

Norman & Moore FIRE INSURANCE, 120 Wyoming Ave.

THE SUBURBAN ELECTRIC LIGHT CO.

The man in the moon will be down pretty soon. To see what's become of the night...

The greatest luxury in a modern home (next to a good bath room) is the Incandescent Electric Light.

WHY SEND YOUR LACE CURTAINS OUT TO BE LAUNDERED? Special facilities with artistic manipulators...

The Lackawanna 308 Penn Avenue. A. B. WARMAN.

Watch This Space For Our Opening Ad. Of Our New Store.

Williams & W. Annuity Carpets, Draperies and Wall Paper.

127 WYOMING AVE.

REPUBLICAN MEETINGS.

SOUTH SIDE—Monday, Nov. 2, in O'Malley's hall. Speakers, Hon. C. P. O'Malley, Attorney H. M. Streeter.

ELECTION RETURNS.

It has become a custom of the Tribune to lead all its rivals in the fullness, fairness and promptness of its election news.

CITY NOTES.

The Elks will hold a social session to-morrow night and will receive election returns.

At the postoffice (election day) the stamp and general delivery window will be open from 7 a. m. to 12 m.

Mrs. Joseph Fleming, of the West Side, was held in $90 bail by Alderman Miller Saturday to answer the charge of making threats against her father-in-law, James Fleming, aged 61.

The exchanges last week at the Scranton Clearing House were as follows: Oct. 26, $51,980.00; Oct. 27, $103,322.83; Oct. 28, $116,440.91; Oct. 29, $137,178.55; Oct. 30, $97,475.41; Oct. 31, $78,845.10; Total, $788,146.90. Clearing for the week ending Nov. 1, 1896, $834,137.72.

Dr. McDowell, dentist, 240 Adams Avenue.

"There is nothing that cheats the farmer, the producer, or the laboring man like an unstable and fluctuating currency. We want our money to be as sound as our government, and there is not a government in the world any sounder than ours."—William McKinley.

Who Will Be Our Next President? You can find out at the Windsor, Tuesday night, when complete election returns will be received from all parts of the United States by special operator. A nice lunch will be served. Everybody welcome. Corner Penn Avenue and Linden Street.

Prothero & Co., the enterprising furniture dealers of Washington Avenue, distributed free one thousand whistles among the children last Saturday afternoon. The boys made the streets echo with their whistles.

Flags! Flags! Flags! Flags! We have had an unusual sale of flags the past two or three days, and are sold out of large sizes; will have more by express today.

J. D. WILLIAMS & BRO., No. 312 and 314 Lacka. Ave.

We give away dinner sets, handsomely decorated, with 32 lbs. of tea, decorated tea sets with 15 lbs. printed toilet sets with 12 lbs. Special attention given to club orders. Scranton Tea Store, 525 Lackawanna Avenue.

Tailor made full suits and overcoats, latest styles, John Ross, 307 Spruce Street.

500 XX White Envelopes for 17c. at 3c. Store, 525 Lacka. Ave.

Who Will Be Our Next President? You can find out at the Windsor, Tuesday night, when complete election returns will be received from all parts of the United States by special operator. A nice lunch will be served. Everybody welcome. Corner Penn Avenue and Linden Street.

Opening. A dainty line of Children's Coats at the Baby Bazaar, 512 Spruce Street.

JUST BEFORE THE GREAT BATTLE

Way the Chairmen of the Campaign Committees View the Situation.

MR. THOMAS TALKS ABOUT RESULT

No Doubt About a Victory, and if the Republicans Do Their Duty Lackawanna County Will Establish a New Record with Reference to Republican Majorities—What Democratic Chairman Jennings Has to Say.

This long to be remembered campaign is drawing to a close, for tomorrow will take place the battle of the ballots.

The national victory will be decisive, but not more so than that in Lackawanna. For two centuries, in dignified campaigns has been conducted by the Republican county committee, whose effort it has been to bring the fullest information with reference to a question at issue, home to every voter of the county.

The good effects of this earnest work will be manifest to-morrow. From figures compiled from conservative estimates received from every part of the county it is evident that this county will be represented by at least 2,000 majority and that the four Republican candidates for legislature will be elected.

