A few days ago the Times cited with glee the fact that President C. W. Cunningham, of the Central City Stone works of Newark, O., had agreed to advance the wages of his employees ten per cent.

The Visit to Canton. That more persons did not go from this city to Canton on Saturday was due, not to lack of transportation but to lack of means.

Those who did go—and from the two counties there were more than 300, with not a capitalist nor a prominent politician among them—were repaid by an enjoyable journey of exceptional scenic beauty in places and by a reception at Canton which may well be treasured among their most pleasant recollections.

Now that Wilkes-Barre has secured the next state firemen's convention, the question before the house is, What will she do with it? Where will she find hotel accommodations for the delegates? Fortunately, Scranton is near.

Straight to the Mark. In his speech at Syracuse last week Frank S. Black, the Republican candidate for governor of New York, gave another illustration of his aptness at connecting sound sense into luminous English.

The Tribune has received several communications from residents of Newton and South Abington townships complaining of the poor condition of the Providence and North Abington turnpike and also at the high tolls charged.

The government of the United States has found in its career on more than one occasion that a prompt recognition of the moral sense of its people and a just observance of the oaths of those entrusted with the highest public duties might have averted disasters which have left their marks upon the history of the whole earth.

avered just before the war, and the heroic deeds of soldiers will never cease to tell of the disasters which are the cowardice of that period entailed.

"We stand now in that precise position. The forces that are threatening the integrity of this country are those which have no proper place upon our soil. They are the forces of disorder and strife.

The city of Chicago averages about 30 murders a year and the hangman is kept busy disposing of the murderers, yet the number of homicidal crimes steadily increases.

The Labor Vote. One of the arguments put forth by advocates of the Chicago platform in support of their prediction that Bryan will win, is that large numbers of workmen, while pretending to be for McKinley and joining sound money clubs, will, in the privacy of the voting booth, mark their ballots for free silver.

The leading American newspapers have been spreading the belief that the strenuous McKinley and Hobart are overlooking and that their success is already assured.

A man by the name of George has just come to grief in Chicago through the improper use of the mails for the purpose of catching gullible heirs to mythical estates.

Nearly $50,000,000 in gold has come to this country from abroad since it became plain that free coinage could not win.

What Blaine Wrote About McKinley

The attempts of Mr. Bryan, Senator Teller and others on the free silver side to make it appear by garbled quotations that James G. Blaine was in sympathy with their present position elicits the following remark from Louis A. Dent, who was Mr. Blaine's private secretary for many years.

"Mr. Blaine believed that the gold supply would fall to answer the needs of the world's coinage, and he was therefore in favor of introducing the double standard by international agreement, and that purpose he maintained an agent in Europe during his last term as secretary whose business it was to encourage, foster and watch the development of the silver feeling.

"As a matter of fact Mr. Blaine was opposed to the unlimited coinage of silver by the United States. He held the irrevocable opinion that this country could not force silver as a monetary standard alone and side handed against the world, any more than Mexico, which had become practically bankrupt in the operation.

"Colonel A. L. Conger, Akron, Ohio. "My Dear Sir: Your favor received. I cannot take part in the Ohio campaign this year, for many reasons which I need not give. But I hope that no effort will be made to elect Mr. McKinley. His victory at this time is very important to the country and the Republican party.

"Mr. Blaine's relations with Mr. McKinley were the most pleasant and friendly character. Much effort has been expended to make it appear that Mr. Blaine was inimical to Mr. McKinley because of his letter to Senator Frye in 1891, in which he complained that the McKinley bill would not give to the United States a market for a barrel of flour or a pound of pork.

"The English Liberal party wants a leader who can lead. It will try its level best to induce Mr. Gladstone to get back into public life. He is still young enough to run away with the youngsters who are rattling around in his shoes.
