GREATEST MEETING OF THE CAMPAIGN

It Will Be Held To-night in the Frothlagham Theatre.

ADDRESS BY THE GOVERNOR

General Latta, General Reeder, Colonel Harry Hall, Mayor Warwick of Philadelphia and Auditor General Mylin Will Also Be Heard. No Reserved Seats -- Lackawanna the Willes-Barre Parade.

Those Republicans who care for the fire and excitement of street political parades had their innings Tuesday night in this city and again last night at Wilkes-Barre, but today Governor Hastings, accompanied by a distinguished party of campaign orators, will be here to address an indoor meeting of as many persons as can jam themselves into the Frothingham theater. With the governor will be Mayor Warwith the governor will be Mayor Warwick, of Philadelphia; Generals Latta and Reeder, state officials; Colonel Harry Hall, of the governor's staff, and Auditor General Mylin.

members, Major Everett Warren, Reese G. Brooks, James Young, Thomas H. Dale, John T. Williams, John H. Fellows, Walter Christmas, H. C. Reynolds, W. K. Beck, Thurston Parker, Colonel E. H. Ripple, E. A. Bartl and Major T. F. Penman, will meet at the Hotel Jermyn at 12.45 o'clock this noon Hotel Jermyn at 12.45 o'clock this noon and drive in carriages to meet Governor Hastings and his party on the arrival of the 1.16 Delaware and Hudson train. They will be taken to the Hotel Jermyn for dinner. It had not been fully decided last night whether the governor would hold an informal reception during the afternoon, but such an event will probably take place from 3 to 4.30 o'clock.

WILL ESCORT THE GOVERNOR.

WILL ESCORT THE GOVERNOR.

The Junior Republican club, which is to escort the governor's party to the theater, will gather at the Central Republican rooms at 7 o'clock and with Bauer's band will begin a short street parade at 7.30 o'clock, reaching the Hotel Jermyn at 7.55.

Attorney H. C. Reynolds will be chairman of the meeting. In chairs on the stage will be 400 honorary vice-presidents to whom have been issued tickets which will gain the holders admission to the stage-door of the theater. There will be no reserved seats in the body of the theater, excepting for the Junior Republican club and the glee club.

the Junior Republican club and glee club.

In addition the speeches by Governor Hastings and those who accompany him, the programme includes campaign songs by the glee club, one of the songs being that composed by T. G. Osborne and dedicated to William Connell. Alfred Wooler, the tenor soloist of Elm Park church, will sing a campaign song of his own composition.

White the Frothingham meeting of two weeks ago attracted hundreds who could not gain admission, much larger crowds will doubtless try to get inside to hear the distinguished orators announced for tonight.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Election night arrangements at the Young Men's Christian association are being completed and satisfaction is assured the guests of the association on that night. A private wire will be put into the association auditorium and the messages from every state in the Union received on the sage, and announced by the operator. The reserved sent place whereby a seat is kept during the entire time for the ticket holder, whether he occupies it continuously or not, makes it very popular with business men, many of whom are applying for seats. The refreshment room and social room will be open from 10 p. m. to 2 a. m., in charge of Hanley, the caterer. An orchestra will be in attendance, and a number of first class entertainers will enliven the tedium of waiting with lots of hearty fun. Seats will be reserved at the Young Men's Christian association office, when requested over the telephone.

Meetings of Citizens' clubs were held last evening at Battle's, Corcoran's and Callery's halls in the interest of the can-didacy of William Connell.

MISS PHILADELPHIA'S VISIT.

One of the Best Entertainments This City Has Received.

