MAJOR MCKINLEY'S REMARKS. Mr. McKinley spoke as follows: You have greatly honored me in having iorneyed so long a distance to bring as-surances of your good will. I do not take this call as in any sense personal to my-self, but rather as a tribute to the crules which for the moment I represent and to the great principles which the Republi-can party upholds in the pending presi-tial contest. It gives me pleasure to meet my old friend, your spokesman, with whom I served for years in the national house of representatives. It also gives me pleasure to meet and welcome you to my home and to say that I appreciate most highly your visit and the encouraging message which you bring. (Applause.) It was scarcely necessary to advise me that the people of the anthra-rite regions are in favor of the protective tariff. I have long known and appreciat-ed that fact, and sympathize with you in that sentiment. I believe in the great American doctrine which lies at the foun-fation of the law of self-preservation. I believe it is the duty of this government to encourage its own people and to pass such laws as will give them the highest prior (Great applause.) We have in this country nore free trade than in any other country of the world, but it is free trade anong ourselves (great applause.) with forty-five states and seventy millions. We believe in free trade than in any other country of promotion of the highest in-trest of our respective populations. We be heve in free trade in the United States in the same sense that we believe in the round of the system shead in the states in the same sense that we believe in the round of the system shead in the united States in the same strait on ald mustries of our round and reciproced obligations which be-ion is a great national family. New York, Oct. 13.—Wheat reached the highest point of the year today. Since last July prices have advanced over 13 cents a bushel. If the big Chicago bull leaders are to be believed they will go considerably higher yet, before the present bull campaign is over. This morning's opening was unusual

Still Another Big Gain in Prices Is Re-

Cent a Bushel.

This morning's opening was unusual-ly active, with an intense bullish feei-ing manifest among local traders. First prices were Pac, higher than last night and later there was a further advance. In addition to unexpectedly higher cables, foreign houses were good buy-ers. It was said that 150,000 bushels of wheat had been bought in San Fran-cisco for shipment to India. This has been one of the strongest bull cards of late. It is known that the weather throughout parts of India has been un-proptious for erops, and it is now throughout parts of india has been un-propitious for crops, and it is now claimed that she is buying wheat abroad, although an exporter herself. Many traders do not believe the re-ports, but in the present nervous state of the market, they have considerable of the market, they have considerable of the market, they have considerable pations, employments and industries of our people; the triumph of any section is the triumph of the other, all working to-zether for the general good. When we have free trade with other countries it should be in those products which we can-not produce ourselves and which we must have all in exchance for which those countries will take the products that we make and grow and we should put a duty upon those foreign products that compete with American products suffi-cient not only to supply enough revenue for the uses of the government, but suffi-cient to protect American people in their own occupation, against the products of the world. (Great cheering.) DOCTRINE OF THE TARIEF weight. The crops of the world this year are expected to fall far short of requirements, and the bulls declare prices are still below their legitimate level, based upon supply and demand. The corn market also shot up a cent a bushel at the opening today. Within the past few days it has developed remarkable strength, due to increasing speculative activity and a growing de-mand for 'shipment abroad. Silver continued to decline, as if pur-uing Mr. Bryan in its fatality. The suing Mr. Bryan in its fatality. The price at which commercial bars sold at DOCTRINE OF THE TARIER. DOCTRINE OF THE TARIFF. That seems to me to be the dictate of an enlightened patriotism, and it is cer-tainly one of the great fundamental doc-trines of the Republican party; and why should it not be so, my fellow-chitzens? We are one nation; we have one flag; we have a common destiny. The other na-tions of the world have their scenarate and independent political organizations for the purpose of working out for themselves the highest destiny poisible. They owe ho all-graduet to this government; they contribute nothing to its support, either in war or in pace; and if they are to come lato this country and connects with our people, we say that you can do it upon your products, and that a tariff will go toward sustaining this government and at the same time will be a defense to our own halovers and producers.
