one conclusion; that the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 will place us on a silver basis in the United States, drive gold from circulation, and that, too, without asking the consent of any other nation.

In the December number of the North American Review, 1891. I wrote an article by request of the publisher, on the working man and free silver. Up to that time I had given no attention to the subject, and in writing the paper I was guiled largely by statements made by Senator Stewart of Nevada, that at the behest of the owners of gold "silver was secretly and stealthily demonstized." When that article appeared, John Jay Knox, who was the sub-comptroller of the treasery in 1873, wrote me, and among other things

"Frederick A. Luckenbach, esq.—Dear Sir: During the canvass of 1892 I saw, in the western papers, what purported to be an affidavit made by you before the clerk of the Supreme court of Colorado. The affidavit gave the details of an interview between yourself and Earnest Seyd, of London. I inclose with this a copy of that affidavit and request that you certify to me over your own signature whether it is the one you swore to. Do me the favor to return it with your answer, for, as you see, I have marked it so that I may continue the thread of an investigation I am prosecuting upon this subject. Mr. Miller, clerk of the Supreme court of Colorado, has been kind enough to send me a similar one and a certificate stating that it is genuine. Assuring you that I will make good use of the document and thanking you in advance for your favor, I remain.

Like Many Another Man He Was Decived by Plausible Statements
Which Proved Upon Investigation to be Devoid of Truth-McKinley
as a Friend of the Workingman.

Following is the text of the speech iellvered by Terrence V. Powderly at Cleveland, O., Sept. 19:

It appears that no little importance is attached to the fact that I at one time favored silver. So much has been said about the matter that you will, I hope pardon me for briefly alluding to it in passing. It is a fact that I favored silver, and it is also true that I also receive that at that it will be the currency of the United States, It is not true that I ever made speeches on the question. It was in the position which a groat many of our free silver advocates now find themselves in I did not fully under stand the question. That I may be opposed to silver is the ratio of 16 to 1. I will confess that at that it mere than I was interposition, that the free and unlimited coilings of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. I will confess that at that it mere than position which a groat many of our free silver advocates now find themselves in I did not fully under stand the question. That I may be opposed to silver is the ratio of 16 to 1. I will confess that at that it is not seen studying, and if he has he can, as an honest man, come to but one conclusion; that the free and unlimited coilings of silver is the ratio of 16 to 1. I will place us on a silver basis in the United State, and the question. That I may be opposed to silver is not so important as that Mr. Bryan, in his letter of acceptance, is norse the question. That I may be opposed to silver is not so important as that Mr. Bryan, in his letter of acceptance, is norse the question of 16 to 1. I will place us on a silver basis in the United State, and the question of the order of acceptance, is not of the contract sufficiently strong to escape being ruled out of cort he, Mr. Seyd, should have vis-ted America before the blit had been in-iroduced, acted upon and passed.

But if I have changed my views what shall we say of the Democracy? The Democrats of Pennsylvania assembled at Allentown last April, nominated a ticket and adopted a platform. In the platform they said: "We are unalterably opposed to the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1." The Democrats of New Jersey met a few months ago and adopted a similar platform. The Democrats of Maine held their state convention and adopted a platform with words bearing the same construction, Then came the Chicago convention, at which Mr. Bryan in a hurricane of words blew himself into the nomination for the presidency and we now find a change in all of the platforms of the states I have named. Two weeks ago the Pennsylvania Democracy met at Harrisburg and proved that they were alterable by changing their platform to favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio which they denounced but four months before. The Democracy of New Jersey and of Maine followed suit.

Democracy of New Jersey and of Maine followed suit.

The individual may change quickly, but where three whole states change so suddenly it cannot be conviction, education or a study of the question which brought about the change. Four years ago the People's party adopted a platform similar to that on which Mr. Watson, of Georgia is now running alone. That platform favored the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 15 to 1, and nearly levery man in our eastern states and in many of our western states who are now shouting for Bryan were then bitterly denouncing the platform which they now profess to believe in. It is not so much the money question as the work question which we are to settle, for if we settle the work question by opening our mines, mills and shops the money question will settle itself. In this campaign, as in others, no little mud is being thrown, but up to the present time none of it has been aimed at the standard bearer of the Republican party, William McKinley, The attempt is made to show that some of those who favor him have been oppressors of labor, but how about Mr. McKinley himself? Let me read to you a letter received from a neighbor of his, and then judge:

"I have been recording secretary of Chapman Local assembly lif. Knights of Labor, for the past sisteen years. That assembly was organized twenty years ago and has never left or ceased to work during all of that time. I read with great interest your Cooper's union address, and inasmuch as you have champloned the sound money principle in behalf of labor, I deem it fit and proper that you should be informed of the true connection William McKinley has with labor, for I am a resident of the same county with him, and I have had the pleasure of his acquaintance since boyhood. In 1875, when the coal miners of the Massillon district were struggling for justice, trouble arose and in one of the mines where blacklegs were employed it resulted in what some people were pleased to call a riot. A large number of miners, myself among them, was arrested for riot. We were then without a cent to secure legal advice to assist us in our hour of distress.

M'KINLEY A PRIEND.

"Major McKinley, then a practicing attorney at Canton, our county seat, was approached by our committee and informed of our true condition financially and other wise. He at once said: 'I will take charge of your case and do the best I can for you.' The result was he had us all acquitted except one, and that one while sentenced for one year, was pardoned after serving four months through the direct influence of Major McKinley. When we resumed work and had contributed what money we could spare from our first pay to make a part payment to McKinley for his excellent legal services in our behalf, he inquired of our committee if they had called on his associates in formed in the negative, he said: 'Boys, take what money you have and pay them as far as it will go, and my services, knowing your circumstances, will cost you nothing.'
"It was then that Major McKinley was "Major McKinley, then a practicing at as far as it will go, and my services, knowing your circumstances, will cost you nothing.

"It was then that Major McKinley was given a mortgage on the friendship of the Missilion miners, that continues to remain on record. His respect for laboringmen has been practical, for he has got into our mines and selected men from our ranks to appoint to responsible positions, thereby proving that he is not the man to forget his laboring friends, Remember in this connection that I am not one of his appointees to office, directly or indirectly. I giory in McKinley from the fact that he never despised an honest laboring man, no matter how or where he finds him. I have proven this to be true to my full satisfaction, and the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. (Signed) William Finley."

I have received scores of letters approving of my course, but that one seems to describe the friendship of laboringmen for McKinley so well that I give it to you just as it came to me.

Questions which every honest farmer, every laboring man and every wage-carner should consider before casting his vote are, did the fall in the commercial price of sliver change the price of articles entering into use in every hone, or did the wizard invention through improved machinery simplify methods of production and competition so far as to bring about these results? Let me compare the prices of articles in use in 1870 and today.

Professing to be a patriotic citizen I am opposed to the United States government going into bankruptcy voluntarily with the intention of settling with our creditors at 33 cents on the dollar. Who are the creditors of this nation? Every man and woman who has something to buy or sell, and particularly every man and woman who works for a living. From the minute a man or woman engages in labor until that labor is paid for he or she is a creditor, and knowing the hopes and aims of honest labor I believe that the only coin which will be satisfactory or acceptable will be the coin worth 190 cents on the dollar in gold in every part of the earth.
