SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

There will have to be a third day's play to decide the match between the golf teams of the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton Country clubs. The Scranton players won by eight up Saturday afternoon on the home grounds, making one victory for each club.

In the pairings of the twelve players the Scrantonians won in all but one instance, the scores being:
Brooks vs. Woodruff; Brooks 2 up.
Simpson vs. Harding; Simpson 5 up.
Watkins vs. Loveland; Loveland 10 up.
Folger vs. McLean; Folger 5 up.
Atherton vs. Warner; Atherton 1 up.
Jermyn vs. Stearns; Jermyn 4 up.

The weather was in brightness all that could be desired, but the temperature was hardly sharp and bracing enough for the best of work. Much had been done toward equipping the cozy club house and in putting finishing touches to its driveways and immediate surroundings. The interior was beautified with rugs, a blazing fire in the fireplace, palms and chrysanthemums. Lunch was served during the afternoon.

Among the Wilkes-Barre guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Butler Woodruff, Miss Conyngham, Miss Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Pollock, Miss Reynolds, Miss Parrish, Miss Lynch, Miss Doran, Miss Bennett and Miss Williams, and William Darling, John and Harry Harding, Frederick North Stearns, Loveland, Woodruff, O. Hillard, Bell, John A. Turner, Farnham, Bedford, Sturdevant, McLean, Warner.

The club ladies who conducted the entertaining were: Mrs. E. L. Fuller, Mrs. J. Ben Dimmick, Mrs. E. L. West, Mrs. C. D. Simpson, Mrs. Henry Bell, Jr., Mrs. H. W. Kingsbury, Mrs. H. P. Simpson, Mrs. N. G. Robertson, Miss Clara Reynolds, Miss Bell and the Misses Jermyn. At a table in the reception hall Miss Jennie Reynolds poured tea.

Miss Augusta Archbald gave a hallo'een party Saturday evening.
A ghost party was given Saturday evening by Miss Helen Stearns.

The following young people were entertained by Ruth Hanley at a hallo'een party Saturday evening: Anna Russ, Bessie Blair, Mamie Gearhart.

ORDINANCE NOT EXPLICIT.

The Auctioneer License Measure Is Ambiguous in Its Meaning.

According to promise, P. Waldron, the horse dealer, who was arrested Friday under the auctioneer ordinance, appeared before Mayor Bailey Saturday for a hearing. Mr. Waldron set up the defense that he was acting as a deputy of Auctioneer Eugene Strong, who holds the proceeds of the license, and consequently not liable to the penalty clause of the ordinance. Mayor Bailey questioned the right of an auctioneer to deputize his authority and allowed that the spirit of the measure is that one license will not allow an auctioneer to do business in two different places.
Mr. Strong and Mr. Waldron argued to the contrary, so to settle the matter the mayor asked City Solicitor Tetter for an elucidation of this phase of the measure and both sides agreed to abide by his opinion. The decision will be given next Wednesday.

MINERS IN PARADE.

The Scranton Contingent Captured the Fancy of New Yorkers.

In his report to the Philadelphia Press of Saturday's sound money parade in New York, Ralph D. Paine says: "At the head of the coal trade division marched thirty-five miners, whose blacked faces, pickaxes and lamps on their oilskin hats, made them one of the most popular features of the parade."

"Are they the people who are coming out of the earth to vote for Bryan?" He says so, but—"N't," observed a man attached to a big flag, a yellow chrysanthemum and five yards of golden ribbon.

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury in the Case of James Kearney.

Evidence was taken before Coroner Longstreet in his office on Wyoming avenue Saturday night in the case of James Kearney, of Phelps street, whose body was found Thursday morning in the reservoir near the blast furnace. The facts of his disappearance from home on the night of October 16 were detailed by members of the family. There was no evidence to doubt the theory that death was accidental, and the jury agreed on a verdict to that effect.

Albert, the 12-year-old son of John Jenkins, of Elm street, Drunkard street, was painfully injured Saturday morning in the upsetting of a wagonload of baled hay on which he was riding.
The wagon upset on account of one of the wheels falling into a deep rut in the road. He was brought home and was attended by Dr. Winters.

"It is my opinion that the American people will never by their votes deliberately put a stain upon the honor of the country or debate the money with which the people do business."—William McKinley.

THE IMPORTANT QUESTION.

From the Industrial News.

Isn't it more important to us people here in Scranton, and in the whole district, that we start all the mills and shops going in good shape than to tinker with the quality of the money we have in the country? The money comes with work, and for that matter that is the only way it does come, no matter what kind of money it may be.
Let the people of this district, then, cast their votes on the side which promises to be of the greatest benefit to them. No one has any confidence in the ability or willingness of the Democratic party to arrange a new tariff which would give us some kind of protection and enable us to run our industries. The Democrats know this and so talk of nothing but free silver. That is so we may forget about the tariff. Now the question is, are the people of this country going to forget about the tariff? Do they want to forget about it?

