PARADE TO HOLLENBACK.

At the Wilkes-Barre station a large delegation of Wilkes-Barre Elks were on hand to meet their Scranton breth-ren. They had Alexander's band along and Rauer's men immediately consoli-dated with them. Badges were passed around among the visitors and the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton Elks, head-

Mr. Wright introduced Dr. P. F. Gunster, of Scranton, who spoke as fol-Exalted Ruler and Brother Elks: It is no part of my duty as district deputy grand exalter ruler, to make any formal remarks on this impressive and memorable occasion. Yet I cannot leave without paying my humble tribute of respect to one whose faithful and unselfish devotion to the cause of Elkism entitles him to a foremost place in the circle of true benefactors. Like all sincere lovers of makind his friends with melting words or fading promises. His deeds eloquently tell the motives that guide and the impulses that guide and the impulses that guide and enduring gift which we today desticate in honor of our moble order will forever endear him to his fond brothers in the world of Elks. How always hold in kind remembrance the cordial and generous treatment extended them by their mother lodge, I congratulate you upon the consummation of the great achievement you have today witnessed and which distinguishes you as members of the leading lodge of the or-Exalted Ruler and Brother Elks: It is

der. We of Scranton rejoice with you, participate in your partionable pride and outdo you, if possible, in our admiration and veneration for him who is responsible or this glorious occasion-your peerless xalted ruler, Brother Ben Dilley.

Wesley E. Woodruff was the next speaker and he delivered a very schol-arly oration. His address in part was as follows:

MR. WOODRUFF'S ORATION.
We are met today to consecrate a plot of ground for the burial of the dead and to unveil a monument that will forever overshadow the place. The inception of the scheme and the completion of it are the work as one may say of one person. He had his inspiration in a native generaciety, in a long cherished purpose—a purpose that was encouraged and shared by one who attended him for long years in the journey along life's pathway but who was a short time ago snatched away from life to walt for her loved ones until the morning shall break and the shadows shall flee away.

Went Down on a Special Train.

From a Staff Correspondent, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 30.—At the foot of a gently sloping hill in Hollenback cemetery is a plot of ground that will hereafter be known as "El's Rest," It is a plot 80x40 and today it was dedicated with most Impure her final home, is in the center of a lever plain at the foot of the hill and in the middle of the plot is a limense boulder of constomerate rock in its natural state which weighs twenty two tons. This serves as the pedestal for an artistically wrought brozes
statue of an elk, heroic size.

The outlook from the "Rest" toward the west is most inviting. Within one hundred yaris the Susquelannan munitar and arcerton to the rolling hills in the antumunal costume of purple forming a pic turesque and striking background.
Twas on such a scene worthy of a master's brash that the thousands we
participated in today's exercises gazed
while the bright autumn sunnight
of the right and the autumnual costume of purple forming a
pic turesque and striking background.
Twas on such a scene worthy of a
master's brash that the thousands we
participated in today's exercises gazed

LEAD KINDLY LIGHT.

The quartette sang Newman's "Lead Kindly Light' and Frank W. Wheaton was introduced by Mr. Wright as the next orator. During the course of his remarks be paid the following tribute to Mr. Dilley.

The generosity of one of our number has made it possible for us to make sure this burial place to every member of the order in good standing who may need to be buried here or who may express a desire that this shall be his final resting place, and here, in the audience of the people, it is our pleasure and our pride to proclaim that fact.

Naturally our feelings prompt us first of all to express our admiration for the noble the unselfish qualities of heart and miad which conceived and carried into effect this generous gift. Two things have been especially cau-tioned about by the donor.

First—To say nothing about him personally.
Second-To make my oration short.

First—To say nothing about him personally.

Second—To make my oration short.

If I may not therefore voice my admiration for the qualities which I have referred to, if I may not in words express that appreciation of the gift which I know is in my heart, and the hearts of all who hear me, I may at leaht point to that beautiful monument and ask you to judge each one for himself, what manner of man it is who in these days of greed and desire for gaim, without solicitation from anyone, without one selfish motive or thought, has quietly planned and tolled and so wrought that the poor and the friendless might have the assurance that when the Dark Ages overtook them their bodies would have place of decent burial, and not the dissecting table and the knife. More practical charities there may be, but warmer heart for the fellowman who is down there is not, nor ever will be.

GEORGE S. FERRIS' ORATION.

Addresses will be delivered by Fred.

W. Fleitz and Milton W. Lowry, and by a number of the candidates for public offices. As this is the first meeting of the campaign all are cordially invited to attend.

Arrived there they found a number of seats reserved for them in front of the platform was erected just suiside of the plot about to be dedicator. At 2.5 Exalted Ruler Dilley organized the lodge and ex-Exalted Ruler Lieuth and the lodge and ex-Exalted Ruler J. Ridgway Wright from that time invested for Mr. Dilley. He said no great suidertaking should begin without prayer. He would ask Rev. W. D. Johnson to invoke the Divine Blessing. The crysman prayed that the spot capture them to greater works of love and mercy. The monument was then dedicated in accordance with the Elks' ritual in the name of Charity, Justice, Fidelity and Brotherly Love. monument stands is called Elks' Rest, and it is in every way suitable for the resling place and environments of the fine monument. It is eighty feet long and forty feet wide, not being, however, exactly rectangular in shape, and is sodded. Either end of the boulder rests on a small green mound, and on the northern side of the plot is a bronze step, 36x42 inches, on which is the following inscription: "Elks' Rest, Dedicated September, 1856." On either side of the step is a rock of several hundred pounds weight. Each is a fine specimen of the conglomerate species, and as they lie there, moss-covered, they look so surprisingly natural that one would think nature placed them there. There are also five other rocks of nearly the same size and sort around the edge of the plot at equal distances apart, one occupying each corner. The lot contains eight burial plots for eighty tombs. In it any of the local lodge of Elks who wishes may finally be laid to rest, and any other unfortunate brother who has suffered from the buf-fetings and the burdens of this life and who has nowhere to lay his head fo the last sleep, may here find that re-pose that life could not grant. These Elk burial lots are owned by

FUNERAL OF ANTHONY HORAN.

Remains Followed to the Grave by a Large Concourse of Friends.

An impressive and eagerly attended funeral was that of Anthony Horan yesterday, at Dunmore. There were very few of the larger towns in this region that were not represented. A particularly large delegation was that from Pittston where the deceased was from Pittston where the deceased was superintendent of the Pennsylvania company's mines. They came to Duncompany's mines. They came to Jun-more in a special train over the Erie and Wyoming Valley road. Among the occupants of the train were members of Branch 48, of the Catholic Mutual Benefit association, of Pittston. The company's mines in the latter city were the during the morning out of respect

Mc-Cabe, of Avoca, master of ceremonies. Others of the priesthood in the sanctu-ary were Very Rev. John Finnen, of Pittston: Revs. M. F. Crane, of Avoca; and P. J. McManus and J. J. B.

Avoca; and P. J. McManus and J. J. B. Feeley, of this city.
Rev. M. B. Donlan, of Dunmore, who was Mr. Horan's pastor, preached the sermon. The complete choir sang and there were solos by Miss Kate Mongan and Miss Sadie Dougherty, the former sang "Ave Maria" at the offertory and the latter "Rest in the Lord" as the casket was carried from the building. The pull-bearers were: Hon, W. H. The pall-bearers were: Hon. W. H. Rutledge, of Pittston: Dr. J. B. Garvey, J. J. Healey, John Clark, A. L. Bryden and C. S. Farrer, of Dunmore.
