ADMINATION FOR LISBON.

But it is not my purpose, centilemen, to address you upon political questions this afternoon, as this time and more in the nature of a visit from old and valued friends, and as such I address you. Love for home and ancestral thes have a place in every human heart. It is horn in every manly breast and is hoppded by no clime or country or nationality or race. It is as universal as the newtens and as fixed as the stars. It is a sentiment which lies at the formdation of society and family and cements and strengthens both. It welds the family together in bonds of affection. It elevates and enriches and purifies every home and makes citizenship and country better and nobler. (Applause.) It keeps home influences almost immortal and keeps the example of mother and father ever present with their children as their sheet anchor of safety in the tempting and tempestous seas of life. This call brings to my mind thoughts of my own blood and kindred who were among the ploneers of your town and who have long since parsed away, but are still remembered by your older citizens. It is not atrange therefore tigat in a peculiar sense I have ever had and still have a strong and affectionate feeling for the old town of Lisbon. The old and honored names associated with its early history are as familiar to me as the primer of my boyhool. None of the early Ohio communities were more fortunate than yours in the character of the men who built up your town and sustained it. Your old business men were among the ablest in the state and your lawyers and preachers and doctors were famous—some of them not only beyond the lines of your country but beyond the limits of the state. (Applause.)

I have always cherished the fact that my grandfather was one of the earliest schoolmasters of your oid village and the beloved teacher of many of your most distinguished and useful citizens. I have alschoolmasters of your oid village and the beloved teacher of many of your most distinguished and useful citizens. I have always counted it an honor, a special honor, that it was given to me to represent the congressional district in which my immediate ancestors on both sides had lived for three generations. It has been to me always a special distinction to have had the confidence and trust of your community, which has ever been to me a source of strength and inspiration. (Great appliause.) schoolmasters of your old village and the

WHEN CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE.

I may be pardoned if I recall in this presence that in 1876, when first a candidate for congress, your town, after a fight quite as stubborn as you had ever experienced, game me a majority and that I received a majority also from your county, which practically settled the contest between myself and my competitors for the nomination for congress and sent me for the first lime to the national house of representatives. I have wondered many times since why you should have given me that majority against my distinguished competitors whose experience and age were much greater than mine and whose services would have conserved your interests quite as well as mine. For that early manifestation of your trust in me as a young man you have and will ever have my increasing gratitude. Great applause.) I am deeply touched by the generous words of your honorable representative and spokesman and heartily reciprocate the kind sentiments which he has expressed. I cannot forbear to congratulate you upon the splendid choice you have made for your representative in the person of Mr. Taylor. Great applause.)

A congressional district does the right thing when it sends a young man to the national house of representatives and you have selected one so able and so experienced I am sure every interest of yours, large or small, will be carefully, ably and conscientiously guarded. (Applicates.)

Your presence here indicates that you have not lost interest in Republican principles and that you are quite as much concerned, if not more concerned, in their triumph this year than you have ever been before. I will not venture to enter upon any political discussion this afternoop, feeling certain that the good old county of Columbiana has already determined that her votes shall be given for a sound currency and monuestioned particular. cy and unquestioned national credit, in American protective tariff and reciprocity, the supremacy of law and for the peace and order of society. (Great cheering.)

Major McKinley's reception from his old friends and constituents was re-markable for its fervor.

On replying to this, Mr. McKinley On replying to this, Mr. McKinley said:

I am glad to meet the ministers of the African Methodist Episcopal church. That you should have set asde the business of your annual conference long enough to pay me the visit is an honor which I greatly appreciate and shall always remember. It is a matchiese civilization in which we live—a civilization that recognizes the common and universal brotherhood of man. (Great applause.) It is a glorious constitution, the American constitution under which we live, that secures to every citi. Zen beneath our flag absolute freedom of religious doctrine and privilege and belief; a constitution that recognizes neither ereed, nor color, nor race, nor nationality nor caste, nor classes (great applause.) but protects and defends all alike and accords to each civil and religious liberty. The history of your race is one of wonderful progress under the most trying difficult circumstances. You have demonstrated your pattence and patriotism, courage and intelligence, your willingness to sacrifice for your country and sustain its honor at all times and under all circumstances. (Applause.) You have made marked and commendable strides in the field of education and learning. Your educational institutions, public and private, are scat-tered all over the country and within their walls you are giving generous and liberal education to the men of your race, fitting them for the responsibilities of life and equipping them for good citizenship. (Ap-plause.)

He Has Been Offered a Sum of Money to Break the Deadlock.

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 29.—12.30 a. m. The Republican congressional conference is still in apparently hopeless deadlock. Dozens of conferences have been held throughout the night and another will be held at 1 o'clock this morning, when Hon. J. L. Hicks de-clares a final vote will be reached. If at that hour the nomination does not come to him, he asserts that he will throw his delegates to Koser, of Somerset county. This declaration is scoutset county. This declaration is scouted by all the other candidates, who claim that Hicks is playing a bluff.
The general belief exists that the deadlock will not be broken until late tomorrow afternoon.

CROW NOMINATED.

Selected by Independent Republicans of Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Sept. 28.-At a meeting tonight in the Academy of Music of Independent Republicans, Alexander Crow, jr., a manufacturer, was nomi-nated for sheriff in opposition to the regular Republican nominee.

Mr. Crow was defeated for the shrievalty nomination at the regular convention and his friends believing that the methods taken to nominate his opponent were not as honorable as should have been have determined to run him in opposition to the party candidate. Mr. Crow has been endorsed by many business men of his party.

RIOTING CONTINUES AT LEADVILLE

Night Fusilade in Which Troops Drove Off Strikers.

THE CAMP UNDER MILITARY RULE

last Monday morning while turning a hose on the fire at the Coronado mine occurred Sunday. It was the longest funeral procession ever seen here. The funeral of William Higgins, who was literally filled with buckshot while engaged in the attack on the Coronade mine, was from the same church and immediately following that of O'Keefe Almost the entire Miners' union,including fully 1,500 people, followed the remains to the cemetery.

With the camp practically under military rule and pickets stationed at vari-ous points over the large area it is often difficult to obtain definite news of the skirmishes that occur nightly be tween the rioters and the soldiers,

The shooting at the Bon Air prop-erty, which created much excitement last night, proved to be no more serious than a dozen other bloodless bat-tles which have occurred. Four shots were at first fired at pickets, who returned the fire. Some comrades came to their aid, and a dozen or so shots were exchanged, without effect. The shooting at the Bohn mine was done by a sentry because a man refused to obey the order to halt. Other shots heard during the night are thought to have a similar origin.

All sorts of rumors are in the air all the time. It was reported last night that another party of Missouri miners would arrive today, but this is posttively denied by the mine managers
