The principal feature is Bergman's celebrated "Swiss Village," so perfect and life like in diverse movements, so ingenious in construction and so complicated in mechanical devices that visitors look and study with wonder and astonishment at the results of human genius and patience.

since his very abrupt departure several anonths are.
Davis, it will be remembered, was arrested for pointing firearms and threatening to shoot a man with whom he had some trouble in the Conway house. When his case came up for trial he sent word to his attorney that he was sick in the Moses Taylor hospital and could not attend. A certificate setting forth that Robert Davis was a patient at the hospital induced court to allow a postponement of the trial.

When, however, an investigation proved that it was Robert Davis, fath-er of the notorious Bob who was at the hospital, the court officials were very much exercised and proposed to make it warm for the deceiver. Davis evidently got word of the court's dis-covery and skipped out, leaving his bondsman to settle for his absence. Since his departure he has become the father of twins who, with their mother, a young South Side girl, are now at th Hillside Home.

Epsom salts would not do that to him. He had an analysis of the contents of the package made and found that it contained saltpetre instead of salts. Mrs. White was called as a wit-ness, and she detailed the fact that her husband came home from school that day and had the medicine prepared. She described the pain which he suf-

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

It Will Be Opened by Faculty of St. Thomas' College.

It has been deemed expedient by the Faculty of St. Thomas' College to open a preparatory department in connec-tion with the commercial and classical departments to secure uniformity of grading in the upper classes, as it has been found almost impossible to do so when these are recruited from ungraded preparatory schools.

The evening classes conducted by the Xavier brothers have increased beyoud all expectations. The facilities ac-corded by the faculty have already been doubled, and still there is promise of a much larger attendance.

The lectures in logic and metaphysics for this term by Father MacGoldrick begin on Wednesday next, Oct. 7, and v. II be continued on Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7 to 8. The course this term begins with logic, and will be followed by lectures in ethics and psychology. The final lectures of the term will be given up to a comparative analysis of the Catholic and modern nationalist theories on the great scien-tific consulous. tiffe questions.

ANSWER MADE BY CORNELIUS SMITH

They Are Set Forth in Detail in His Book -- Closes by Reiterating the Statement That Everything He Has Done Was for His Client and Not with a View of Maligning the

Cornelius Smith yesterday served his answer to the paper book of the ap-pellee's attorney's, S. B. Price, James H. Torrey and E. C. Newcombe. In it e and his associate, A. H. McCollum

The following facts not known to respondent at the time the history of the case was written, are here stated as a part of the history of the case; On the morning of the preliminary hearing in the case, Myron Kasson, deputy prothonotary, and John G. McAskie, court reporter, called L. P. Weideman behind the jury box in the court room, where the following conversation took place.

Mr. Kasson said: Mr. Weideman you are mistaken as to the opinion you say Judge Gunster handed down.

Weideman replied: No, Mr. Kasson, I am not mistaken. You know you came to me with the opinion in your hand and said this will never do. I must see Burns and get the opinion changed; the judge has made a mistake.

Mr. McAskie then said: Mr. Weideman, whether you are mistaken or not we must stand together; this matter mist be fixed; you must acknowledge you are mistaken.

WHAT WEIDEMAN SAID.

WHAT WEIDEMAN SAID.

WHAT WEIDEMAN SAID.

Weideman replied: No. gentlemen, I am not mistaken and I will not falsely acknowledge that I am. Besides I have been to see both Judge Gunster and Judge Archbald and I told them that I was the person who informed Mr. Smith that an opinion discharging the rule to strike off his appeal in the Burns libel case was handed down, and that if I was called as a witness I would be obliged to say that such an opinion was handed down.

It is argued that the position of the

It is argued that the position of the court is that the opinion handed down was an opinion in the Frothingham case. If this is true why do they not prove it? Why did Judge Gunster go upon the witness stand and say so? Why did he not produce the opinion or at least account for its non-appearance? Why do they not call as witnesses some of the other lawyers that were present in court when the alleged opinion was handed down? These lawyers, like the learned Judge Gunster, deelined to come forward and testify. The respondent could not safely take the chances of forcing such men to testify against the alleged position of the court. But the court's alleged position being square in the face of the evidence it is thought that honor, duty and law, alike, compelled them to call as witnesses these attorneys, and especially so when Mr. Kasson, the witness that they did call, contradicted their alleged position in testifying. "My recollection is there was no opinion" (in the Frothingham case). It is also denied that Mr. Smith told the prothonotary to hold his check. He says he told Mr. Kasson he took exceptions to the arbitrators claims of $39 each and directed him to hold back $24 on each of them as he intended to appeal against paying for more than two days' pay.

ABOUT JUDGE ARCHBALD.

ABOUT JUDGE ARCHBALD.
Regarding Judge Archbald's statement that he called the case out of its regular order that it might be tried before an outside Judge. Mr. Smith says that if, as Judge Archbald states, he did this on account of the scandal the case had created, it would have been far better for him to have withdrawn Myron Kasson from the case and allowed some disinterested party to draw the jury, as up to that time Kasson was the only one charged with any wrong doing.

In addition to the eleven propositions in the original paper book often new ones are submitted in the appellant's answer:

1. That the court committed fundamental error in refusing to hear and determine in the first instance the respondent's motion to quash the proceedings.

2. That an attorney for anything done in defense of his client cannot be disbarred.

3. That the evidence of facts as claimed by the respondent is uncontradicted and as a legal consequence, conclusive.

4. That the facts proved in the case are all one way, and the inding of fact by the learned judges are all the other way.

5. That the criticism camplained of being made upon condition is not an offense.

6. That the writing of the letters to respondent was an honest effort to assert a vested right.

7. That the failure of the other side to produce the alleged Frothingham opinion or account for its non-production leaves them subject to the presumption arising from the suppression of material evidence.

arising from the suppression of material evidence.

8. Excepting for a contempt in the presence of the court, no court can create a jurisdiction for itself by its own statement of facts, put on the record without any proceeding as the basis of such record

 The proceedings from beginning to the end are in violation of natural justice and the law of the land. DONE FOR HIS CLIENT. In closing Mr. Smith reiterates that anything he did was done for his client and not with any view of ma-ligning the judiciary, Mr. Kasson or anyone else anyone else.

The argument on Mr. Smith's appeal from the rule disbarring him will be made before the supreme court in Pittsburg next week. The attorneys in the case leave for Pittsburg today.

These comedians have surrounded themselves with a score of clever performers, there being not a dry moment during its action, and fun reigns supreme from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Each character is represented truthfully and not over-

A genuine minstrel performance will be given at the Academy Monday night by Barlow Brothers' minstrels. Inc St. Paul Dispatch says of them: "The entertainment is one of the best ever given here. Every act is excellent and anything that might offend is vigor-ously excluded. The stage, for the first ously excluded. The stage, for the first part, was very tastefully set. The jokes were all fresh, not a single chest-nut being cracked. The vocalists are above the average, and the music excellently rendered by the orchestra. Harry Ward, "The next President of Minstrelsy," kept the house in a roar, while the work of Zella, the human frog, is the greatest novelty seen here in a long time." in a long time.

The attraction at the Davis Theatre, The attraction at the Davis Theatre, commencing Monday next, for three days, will be Hoyt's "A Bunch of Keys." It is the merriest lot of dainty nonsense ever presented on a stage. One can't help laughing at it, and after the performance we laugh at ourselves for laughing at the play. Well, Hoyt confesses that is what he writes for, he conceived the farce-comedy and gave us a new theatrical sensation. For this we are grateful and willing to admit that nothing is so delightful and admit that nothing is so delightful and refreshing as good nonsense.