Chairman Thomas, of the Republican county committee, when seen by a Tribune reporter last night, said concerning the situation:

"We will win, certainly, but we want every Republican in the county to use his best efforts to get out the vote. The bigger the vote the bigger the majorities, and Lackawanna owes it to herself to roll up a handsome Republican vote Tuesday."

"This has been a remarkable campaign. Never before have I seen such earnestness and determination to do something for the success of the great principles for which the Republican party has been fighting this fall. Many of our associates have also come from men who have been life-long Democrats and the number of votes McKinley will get from that class of men promises to be large."

MR. JENNINGS' OPINION. "Claim everything" was the motto at Democratic headquarters. Chairman T. J. Jennings and Secretary D. J. Reedy were plodding away at poll books and the like in a back room of the headquarters over Blume's carriage repository on Spruce street, when a representative of the Tribune called for a statement at first declined to give one, but after some parleying among the faithful who were present at the time the following was agreed upon as the Democratic view of the local situation:

"We are confident the county will go for Bryan and Merrill and all the rest of the ticket, and we expect to carry all four legislative districts. A careful poll of the county warrants us in making these claims."

MR. JENNINGS was pressed to give some figures upon which his estimate was based, but he said he preferred not to be quoted further on the subject. "We are honest, though," he said, "with our own figures, and we are confident that we have left room for just the semblance of a doubt as to his seriousness."

RECEIVING THE RETURNS. Never before did this city witness such extensive arrangements for the receipt of election returns. Clubs, stores, hotels and many other places are having telegraph wires strung and tomorrow night there will be dozens of instruments ready to click forth the anxiously awaited news.

The Republican county committee will receive returns in the armory which will be open to the general public. The Democratic committee will hold forth at Music hall. The Central Republican club have made elaborate preparations for the hearing of returns at their rooms in the Price building. Admittance here will be by card. The Young Men's Republican club will have an instrument in a room on the second floor of the Price building. The Young Men's Christian association will furnish returns in their hall and fill in the blanks with music and various other kinds of entertainment, all of which the general public can avail itself of at twenty-five cents a head. The Young Men's Institute of the Central City will receive returns at their rooms on Lackawanna Avenue. The Scranton Athletic club will hear the news at their hall on Cedar Avenue.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S MEETINGS.

Carbondale had another rousing Republican rally Saturday night. Despite the fact that the Democrats were holding a meeting in the Academy of Music, to which their best speakers had been summoned and which had been widely advertised, the Democrats were not in the room. The Republicans held forth in the doors and many people were turned away, although the meeting had been announced in the papers in advance.

Hon. Charles P. O'Malley, Attorney R. A. Zimmerman and Major Everett Warren were the speakers. John Dinknick presided. Mr. O'Malley was the first to speak. He was given a warm reception and during his address of three-quarters of an hour, was frequently interrupted by the Republicans who were shouting their approval of his remarks and the hearty support accorded him in his fight for the legislature two years ago, he proceeded to discuss in a plain, convincing manner the principal issues of the campaign.

He dwelt upon the fact that this election is to be fought by the independent voter who prizes his own welfare above blind partisanship and counseled his hearers, particularly the young men who had their whole life before them, to think well before casting their votes in this momentous battle. Four months ago, he went on to say, the great men of the Republican party were striving to get the presidential nomination. The Democrats were striving to get a man to take the nomination. For two years the Democrats have cried for an opportunity to apply their free trade doctrine. Two years ago, when they had the opportunity, they adopted that individually they realized the fallacy of their faith, for when the bill was under discussion every Democrat was found endeavoring to protect the particular industry which was foremost in his own locality. The question of free trade is forever settled in America's politics. The people demand and must have protection.

SEIZED A NEW ISSUE.

Their old issue being dead, the Democrats were glad to seize upon any opportunity to start in a new course of delusion and deception and when the free traders, who had campaigned quietly but steadily and forcefully for three years through the medium of the bi-metallic league, offered them this opportunity they fell in with it.

At another place in his speech he called the attention of the railroad men to this salient fact: In eighteen states of the Union railroad traffic is regulated by statute. Under inflated money, the railroads in these states would be unable to increase their rates to compare with the increase in the cost of maintenance, which means that no claim will ensue, and the result would be the bankruptcy of every railroad affected. The cost of railroading would increase, while the revenue could not. The employees, who say the past would have no chance for a raise in wages. Bryan admits that the cost of living would increase. Where would they leave the railroad men? Following the election of 1892 there was a railroad panic which caused the laying off of 43,000 railroaders and there has been a depression ever since. Bryan's election means a railroad panic compared with which that of 1892 is as nothing.

