Litigation in Alderman John's Court Over an Irish Setter Resulted in . John Mullarkey Going to Jail.

An "Trish setter" caused lots of trouble last evening in the office of Alderman John, of the Fourth ward, John Mullarky, was defendant in a case in which Thomas Evans, of Seventh-street, was the prosecutor, and the dog was the bone of contention. Evans claimed it so did Mullarky, and there you are. Here's Evan's story: He was walk-ing through Bellevue flats last week when he spied a dog 'in Mullarky.'

claimed if so did Mularky, and there you are. Here's Evan's story: He was walk-ing through Bellevue flats last week when he spied a dog 'in Mullarkey's yard. That dog was his once upon a time, and it had one day—about eight months ago—disapptared from the Evans kennel. This was the first time Evans kennel. This was the first time Evans kennel. This was the first time Evans had seen it since. To make sure that the dog was the same old setter, Evans entered Mullarkey's home and purchased some eggs. Without Mul-larkey's knowledge he examined the canine and it was his. Yesterday af-ternoon Constable John Davis carried a search warrant to Mullarkey's home and the dog and Mullarkey is home and the dog and Mullarkey is home and the dog and Mullarkey were seized and taken before the alderman. It was a tragic scene. The evidence, i. e.; dog was chained to the stove while the case was argued.

the case was argued. "Your no cattle to have a fine bred dog," said Evans to Muliarkey. "Nursed that dog since he was a kid," spurted Mullarkey. There were some of the choice bon nots of the occasion. At another time Mullarkey referred to a witness as a "hobo," and he called the constable a "hobo," and he called the distance of the second back "hobo," and the constable called Mul-larkey down. The case will go to court, and Mullarkey will go to jail in default of $200 bail. The dog went to Evans.

Va., Oct. 15.—The unveiling today of the monument pro-vided by popular contribution to the memory of Cornstalk, the famous Shawnee Indian chief who was assas-sinated by the soldiers while on a mis-sion of peace at the old fort here in the spring of 1777, was an occasion of uni-versal interest throughout the entire upper Ohio valley, and was witnessed by at least 5,000 people. Ex-Congressman Charles E. Hogg, who delivered the dedicatory address, paid high tribute to the bravery, nobil-ity and stanch loyalty of the dead chief, and deplored the lack of appre-ciation on the part of the descendants of the early settlers that has left his grave wholly unmarked and in total neglect for more than a century.

Pittsburg, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Harriet Walker, aged 60 years, and her daugh-ter Mabel, 26 years old, are dying at their home on South Highland avenue, from poisoning. Both made ante-mor-tem statements, according to which they became ill immediately after drinking tea purchased last Thursday evening. The tea has been analyzed and found to contain traces of tannate of copper. Another analysis is in progress. By this time a policeman came along and arrested her. She proved to be Jessie Ingles, an old woman who has no home, and she had found the door of the kitchen unlocked, went in and turned the draught on the stove and progress.

Mother and daughter are suffering intensely with no hope of recovery. Several other but less serious cases of polsoning have been reported in the neighborhood, in each of which the victims have traced their illness to tea drinking.
