DEATH OF MR. HACKETT.

His Demise Very Sudden--Will Be Buried at Delphi, N. Y.

John Hackett, brother of the lat Mrs. E. E. Hendrick, died very suddenly yesterday morning at the residence of Mr. Hendrick, on Lincoln ave-

His death was due to apoplexy, from which the deceased has been a sufferer for several years. After rising and has returned home. eating a hearty breakfast, Mr. Miss Minnie Simm went into the house after finishing and plained of not feeling well. He became suddenly worse and a physician was among those who joined the sent for, but though he worked hard he to Toronto, Canada, today. was already beyond the power of human

The deceased was born in England in 1815. At an early age he came to this country and in 1837 was married to Miss Mary Sheldon, of Auburn, N. Y. Later he came to this city, which has since been his home. During his life here he made many friends who will be greatly grieved to hear of his death. Mr. Hackett is survived by a daughter and three sisters: Mrs. William B.

A Park Seat Stolen.

Our policemen must be extremely vigilant at night to let one of the seats in the park be stolen almost from under their noses. It would seem almost impossible that anyone could have taken a heavy seat like the one missing and carried it through town without detection. Other damage was done about the park, as some handsome plants were

THE BLUES.

A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF THE DREADFUL FEELING.

What Is Meant by This Form of Acute When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way :-She has been feeling "out of sorts" for some time; head has ached, and back also; has slept poorly: been quite nervous, and twice; head (() dizzy, and heart has beat very fast; then that bearing-down feeling.

Her doctor says, "cheer up, you have dyspepsia; you'll be all right soon." But she doesn't get "all right." She grows worse day by day, till all at once she realizes that a distressing female cor aint is established. fier doctor has made a mistake. She has lost faith in him; hope vanishes; then comes the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting BLUES. Her doctor, if he knew, should have told her and cured her, but he did not, and she was allowed to suffer. By chance she came across one of Mrs Pinkham's books, and in it she found her very symptoms described and an explanation of what they meant. Then she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, feeling that she was telling her troubles to a woman. Speedy relief followed, and vigorous health returned. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the story recited above is the true experience of hundreds of women, whose letters of gratitude are to be found on file in Mrs. Pinkham's library.
