Drawing to a Close.

The evidence is in; the special pleaders have finished their respective arguments, and all that is necessary before the case goes to the jury is a brief review of the salient features.

The issues presented during this campaign group themselves under two general heads—economic and social. Whether the tariff shall be so adjusted as to protect or discourage American industry is at first band a question purely of economics, although social considerations are involved indirectly. Whether the currency of the country shall consist of gold, silver and paper money, all held to a parity by the pledge of ultimate redemption in gold, or whether gold shall disappear, leaving only silver and paper, with a prospect of continuous fluctuation and depreciation in sympathy with silver's downward plunge, is also an economic question, rather than a social one. But whether the character of our institutions shall be kept on a plane of stability, integrity and reverence for law and order, or whether they shall be yleided over as playthings for the sport and passions of the mob is primarily a social question, and it far transcends in ultimate importance both of the

That Parade in New York.

The demonstration for McKinley and sound money in New York on Saturday was, according to all reports, the largest and most impressive spectacle of its kind in the history of this Republic. It contained 35,000 fewer men in line than were in the parade at Washington, in May, 1865, when Sherman's army and the Army of the Potomac marched in grand review; but this column of 170,000 returning soldiers represented the victorious contributions of a dozen States, whereas Saturday's procession was a gathering for one occasion of 135,600 civilians collected from within two hundred miles of the metropolis. Says one enthusiastic chronicler. Ralph D. Paine, of the Philadelphia Press: "There were more men in line than ever voted the Republican ticket in the city of New York in a national election. Before the sun had set the parade had been witnessed by a crowd as large as the population of both the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, Colorado, Oregon and Nevada. The votes of the marchers, cast on Tuesday, will exceed the combined vote of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Nevada. The first all the idle labor in the country the division that swept past the reviewing dollars which they would receive under stand, carrying the banners of the dry free coinage at 16 to 1 would have only goods trade of New York alone, had half the purchasing power of the doltwice as many men in line as the en- lars now in use.

To vote the Republican ticket tomorrow put a cross (X) in the circle at the top of the first column, and let it go at that.

Contracts for new work amounting to 19,000,000 are reported by the Chicago pa-ers, all contingent on McKinley's elecion. In St. Louis bankers report that 23,00,000 will be invested in various en-terprises if McKinley is elected. In Ohio L. C. Goodale, superintendent of Brad-street's agency, says: "Taking all things into consideration, is it a fair estimate put the sum that will be invested in phio, after McKinley is elected, at about 50,000,000." In New York city contracts and estimates are noted amounting to $50,000,000-if McKinley is elected.-Phildelphia Press.

Chairman Hanna

The Republican national committee, through Chairman M. A. Hanna, on Sat-urday sent out from its Chicago headquarters the following public statemen The carnest support which the loyal citizens of the United States, irrespective of former political affiliations, have rendered the Republican party and the cause of sound money in the campaign about to end, justifies an expression from those who have been called mon to conduct it. who have been called upon to conduct it. No campaign since the war of the rebellion has presented such great responsibilities to those entitled to the elective franchise. The dangerous principles enunciated by the Chicago piatform, which proposes not only a debasement of the currency, but the destruction of the highest judicial authority of the land, have Justified good citizens, irrespective of past party preferences, in uniting to who have been called upon to conduct it of past party preferences, in uniting to rebuke those who would thus endanger the very foundation of our national organization.

"Abandoning their time-honored prin-ciples of a strict construction of the consitution, the supporters of that platform propose a system which endangers the very life of the constitution and of the nation itself. The proper enforcement of law, recognition of the highest tribunal of the land, the maintenance of a high and unwaying standard of our medium and unvarying standard of our medium of exchange, the payment of obligations, public and private, in a currency equal to that contemplated when they were made, are all repudiated and denounced, both by that platform and the candidate placed upon to Their appeals to preplaced upon it. Their appeals to pre-judice, to rellishness and to passion, the efforts to array the employe against his employer and the laborer against that which furnishes him the desired labor, have led good citizens, without respect to party lines, and thoughtful workingmen irrespective of the class of their employment, to array themselves against the methods which would endanger government and property rights, and the employment which they guarantee.

