wasn't it a monster? But it had the desired effect, and that's what we wanted," laughingly said President Cleveland's new secretary.

HIGH-TONED POLITICIEN. The police of Washington consider themselves a little better than their brethren in other cities. When Li Hung Chang, the Chinese viceroy, arrived here Thursday night with his retinue of body servants, he was met at the Pennsylvania station by government officials, a troop of United States soldiers and thousands of curious people.

According to the custom of his country Li Hung Chang while traveling is always carried from the train to his carriage, or from his carriage to the train, as the case may be, in a big plush sedan chair. Since he has been in this country four policemen have been assigned to do the carrying. In New York and Philadelphia four of the "finest" on the force were selected. In Washington, however, the nation's capital, where special honor should have been bestowed upon the great Chinese statesman, the "coppers" refused to carry the royal chair, and four employees of the Pennsylvania railroad had to be pressed into service.

General Roger, who was delegated by President Cleveland to look after and arrange the stay of Li Hung Chang during his stay in Washington, is very much provoked by the incivility of the "coppers," and he may request Major Moore, the chief of police, to discharge the unfaithful members of his force.

The campaign liar is abroad. He is to be found everywhere. He is largely in evidence about the headquarters of the various campaign committees in Washington. A seeker after information as to who is going to be elected president can be accommodated at any of the headquarters. If he is a Republican and wants to hear good news about McKinley he can find it at the Normandie Hotel. Anybody around the hotel from Chairman Hobcock down to the elevator boy, will tell him that McKinley has a "dead clinch" on being elected. If the aforesaid individual is a Democrat he can get all the consolation he wants by calling at the annex of the old Wornley Hotel on Fifteenth street. Any of the spellbinders to be found hanging around there will tell him that Bryan and Sewall are "winners hands down." In the Corcoran building, a little further down the same street, the searcher for a straight tip can get just what he is seeking for. He will be told by Chairman Butler that Bryan and Watson will "get there with both feet."

So, the aforesaid individual is no wiser after he has made the rounds of the various campaign headquarters than he was when he started out in search of facts. He simply "pays his money and takes his choice."

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS. The Democrats of Pennsylvania do not seem to be any nearer to the harmony point than they were at the close of the Chicago convention. They are still fighting like dogs and cats, and the result will be that when the votes are counted on November 3d there will scarcely be enough of the old carcass left to make a respectable funeral. Reports of dissatisfaction with the new bosses at the head of the state organization are heard on every hand. Chairman Garman did not create a very favorable impression among the Democratic managers when he was here this week. He is regarded as too slow in getting down to work. In the language of a well known Democratic politician from the Keystone state, Mr. Garman "needs a little more ginger and push about his mind to make an active and aggressive campaign."

If Senator Tillman can be induced to make a tour of the entire state McKinley's majority ought to be almost unanimous. If the Democratic managers in Pennsylvania know their business they will have all Tillman's engagements cancelled. The farmers and workmen in that state are not accustomed to hearing blasphemy expounded from the stump, and as that is Senator Tillman's "long suit" he is very likely to receive a "fracture" where ever he speaks. The Republicans can well afford to pay the traveling expenses of such blatherskites as Tillman and keep them in the state from now until the close of the polls on November 3d next.

For political foxes, Gorman and Hill, are still staying pretty close to their holes. They anticipate a long, hard winter and are losing no time chasing phantoms, but are laying in a good supply of nuts to crack while their free silver friends will be left shivering in the cold after the November blizzards strike them.

Secretary Gardner of the Democratic Congressional committee, looks enough like President Cleveland to be his twin brother and is often mistaken for the Sage of Buzsard's Bay. It is understood that Brother Gardner is slated for one of the district commissionerships in case Bryan is elected president.

DURVEA. There will be a meeting held at the Pullman hall on Wednesday evening, Sept. 9, for the purpose of organizing a McKinley and Hobart club. All are invited that will support the Republican party and its principles at the November election.

MELANCHOLY WOMEN. AFRAID SOMETHING DREADFUL IS GOING TO HAPPEN.

How a Little Baby Girl Rolled the Clouds Away.

Of course a woman will naturally see the dark side of everything when tortured by some form of female disease, which her doctor cannot or does not relieve. No wonder she is melancholy when head and back ache, pains run through the whole body and loins, nerves are weak, stomach out of order, digestion poor, sense of fullness and bearing-down, poor sleep and appetite, always weak and tired, irregular menstruation, whites, etc.

She probably is not so fortunate as to know that all female ailments are indicated by these never failing symptoms, and are controlled by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; all female weaknesses quickly disappear by its use. It has been the thinking woman's safeguard for twenty years, and all druggists sell large quantities of it because it can be relied upon.

Still another woman speaks: "I wish you would publish my name with your testimonials. I want every one to know that your Vegetable Compound has made me well and strong. I sing its praises all the time. When I was first married I was very weak and had female troubles badly; Oh, I was so weary, sick and melancholy, but the Vegetable Compound built me up, and now I have a dear baby girl, and I am so happy. No home is complete without a dear little baby and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to roll the clouds away."—Mrs. Geo. CLAUS, 25 Danforth St., Buffalo, N. Y.
