WEST SIDE EVENTS.

Closing of F. W. Mason & Co's Grocery Store-Death of J. T. Smith. News Notes and Personals.

The closing of the grocery store of F. W. Mason & Co. yesterday was the greatest surprise of years in West Side business circles. The closure was at 11 o'clock on a sheriff's warrant, which bore the name S. E. Mason, as the execution prosecutrix.

"S. E. Mason" is F. W. Mason's wife. T. Fellows Mason, who for the past several years has been manager of the store, was seen last evening by a Tristore, was seen last evening by a fre-bune reporter. Present probability in-fers that the store will not be re-opened by the same firm, although Mr. Mason would not say point blank to that effect. The cause of the failure is due primarily to rent due on the store room.

Early yesterday morning a constable levied upon the store goods to the amount of $600 in favor of G. W. Clark, owner of the store building. In order counteract the sudden onslaught, Mr. Mason judiciously closed the store in the manner mentioned. A STORY OF STATECRAFT.

Stolen Papers That Led to an Alliance Between Russia and France. From the New York Sun.

The "Gaulois" prints a strange and somewhat remainte story of the origin of the Franco-Rossian alliance. It says that M. Foucault de Mondoin, after returning to Paris from Brussels, received a visit from a young man whom he knew to be an official occupying an extremty confidential receiving an extremely confidential post in the household of King Leopold. He not only had access to all the secret cor-respondence, but also held the keys of the places in which the documents were placed.

"My dear sir," said he to M. de Mondion, "I am pushed to a terrible ex-tremity. I have been gambling and l have lost. I owe 250,000 francs, which I must pay or be dishonored." "You have not come here, I hope, with the idea that I can advance sum? No, but you can procure it for me,"

"I will tell you how. I have in my possession some documents of the highest importance, giving the alsolute and undenlable proof that Bismarck at the present time is fooling the Russian government with lies in regard to the Bulgarian question, and that, in reality, he is, in an underhand way, playing a part which is the very reverse of the role in which he appears officially. The proof of his duplicity once in the banks of the very reverse thanks of the very reverse of the role in which he appears officially. hands of the ezar, means the breaking away of Russia from the Triple Alli ance and the possible alliance of Russia with France. ty. "Where is this wonderful evidence?" he asked.

The young man handed to bim a roll of papers, M. de Mondein saw in a few moments that the deciments were genuine. Among them was a letter from the Princess Clementine, the mother of Prince Ferdinand, candidate for the throne of Bulgaria, addressed to her cousin, Leopold, king of the watcher of 10 it cal affairs, and Leapold's reply to the princes, dated from Lacken. In a word, the decuments contained the indisputable proof of the double game that Bismarck was play-ing, in officially opposing the candidacy of Prince Ferdinand watte he was covertly sustaining it, contrary to his assurances given to the Russian govthink," said M. de Mondo'n, "I

In five minutes he explained the matter to M. Lockroy. "It is a rith r ugly pice of tusness," said the latter. "Stol n papers: ness." said the latter. "Stol n papers!
How can we needle with such things?"
But there was a political matter of the very highest order involved, and his patriotism at last overcame his delicacy. "If these documents are g nuine." said he, "we must have them.
But are they genuine?"
"Yen can judge for yourself."
"Yeu have them?"
