WEST SIDE EVENTS.

Loss Occasioned by the Fire at Lackawanna Avenue and Seventh Street. Difficulty in Extinguishing It.

Heaps of tea and coffee lie on the sidewalk in front of the gutted Hess building on Lackawanna avenue, which building on Lackawanna avenue, which suffered from fire yesterday morning; a complete story of which appeared in yesterday's Tribune. The building, a two-story brick veneer, is ruined. E. W. and William Hess, the owners, valued the property at $6,000. They carry insurance in the D. J. Evans agency for $3,500. J. T. Williams and D. B. Thomas, who under the firm name of J. T. Williams and company, used the first floor of the building as a stocking place for teas, coffees, spices, canned goods, etc., had insurance to stocking place for teas, coffees, spices, canned goods, etc., had insurance to the amount of $3,500 in the Evans agency. They claim that the stock destroyed was worth about $7,000.

'Mrs. May E. Bell, who kept a boarding house on the second floor, and Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Bissel, also tenants, lost all their household effects. Neither had insurance. The origin of the fire is still unexplained, though the supposition expressed in The Tribune's account is deemed the most plausible. Mr. Williams, of the firm, thought that the fire started on the second floor. The tenstarted on the second floor. The ten-ants contradicted this. They say that the flooring was heated from the fire raging beneath when they walked upon it in making their escape.

Mr. Williams stated to a Tribune re-porter that they was a fire in the stoy.

porter that there was a fire in the stove during Saturday, but that it was not replenished and was allowed to die out when the store was closed Saturday afternoon. There was no lighted gas jet in the lower apartment; neither is there any electric wiring. The fire started in the rear of the storeroom, which is par-tially divided by a partition, an arch connecting the two rooms. The stove is in the front part. This makes the origin more of a mystery.

The firmen under Chief Hickey made a determined effort to subdue the flames, yet it was 5.30 o'clock before taps were sent in. During the last few hours of the fire the work of the firemen was directed toward smothering the smouldering fire in the bales of tea and coffee. To do this it was necessary to remove the material to the side-walk, where it still is. Much danger was involved in fighting the flames. At any moment the threateningly weak brick wall was likely to tumble, burying the fire fighters becaute the most ing the fire-fighters beneath the mass. All day yesterday a large crowd gathered around the structure. A large quantity of cigars were ruined by the

STORY OF ARKANSAS LIFE.

Enacted by a Capable Company at the Frothingham Last Night. "Human Hearts" was produced at the Frothingham theatre last night by the Frothingham theatre last night by a company of artists whose work could scarcely be excelled, and, coupled with the splendid staging and beautiful scenery, it made one of the best performances of the season. The title of the play is very expressive and if "In-human Hearts" were added it would suggest the entire story. Contrasted with a dozen or more characters of a refined nature, sympa-thetic disposition and homely manners that are alternately pathetic and hu-morous are two as villianous and dia-bolical hearts as could be transferred. It bolical hearts as could be imagined. It is a tale of the Arkansas Hills. Tom is a tale of the Arkansas Hills. Tom Logan, a farmer and blacksmith of that country, is wedded to a beautiful New York woman, who has had a past notwithstanding her youth.