MR. ZIMMERMAN'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Zimmerman followed with a forceful and eloquent speech, which he prefaced with a message that the signs of victory were most favorable; that McKinley could not be defeated. He pictured a Bryan cabinet, with Dobs, Tillman, Coxe and Mary Ellen Lease, and asked the audience if they wanted to exchange for this the government of Washington, Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Blaine, Harrison and McKinley. There were cries of "No!" not from all over the house. He closed with an eloquent plea to the people of Carbondale to stand by McKinley, one of America's foremost statesmen. He stands as the embodiment of all that means prosperity, peace and happiness among the people, said Mr. Zimmerman. He is the home builder and the home protector. He is the boy soldier, the man statesman and will be the next president of the United States.

Major Warren brought the meeting to a close with one of his practical conviction-carrying speeches that roused the audience to the highest point of enthusiasm. He fairly riddled Mr. Morris Blaine's letter of acceptance, paying particular attention to the wild claim that Blaine was a free silverite and took occasion to remark that the connection in these troublesome times one blast from Blaine's trumpet would be enough to silence 10,000 Bryans.

The meeting concluded with three rousing cheers for McKinley, Connell and the whole ticket.

MEETING AT OLYPHANT.

Samuel J. Matthews presided over a very enthusiastic and largely attended meeting in the Olyphant Opera house Saturday night. The speaker, who was introduced by A. J. Colborn, Jr., George M. Watson and H. C. Reynolds, of Carbondale, the candidate for the legislature in the fourth district, discussed the ovation a matter of great moment to the Republicans.

MR. CONNELL WELL RECEIVED.

There was an enthusiastic meeting of citizens at No. 3 school house, Milnooka, Saturday night at which William Connell was the speaker. He was cheerfully received by a large number of the audience, and from the sentiment expressed he is sure to get a big vote to-morrow.

VOTE FOR ALEX. T. CONNELL.

To the Voters of the Second Legislative District: Fearful that in the excitement incidental to a fiercely contested presidential election, matters of local importance may be forgotten, we take this means of reminding you of the necessity of re-electing Hon. Alex. T. Connell as representative from this legislative district. Two years ago Mr. Connell was elected to the legislature to hear upon him by influential citizens who were anxious to advance the interests of this district, and accepted the nomination with a hopelessness that by his indefatigable efforts and personal popularity he was successful at the polls. Although the next morning he was introduced to a fiercely contested presidential election, matters of local importance may be forgotten, we take this means of reminding you of the necessity of re-electing Hon. Alex. T. Connell as representative from this legislative district. Two years ago Mr. Connell was elected to the legislature to hear upon him by influential citizens who were anxious to advance the interests of this district, and accepted the nomination with a hopelessness that by his indefatigable efforts and personal popularity he was successful at the polls.

By his indefatigable efforts and personal popularity he was successful at the polls. Although the next morning he was introduced to a fiercely contested presidential election, matters of local importance may be forgotten, we take this means of reminding you of the necessity of re-electing Hon. Alex. T. Connell as representative from this legislative district. Two years ago Mr. Connell was elected to the legislature to hear upon him by influential citizens who were anxious to advance the interests of this district, and accepted the nomination with a hopelessness that by his indefatigable efforts and personal popularity he was successful at the polls.

Notwithstanding the unusual demand for appropriations, Mr. Connell succeeded in securing $5,000 for the Lackawanna hospital, and also led the fight against reducing the appropriation for the public schools of this state, and this notwithstanding that it was his first term as legislator. It is just in asking you as voters and taxpayers to promote your own interests and the interest of the community that Mr. Connell your hearty and earnest support at the polls on November 3.

This is the most important district in Lackawanna county, Northernmost Pennsylvania, comprising as it does the larger part of the city of Scranton, which includes nearly all the public and charitable institutions, which will receive state aid. If Mr. Connell is returned as an old member, he will without doubt be accorded a place on the appropriation committee which will put him in a position to look after and secure aid for such important local institutions as the Lackawanna hospital, the trial school, and the Home for the Friendless, without which assistance the work of these institutions must be greatly handicapped.

