The graphophone entertainment which was given at the Young Women's Christian association, under the direction of Mr. Mark L. Smith and Colonel E. H. Ripple was a great success. CHARGED WITH SWINDLING.

H. H. Harvard Taken into Custody on Lackawanna Avenue.

H. H. Harvard is the name of a young man who was arrested on Lackawanna avenue at noon yesterday by Patrolman Haggerty. A warrant issued by Alderman Millar. The warrant was sworn out by Job Whitehouse, of the West Side, and the charge is obtaining money under false pretenses.

Whitehouse claims that his mother-in-law invested in a building and loan association represented by the accused, and that she was swindled. After making several payments she found that the company she thought she was paying into is not represented in this city by the agent who called upon her, and that he simply took her money and put it in his pocket.

When Whitehouse swore out the warrant he had an arrangement to meet the agent on Lackawanna avenue and Special Officer John Tierney was given the warrant and was told to follow Whitehouse up and arrest the agent as soon as Whitehouse met him and give the signal to come forward. The agent did not fall into the trap set for him, but Whitehouse met him later on the avenue and turned him over to Patrolman Haggerty who was close at hand.

Upon being charged before Alderman Millar with the crime he pleaded that he was only in the employ of another man, who is now in Honduras. He was committed to the police station for a further hearing and Officer Tierney went to the residence at 4 o'clock to try and find the man whom Harvard claims is the principal.

KERNER'S PACK WAS PLACED ON THE ROAD

When He Went Back He Found It Had Disappeared.

SAYS THAT IT WAS WORTH $500

He Refused to Pay Fare for His Pack and Conductor H. E. Wedding Took it Out of the Car and Placed it on the Road—Complaint Entered Against the Conductor.

D. Kerner, a pack-peddler, of 239 Penn avenue, lost his stock in trade, valued at $500 in a rather peculiar way last night.

Kerner, with two packs, containing jewelry and fancy articles, got aboard a Peckville car at 7:20 o'clock last night intending to go to Olyphant. The conductor, H. E. Wedding, compelled him to pay five cents extra for his bundles, one of which he placed on the floor at his feet. When the city line was reached the conductor again took up his fare and wanted another five cents for the packages. Kerner refused to pay the second time for the packages, saying he had no more money.

Thereupon the conductor picked up the packages and taking them out the front way deposited them on the street. Then he went back and offering Kerner his fare back, told him to get off. Kerner refused to do so, so the conductor gave two bells and started the car onward.

At Storrs' crossing Kerner got up and looked out on the front platform, where he supposed, as he now states, the conductor had placed his packages. Seeing they were not there he rushed back to the conductor and demanded to know what he had done with his bundles. The conductor coolly told him that they had been deposited on the road at the city line.

Kerner started on a run back to city line, only to find as he feared, that his packs had disappeared. He made some inquiries thereabouts, but could learn nothing of his missing goods. He then hastened to the dischargers' office and laid complaint against the conductor and also the foundation of a damage suit.

He says that among other things the packages contained three gentlemen's gold watches, two ladies' gold watches, nine silver watches, twenty-one watch chains, nineteen lockets, a quantity of such valuables as gold rings, gold-rimmed spectacles, silver thimbles and brooches and a quantity of laces and costly embroideries. All in all he says his stock was valued at $500.

Conductor Wedding says he could not do otherwise than put the packages off when Kerner refused to pay for them. He wanted Kerner to get off, too, and says he offered different times to give him back his fare. Kerner, however, refused either to take back his fare or pay for the packages, and as there was no reason for putting Kerner off, the only thing to be done was to leave him ston, if he so chose.

Kerner says the conductor did not intend to do anything but he intended to put the packages off the car and he supposed that when the conductor took them out that it was to place them on the road. He says that he could not tell him that the packages had been placed in the road until he inquired for them at Storrs' crossing.

J., say that Mrs. Griffiths arrived at that place yesterday afternoon, and upon going to the home of her son, Roy, who formerly lived in Scranton, the mother found young Barrier and his wife safe in the arms of Hyman.

BRIDGE IS UNSAFE.

New One is in Prospect at the Driving Park.

The old wooden bridge which crosses the Lackawanna river near the Driving Park has for some time been in an unsafe condition, and notices of warning have been posted at each approach to it. The bridge was inspected yesterday by Mayor Bailey, Street Commissioner Kinley, George E. Smith, of the Pennsylvania Coal company, and H. B. Reynolds, of the Driving Park land syndicate.

The Pennsylvania Coal company owns the land at the easterly end of the bridge, and the Driving Park company the land across the river. The road leading from the westerly end is a private thoroughfare, as is the short stretch of road leading to the boulevard. The purpose of yesterday's gathering at the spot was to arrive at some understanding concerning the opening of a public thoroughfare and a new bridge.

The result of the conference was an informal agreement that the easterly end of the new bridge should be located at a point nearly a rod further south than at present, and that land for the two approaches should be given to the city. The matter will be presented in council. About $5,000 will be required in the building of an iron bridge.

MINER'S BACK BROKEN. Under a Fall of Roof for Six Hours in the Woodward Colliery.

A man named Thomas Emblem, a miner in the Woodward colliery of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western at Kingston, was caught under a fall of roof at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and it was 3 in the afternoon before he could be taken out. The weight and bulk of the rock was so great that very slow progress was made, and it was necessary to slow in order not to disturb the load of rock for fear it would begin settling and crush his life out.

His injuries, as it was, are fatal, and it is a wonder that he was not killed outright. He was brought to the Moses Taylor hospital and his death was said by the doctors at midnight to be but a short time off. He is about 55 years old and married. His back was broken.
