WEST SIDE EVENTS.

Accident to Roger Jones Which May Prove Beneficial—James-Wilkins Nuptials—Personal Mention.

Roger Jones, of North Lincoln avenue, had his right leg broken at 8:30 o'clock yesterday by an accident in the Fine Brook mine, and as it happens, this accident has its good consequences. Seven years ago Mr. Jones had the same leg broken by a fall of roof of the same mine. The bone did not knit properly, and Mr. Jones has been troubled with a stiff leg since the first fracture. The accident of yesterday was from a runaway empty car. The car struck Mr. Jones upon the leg, knocking him to the side of the mine. He was taken to his home and Dr. Reynolds was called. The new fracture is in exactly the same place as the old one, and the physician states that when the present injury is healed Mr. Jones will be better off than he was before, owing to the manner of the new fracture.

William J. Williams, of Deckers' court, was injured by a fall of ore while at work last night at the Mount Pleasant mine. He went to his home that evening, thinking that the injury was but a slight one, and at the usual hour retired. He slept soundly and at 5 o'clock a. m. Saturday he tried to get out of bed, but found that he could not move. Dr. Beckwith was called. The physician's examination found that two ribs in Mr. Williams' left side had been fractured by the fall of the day before. Mr. Williams is now resting easily.

Bert Simmonds, a 11-year-old boy, whose parents live on Chestnut street, fell down the stone steps at No. 14 school Wednesday and sustained a bad cut on the forehead. This is the first accident at these particular steps.

JAMES-WILKINS NUPTIALS.

The wedding of Miss Lulu James, formerly an attaché at the Albright library, and Walter Wilkins, of Luzerne street, occurred at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Jane James, of 121 South Lincoln avenue. When the ceremony began Professor Silas Rosar struck the last strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bride and groom were escorted by Mr. and Mrs. Gladys Jones, flower girl, and the ceremony was performed when the bride and groom, unattended, had reached a bower of ferns and flowers in the center of the parlor. Rev. Thomas Bell, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, read the marriage rites. He was assisted by Rev. D. Jones, of the First Welsh Congregational church. The bride wore a handsome white gown and carried roses. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives of the families and intimate friends who had witnessed the nuptial. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins left on the 2:45 Jersey Central train for New York and Philadelphia. Both bride and groom will return and will make their home with the bride's mother, on Lincoln avenue. Mr. Wilkins is very favorably known about the West Side. He is quite influential in the politics of the Fifth ward. Both bride and groom will work at the Plymouth Congregational church.

Among the out of town people at the wedding were: Hector James, now of Orange, N. Y.; Miss Cora Williams, of Catskill, and Miss Greif, of Montrose. As the carriage with Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins in it rolled down to the Central railway station the populace was treated with the following painted on a canvass stretch on the rear of the vehicle: "Bryan loves silver; McKinley loves gold; but we love one another."

He called Thomas Allen and asked that gentleman this question: "Which do you prefer, Mr. Allen, to apologize to my wife or to suffer legal prosecution for your entrance into my house last Monday?" Mr. Allen said he'd apologize, and he did. Then Mr. Reynolds gave up the

FRIDGID ENTHUSIASM.

Exactly twenty-seven men and one boy made up last night's meeting of the West Side Bryan and Sewall club in Stetter's hall on North Main avenue. The meeting was an important one. The twenty-seven were there to effect, among other things, permanent organization. This they did, with the following result: Jacob Frank Hammon, president; William York, formerly associated with the Populists, vice president; Charles Canavan and P. J. Farrell, secretaries; L. M. Bunnell, treasurer. J. D. Deitrick, chairman of the executive committee, appointed at the last meeting, offered a constitution and by-laws to the club. These were adopted with only one change. That was in regard to "entertainment." The original by-laws made the "entertainment" come in the forepart of the meeting. The chair suggested that the "entertainment" come at the close of the meeting so that the members might be induced to remain until the end. After the regular business C. Ben Johnson gave an address.

It was a charitable idea on the part of Mr. Crump, and Mr. Williams, the superintendent at the home, humanely permitted the concert. The trip home was begun shortly before midnight.