Miss Philadelphia is a very likely sort of a Miss. Scranton fell in love with her at first sight, in the Academy of Music last night. She is pretty. Manof Music last hight. She is pretty, and ager Van Osten says her beauty cost $50,000. She is witty—Willie Collier is an earnest of that. Her musical ability is not her least accomplishment, and that is saying much for the music and the composer, Herman Perlet. And she has wealth, a rich store of the best things the up-to-date specialty world offers. All in all Miss Philadelphia more closely approaches perfection than any other entertainment of her class, seen here, her class being that, at present, universally popular, blending of farce, opera and extravaganza. Something the play possesses to the exclusion of its kind is a tale and a moral. The story runneth thus: Will-iam Penn, jr., an up-to date Philadel-phian and a direct descendant of the original William has a dream in which he is visited by his ancestor, who, af-AMES HABEAS CORPUS CASE.

Lieutenant Ezra S. Griffin Post, 139, G. A. The West Side board of trade, of which he was an active and influential member, was represented in the cortege by a large delegation. The directors of the West Side bank attended in a body, as did also Hyde Park lodge, No. 306, Knights of Pythias, of which he was a member.

VIEWED THE REMAINS. From one o'clock until three o'clock an almost continuous stream of people passed through the parlors to take a last look at the remains, which reposed in a carved oak casket, draped with a silk flag and covered and banked about with beautiful floral tributes.

Mr. Morris preached the funeral sermon in English,

DEATH UNEXPECTED. Few of those present, he said, thought they would attend the funeral of D. M. Jones. None of them believed it would be so soon. The lesson to be learned from this is that none should feel assured of a long lease of life or that one is given a right to expect that life will continue year after year until the scriptural three score years and ten are passed. The one Great Tencher has given the command to be ready. He didn't say "Be about to get ready." or even "Get ready." He said "Be ready."

Be ready at all times, the reverend speaker counseled. We justify our-selves to ourselves for not getting ready. We say how can we in the midst of life think of death? Each of us rather thinks of getting ready than of being ready.

He then read the fifth verse of the thirty-first Psalm: "Into thy hands I commit my spirit. Thou hast redeemed me, O Lord God of Truth!"

That is the preparation for death That is the preparation for death which we want, he said. We should be all able to use those words for merely as a quotation from the psaims, but as an outpouring from the heart. They were not the words of a dying man, but one in the midst of life and strength.

From this he pointed out that we have a spiritual life in Time as well as in Eternity and that our secular life is arranged in subserviency to our spiritual life; that there is but one end for man and our service armost each tend to man and our every act must tend to-wards that end as God is not a double dealer. FITTING TRIBUTE. He closed with a fitting tribute to he worth of the deceased and the orayer that He who had led the departed during such a life of activity would succor and ever watch over those from whom He has taken him. A prayer by Rev. Mr. Moffatt concluded the ser-vices at the church. Congregational singing interspersed the praying and preaching.

The casket was opened in order that those who had not been able to view the remains at the house might do so before they were forever confined to the earth. Then the cortege re-formed and proceeded to Washburn street cemetery where the Grand Army men and the Pythians conducted their re-spective ritualistic burial services.

"How-do-you-do?" said Deputy Clerk of the Courts Emil Bonn to Miss Julia Lorz, as she led the way into the marriage license room yesterday afternoon, accompanied by a beshful young man who afterward gave his name as Louis Dombroskey, of Wilkes-Barre, and his occupation that of a clerk.

"I don't know who you are young man," she replied in a not very gracious mood at all. She did not want her commood at all. She did not want her companion to know that she had been to the court house before. An examina-tion of the license docket showed that tion of the license docket showed that this was the third time Julia was there for a license since the 5th of the present month and each time she had a different young man with her.

First she came on the fifth and was accompanied by William Surnoski. They gave their residence as Lackawanna township. William had tears in his eyes when he got the license and told Mr. Bonn he was engaged to another girl before that, but she turned him down. He was telling how good Julia was to take him after he loved another, and he assured her there that his love for the former one was dead his love for the former one was dead and his heart was all hers. His happiness was of short duration, for on the ninth she came with Stanley Easkewicz and got a license. This time the place of residence given by both was Dickson City. Yesterday she