THE FESTIVAL OF THE REFORMATION

Union Services of Four Lutheran Congregations at Holy Trinity Church.

SERVICES WERE VERY IMPRESSIVE

Addresses Delivered in German, Swedish and English—The Church Was Packed to the Doors—It Was the Three Hundred and Seventy-ninth Anniversary of the Reformation—Extracts from the Sermons.

Union services in celebration of the three hundred and seventy-ninth anniversary of the Reformation were held at Trinity Lutheran church on Adams avenue yesterday morning at 10.30. Four congregations worshipped together, and the services were of an unusually impressive character. The church was crowded to the doors.

The congregations of Trinity, Zion, St. Mark's and St. Paul's churches were assembled, and the pastor of each was also present. Three addresses were delivered, one in German by Rev. P. F. Zickman, one in Swedish by L. Harald Kvelstedt, a member of Trinity church, and the third in English, by Rev. A. L. Ramer, Ph. D., of St. Mark's church. The liturgical service was conducted by Rev. E. L. Miller and Rev. N. Scheffer, of Greenville, Pa., who is here taking care of St. Paul's congregation, which is in the North End.

On October 31, 1517, Martin Luther laid the foundation of the Reformation by nailing his ninety-five theses against the sale of indulgences on the door of the castle church at Wittenberg. In about two weeks his teachings spread over Germany and in a month they reached the Pope at Rome. The anniversary of the Reformation is celebrated on the Sunday nearest to this date each year. In yesterday's service the hymns were in English, German and Swedish. The congregations of Trinity and St. Paul's and St. Mark's churches sang in English, and of Zion church in German. There is no Swedish Lutheran church in the city, but there are a great many Swedish Lutherans on the West Side.

REV. ZICKMAN SPOKE.

At the end of the liturgical service Rev. Mr. Zickman spoke. His subject was, "The Church of the Reformation in Germany." and he treated it in a most interesting style. He has been for over thirty years in the ministry in this city, and although of a ripe old age, he is active and energetic yet, and appears to be good for many years more of usefulness. His subject into three parts. 1. The Divine foundation of the Reformation. 2. The powerful opposition to Luther. 3. Its immeasurable consequences. He said that the Reformation was the beginning of the Protestant Christian church in all lands, and it was of particular interest to Germany and Sweden. It was the Divine order, and Martin Luther was the man in the hands of Providence. He met with powerful opposition from Roman Catholics and civil powers, but accounted all obstacles, and the Lutheran church to-day stands triumphant. Mr. Kjelstedt's address was in German for the benefit of his countrymen. In part he spoke as follows:

"The Lutheran Reformation is a subject dear to every Swedish heart. It gained exclusive predominance in our country in the year 1537, and from that time to this day God has preserved our independence as a nation. What mighty struggles Gustavus Vasa had to go through before the great work was accomplished! Even within, wily Roman prelates who preferred to see their country sold to the enemy; Catholic powers who worked hand in hand with the papal power, and wrote in our history its most brilliant pages.

THIRTY YEARS' WAR.

"In the Thirty Years' War the great Gustavus Adolphus and our forefathers laid down their lives on the altar of Protestantism, and secured religious freedom for the oppressed German brethren. Forever he blessed the day that gave us an open Bible, that gave us the right to think and judge in spiritual matters according to the dictates of our conscience. May we ever be worthy of the Lutheran name, may it ever prosper in, ever be united with, our people and our beloved country in the North."

Dr. Ramer's address was on the subject, "The Church of the Reformation in America." In part he spoke as follows:

"The Lutheran church in America has been brought here by emigrants from European countries. The Church of the Reformation has been planted in Germany, but much of her life has entered the nations of western Europe which have largely contributed in planting her banners upon this continent. The early Lutherans from Sweden and the Netherlands were not exiled from their native homes by religious persecutions, but they came under the protection of the royal court; particularly was this the case with the Swedes. These early Lutherans consequently did not come prepared to establish colleges and seminaries for the education of their ministers, but they were dependent upon the mother country."

"During the Seventeenth century there were three Lutheran clergymen laboring among the Dutch Lutherans in New Amsterdam. Among the Swedes along the Delaware river there were eight clergymen. Rev. John Campanius, who labored at Wilmington, Del., translated Luther's small catechism into the language of the native Indians prior to 1698. This translation was not published until 1696, when King Charles XI of Sweden, at his own expense, published 500 copies and sent them to the colonies."

