Desperate Runaway on the Elmhurst Boulevard---William Price, Sr., and T. M. Miller Badly Injured.

William Price, sr., aged 73 years, the South Main avenue undertaker, and T. M. Miller, age 60 years, the Lackawanna avenue dealer in undertakers' supplies, were both sectionally injured at 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the runaway of a horse which they were driving down the Elmhurst boulevard.

Mr. Price's injuries consist of the dislocation of the left shoulder and a fracture of the left fore-arm, cuts upon both bands and graces leady bruises. both hands and severe body bruises.
Mr. Miller had one rib of the left side of his body broken. Both are now lying as comfortably as possible in their West Side homes, Mr. Miller on Washburn street and Mr. Price on South Mela avenue.

The accident happened in plain view of Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Price. The party had been to Elmburst and were on the way home. The two gentlemen were in a single buggy drawn by a powerful black horse and the ladies powerful black horse and the ladies were in a surrey, a conchiman helding the reins. When the Erie and Wyoming Valley railroad, near Nay Augpark, was reached, Mr. Miller, who was driving the black horse, drew up to let a train pass. The horse was known to be of a fractious disposition, Immediately after the first train another followed. This second train had an engine at both ends.