We believe, however, that it is the duty of every voter in this district, irrespective of past party affiliations, to vote for Mr. Connell's re-election.

Chairman Second Legislative District.

JUST HOW TO VOTE.

An Explanation of the Correct Manner of Marking the Official Ballot at Tomorrow's Election.

The diagram printed below shows the top of the first column of the official ballot which will be handed to every qualified voter at the polling place to-morrow. The man who wishes to vote the Republican ticket should mark a cross (X) in the circle over the word "Republican," as follows:

FOR A STRAIGHT TICKET

MARK WITHIN THE CIRCLE

REPUBLICAN

Remember, one cross marked in this circle votes the whole Republican ticket from top to bottom. No one can make any mistake if he will vote this way. It is the easiest, safest, quickest and best way to mark the ticket.

Steam Heating and Plumbing.

P. F. & M. T. Howley, 221 Wyoming Ave.

MANY MINISTERS PREACHED POLITICS

Scranton Divines Are Surely Stirred About Tomorrow's Election.

VARIETY OF PULPIT UTTERANCES

In but One Other National Campaign Have Ministers Been So Emphatic in Political Pulpit Utterances. Many of Yesterday's Sermons Had to Do with the Great Battle of the Ballots.

There were but few ministers who yesterday failed to include in their sermons or lectures something pertaining to the great battle of the ballots. The morning's utterances were almost unanimously wholly to Christian politics, the purity of the ballot and the closing of the liquor saloons. The subject-matter of greater or less extent merely suggested by the election.

In past years the election has been preceded by political utterances upon it, but never, excepting the Lincoln campaign, have ministers been so emphatic in their utterances as to the ballot, evidently, that this is the eve of a crisis. Certainly the divines are stirred as seldom before to preach civility, forbearance, honest voting and the necessity of voting.

In most cases the preaching is a general appeal concerning every voter's duty in helping to elect the right man. There have been a few instances where the sermons have plainly indicated which party the speakers believed to be the most deserving of support.

DR. DIXON'S DISCOURSE.

A pronounced gold and McKinley man, Dr. Dixon, in his sermon, delivered at the regular service by Rev. Dr. Joseph K. Dixon in the Penn Avenue Baptist church in the evening. His subject was "The Election of 1896."

"The issues which are to be decided next Tuesday by the American people pertain to the very core and genius of our nation. The Lord does not own this world and God has not gone off on a vacation. Right, truth, integrity, freedom, will prevail on Tuesday. But I would have every man who hears me this night, and I would I could trumpet my words to the remotest corners of this great land—realize that the election of Tuesday is not only a matter of citizenship, but a matter of the divine right of citizenship to exercise that right is beyond the privilege of angels in the glorious array of this closing century—not to exercise it to misuse it, is to betray a holy trust."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

CAUGHT A SUN BEAM.

"Frances Ramee, in one of her novels, tells how when the Lord of life made the nations of the earth He caught a sun beam and hid it in a diamond ring and casting it down to earth it became the French nation. He took a heart of pure gold in a lump of lead and hid it in a diamond ring and it became the Italian people. Frances Ramee halts just here—but the march of civilization does not stop here; the sun beam and flower do not stop here. Who will be the nation that will catch all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

"The man who can vote and don't vote in this critical hour of the nation's history is a traitor to his country. The man who votes against conscience and reason, for retribution and anarchy, and the destruction of the promise of the United States, allies himself and his vote with the enemies of good citizenship and good government. He sets himself in deadly antagonism to God in heaven. The cross was planted on these shores and the seeing eyes of the great Columbus discovered our coasts amid the singing of a Christian hymn. The cross has been found a place of refuge—the poor and downtrodden have found a haven. The man who votes for a dishonest and unprincipled man, for a man who has not all this. He slanders his feet on all with those men who the other day tore the flag from its staff in one of our great cities, and have not yet been beneath their feet. I exhort every man here to stay out of the ranks of these modern iconoclasts who would shatter every altar of freedom, patriotism and progress."

of commerce up, the property for which we pray. If the nets are not cut and the honor of the nation preserved blame ourselves. It is a great thing to get in line with the foot-prints of Jehovah, to march along the lines of his purpose.

"In the beauty of the lilies, Christ was born. With a glory in his bosom. That transfigures you and me. He died to make men holy. Let us die to make men free. Our God is marching on."

</