BEFORE ELLIOTT'S TRANSLATION.

"This translation was therefore prior to Elliott's translation of the New Testament into the Indian language by at least twelve years."

"We need not go far to find a reason for the kind friendly spirit with which the Indians treated the Lutheran missionaries upon their arrival at Philadelphia. They had been associated and taught the Gospel of Jesus Christ during a period of nearly two centuries prior to Penn's landing, by faithful Swedish Lutherans."

"In the beginning of the Eighteenth century the German Lutherans began pour into this country in large numbers. The first impulse to the German emigration came from the Rhenish Palatinate, when King Louis XIV of France threatened to turn their country into a desert. Those who of about a half a million of human souls escaped the sword, flames and frost finally found a shelter upon the fertile plains of Pennsylvania. It is estimated that by the middle of the Eighteenth century the German Lutheran population amounted to at least 100,000 scattered over the Southwestern Pennsylvania. Those poor exiles from the Palatinate and subsequently emigrants suffered for a long time from the want of spiritual oversight."

"In doctrine the American Lutheran church does not differ from the Continental church. The Lutheran church universally holds that the word of God as revealed in the Old and New Testaments is the only infallible rule of faith and guide for life. Jesus Christ is the center from which all our theological thoughts radiate. She does not conceive an impersonal Christ as a substitute for Jesus of Nazareth the Son of God. His life, His life, His life, His death and resurrection, His atonement for all the sins of the world, are all absolute realities and form the indispensable condition of salvation through faith in Christ. Christ is ever present with His church. The sacraments of baptism and the Lord's supper are actual means of grace, by the use of which the hoped promise of forgiveness of sin is appropriated to the one receiving the sacrament. They are not mere memorials."

"POLITY OF THE CHURCH."
"In regard to church polity she adapts herself to the place and time in which she lives, regarding eternal forms of organization inferior to purity of doctrine. She believes in the communion of saints, and holds that wherever God's word is taught in its truth and purity and the sacraments rightly administered there are God's saints on earth. In America the synodical form of church government is universally adopted with minor variations. This is, however, not essential to her existence. In Sweden the Episcopal form in Germany the consistorial governments prevail."

"The Lutheran church is a polyglot church, preaching the gospel of salvation in more languages than any other denomination. In the city of Scranton she has worshippers addressing the Throne of Grace in five distinct languages. She is a church of the future, a liturgical form magnifying God's word above man's wisdom."

The strength of the Lutheran church in America with her 1,375,775 communicant members, 9,933 congregations and 5,685 ordained pastors, gives her the fourth place among the churches of this country. Her total increase during the last decade has been the highest per cent of all denominations. Mere numbers do not, however, measure the actual strength of a church. The silent steady flow of Christian virtue and piety are a far more potent factor to bring souls to Christ than a numerical display. The pulpit of the general councils new paper, 'The Lutheran,' will be a medium for discussion of church question that could not be enjoyed while the smaller journals were published."

"It is with cheerful hearts that God has permitted us to participate in the union service of the Churches of the Lutheran and Swedish. The feeling of gratitude that we had occasion to rehearse together the events of the past, to improve the present, to gain inspiration for the future, and to be united and encouraged by the same spirit, will be a permanent blessing. Let us, however, endeavor to discharge every call to duty with a firm resolve that we may be looking into the Great Head of the Church for His continued blessing."

SABBATH NEWS NOTES.

It was All Saint's Day.
In the Adams avenue branch of the Second Presbyterian church, Rev. A. H. Asherian, the Armenian lecturer, occupied the pulpit at the morning service. Rev. J. T. Dunn preached as usual in the evening.

The Rev. George T. Price, of Court Street Methodist church, were "True Moral Character" and "Human Quality."

Superintendent Sanborn, of the Rescue Mission, addressed the afternoon meeting of the Volunteers of America in their hall on Washington avenue.

Yonkey, was the anniversary of the pastorates of the two Scranton rectors, Rev. Rogers Israel, who for four years been rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, and Rev. S. B. Patterson, who nine years ago, began his service with the Church of the Good Shepherd, Green Ridge.

The Scranton Preacher's union at its meeting this morning will discuss the following question: "Have the Churches Too Many Auxiliary Societies?"
Rev. Dr. G. L. Kellmore, of Wilkes-Barre, preached in the morning at Trinity United Evangelical church.

FROM JAPAN.

Proofs are here that the Japs are worrying every China-making country. Case after case here and ready today—dainty richness it is, too—and as far as prices are concerned, we feel in duty bound to explain how we can sell it so low. Seven words tell the tale—we imported twenty cases direct from Yokohama. Scranton China selling is centering at the busy store. Have you seen the table of lamps we are showing at choice for $5.00? More went on the table today—lamps that have been doubly reduced. Get that lamp now.