"It is gratifying to know that the two classes of citizens to whom these appeals have been most strongly directed, the farmers, and the workingmen of the citie and towns, have resented the imputations which have been placed upon them by the assumption that they desire to deal falsely with those with whom they have business relations or with the people of the nation. The proposition that the farmer may repudiate a portion of his ob-ligations by the coinage of a dollar worth but half that which he agreed to pay, has been as indignantly rejected as has that which assumed that the workingman held principles which he was ashamed t avow and which are dangerous to the peace of the nation.

"The developments of the closing week

The developments of the closing week of the campaign leave no doubt that the judgment of an overwhelming majority of the people of the nation is against the platform and candidate of repudiation and national dishonor. It now remains for the voters to register at the polls their answer to the attempts to excite pas-sion, prejudice and selfishness for the benefit of a few who are willing to de-stroy national honor and endanger na-tional existence for their personal ambitions and individual profit. Good citi-zens in every section and of every party have united in publicly expressing them-selves upon this subject. Their duty now is to do so in such a manner as will for-ever put an end to further attempts in this line. There is but one way of doing this, and that is at the polls. While each man has his especial field in the preliminary work of the campaign, the duty of election day is common to all. No man, however much he has done in influencing others, can neglect his per sonal duty at the polls, and no citizen however humble or devoted to employ ment or business, should fail to exercis The suggestion is made that every manufacturing plant in the United States tomorrow night celebrate Mc-Kinley's election by blowing its whistle ount for nothing unless those who offer em or are convinced by them exercise that universal privilege of participating in the actual direction of the government by voting on election day.

> "It is hoped, therefore, that all good citizens will join hands on Tuesday in maintaining the honor of the nation by registering their ballots in favor of that candidate who has been honored by the support of loyal men of all parties—Will-iam McKinley. The issue is between two men and two platforms, the one representing national honor, good government sound money and sound principles; the other standing for doctrines dangerous to the peace and prosperity of the nation and promising only a system which must dehase the currency, destroy business and end employment. It is, as has been recently said by Major McKinley himself, 'a time when the voice of the partisan is hushed in the chorus of patriotism which sounds from one end of the coun-try to the other.' Let every loyal citizen take this thought to the polls with him on election day, and the country will be saved from the danger which confronts it, and saved by that same loyal devotion which obliterated party lines in de-fense of the nation on an occasion of equal but not greater peril."

SPEAK OUT FOR PROTECTION.

From the Providence Register. Not alone are the Republicans of Lackawanna county interested in whom shall be elected congressman from this district at the election on Tuesday. The whole people are interested-from the man whose daily toll takes him deep down into the bowels of the earth, or him whose dally bread is earned in the heat of moiten furnaces and crushing rolls that turn out sheets of steel or the finished rall, to him whose daily occupa-tion confines him to office, store or bank-all have an interest that is cohesive with the industrial life of this community. There is no man who will deny that the conditions which have made this city and alley to blassom as the rose are thos which Republican policy, enacted tepublican congress, has made possib! out which are now suffering a temporary blight due to the Democratic enactment of the Wilson bill, a measure which has silenced industry or so hampered it that its operation has been spasmodic and un-

None but these who are blind to what has occurred, or who are senseless in their sartisan zeal, will deny that Democrati policy has caused this palsy in the indus-trial energy of the country. To remedy these faults and to restore Republican conditions, as well that confidence which industrial enterprise needs, the election of Republicans to congress on next Tues-day is demanded. This should be one of the watchwords of the electors. Lacha-wanna county should ring out in ciarion notes its demand for the protective pol-tey of Republicanism by giving to Will-lam Connell, the candidate for congress, a vote so nearly unanimous that there shall be no doubt whatever that this congressional district believes in a Reublican policy as the only one which will bring back new life to the vast in-dustries now so nearly dormant in this valley and this city.

The election of Mr. Connell to congress will be a fitting tribute to one who has done so much to help make Scranton the city that it is, and whose business in-terests are found in all parts of the county, helping to make the people prosper-ous. A man of the people and as much of a worker in their ranks as when he first came to this valley and handled a pick in the mines, though now advantageously situated in the financial affairs of life, Mr. Connell is and has always been keen ly appreciative of his fellow man, and ly appreciative of his fellow man, and now that he has been honored with the nomination for congress all ties of party should be sundered and the people should elect him on next Tuesday, and they can depend upon it that his actions in congress will be for the best interests of the