Cups and Saucers

All here and ready to show you. Japanese cups and saucers, in infinite variety.

We'd like to tell you all about each style, but want of space prevents. Take our word for it, we are showing a big line of these cups and saucers at from 5c. to $1.00, and the dollar one perhaps the biggest value of any.

Cracker Jars Big assortment of these beauties. Prices range from 30c. to $2.00. In every instance you'll find the prices right.

Butter Dishes

Individual butter dishes at a price that can be no further reduced. No new reason for our increase of business. The old reason is gaining ground with each new customer. It's because we're "always a little lower than the others." Never better shown than in this case—1,000 Japanese butter dishes to go on sale at one cent each.

SHOWING, TOO, a full line of Japanese China, comprising Tea Sets, Tete-a-Tete Sets, Toast Sets, Rose Bowls, Comports, Comb and Brush Trays, Chocolate Pots, Vases and Berry Sets.

BLOOD FLOWED IN DURYEA

One Dead, One Dying, Another with His Throat Cut.

TWO SATURDAY NIGHT MELEES

Gubikie Cut Into Datsko's Bowels, Then the Former Cut His Throat. Datsko Is Dying—After a Political Meeting Roughs Fractured a Poleander's Skull and He Died Within an Hour.

One Poleander dead and another dying is the result of two district melees in Duryea Saturday night.
Two men, John Gubikie and Andrew Datsko, living and boarding in the same house, engaged in a friendly wrestling match while on their way home from a wedding. The former was thrown, became angry and drawing a knife plunged it into the abdomen of Datsko, cutting a large gash, from which the entrails protruded. The victim was taken to his home and a physician sent for. In the meantime Gubikie, who did the stabbing, went to his room and a few moments later was found with his throat cut. The two were removed to the Wilkes-Barre hospital.

Although Datsko was alive last night, he cannot recover. Gubikie, it is thought, will live. It is suspected that some of Datsko's friends cut Gubikie's throat, though he says he attempted suicide.

A number of Poleanders who had just left a political meeting in the town hall, last night, were set upon by a party of roughs and while in attempting to defend themselves, Frank Grovinsky was struck upon the head with a stone and fell to the ground with a fractured skull. The unfortunate man was taken to his home, where he died an hour later.

Two men, Joseph Franzens and Joseph Max, who were in the crowd, were arrested on suspicion of committing the deed.

AMUSEMENTS.

One of the most important comic opera engagements of this season will take place at the Frothingham this evening in the appearance of the famous Bostonians, who will be seen in their latest triumph, "Mexico," and the indications are that that handsome theater will be full with the wealth and fashion of our city. Extravagant diction is unnecessary to sound the praises of this most perfect organization. For a long time they have held undisputed sway in the light opera field, and they still easily remain first. The presentation of "Mexico" to-night will be made on a most elaborate scale, with special scenery, and accessories. The names of Henry Clay Barnabee, William H. McDonald, Jessie Bartlett Davis, Hilda Clarke, Eugene Cowles, Alice Nixon, George Frothingham, Josephine Bartlett, William E. Philip, T. Kelley Cole, Gracia Quive, C. E. Landie, Harry Brown, S. L. Studley, L. B. Merrill, May Von Dresser and R. H. Burdette are inseparably connected with the greatest triumphs of native light opera. Although the sale of seats has been large there are still some cheap ones left, which will likely be taken before the doors open to-night.

The management of the Frothingham have arranged to announce the election returns from the stage in a completely new manner during the performance of "The Girl I Left Behind Me," which takes place at that theater to-morrow night. This is one of the best plays Mr. Frothingham has offered the public in recent years, and may be described as an American drama in four acts written around Indians and white men with a stockade for the most stirring scene and Indian war-whoops for the incidental music. It has a cast of seventeen characters, and every human emotion is brought into play during the action of the piece.

"O'Brien, the Contractor" (the mil-lionaire with that comic Irish-American comedian, Dan Sully as O'Brien, will be the attraction at the Academy of Music Wednesday night. The part of O'Brien is strongly drawn. It is a different type of Irishman from that usually seen upon the stage, and shows the son of the Emerald Isle rounded out by a residence in this free country, and who it is possible for industry, shrewdness and straightforward dealing to accomplish. The dialogue of the whole play is well written, and teaches a good, wholesome lesson of the necessity of honor in business as well as in the social relations of life. The realistic effects in the play are very strong features and includes a strike of Irish and Italian railroad laborers, and the building of a practical railroad.
