WAS DEATH DUE TO POISON OR FRIGHT

Peculiar Circumstances Surrounding Demise of Almira Hadsall.

CORONER INVESTIGATING THE CASE

He Made a Post-Mortem Last Night and Found Nothing That Would Suggest the Cause of Death Save Poisoning .- The Coroner's Jury Will Meet Again at Rendham on Tuesday Evening.

In a small frame dwelling, a story and one-half high, situated on the mountain at Austin Heights, in as lonesome a spot as exists in Lackawanna county, Almira Hadsall, a 15-year-old girl died at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. It is not certain whether her death was caused by fright or whether she took a dose of poison.

Coroner Longstreet was notified at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon that a

The girl was a step-daughter of Joseph Roesch, who is employed to oversee the timberland of the Pennsylvania

Coal company in Old Forge township. Roesch's house is on the side of the mountain, near the Austin Heights, and is at least a quarter of a mile from any other habitation. The place is known as "World's End."

The story told to a Tribune reporter by the step-father of the girl was that he left home at 1.30 Monday afternoon to cut some evergreens for Christmas and his wife decided to accompany him. They went through the woods about a mile and he started to chop down a tree. Mrs. Roesch returned first, and she found her daughter trembling like a leaf and acting as one not in her right mind. husband came from the woods and the puty Sheriff Price yesterday sold the girl told them that five Italians had come to the door and one of them come to the door and one of them threatened to break it in with a stone if it was not opened immediately. For fear they would come in and do her bodily harm she ran through the back room and opening a window screamed for help. A half hour after the parents left home a rap came to the door and when the girl went to answer it a young Italian was standing on the door step.

when the girl went to answer it a young Italian was standing on the door step with a stone in his hand. She slammed the door quickly and ran back to the rear of the house.

He continued to rap and she came out again and this time she saw four other Italians standing at the gate. Fearing that their purpose was to assault her she ran back through the bed room and sersamed as loud as she could for help screamed as loud as she could for help. Mrs. Mary Burgess, who lives some distance away, across a stream which runs between the houses, came to her rescue, and when she got to the house the girl was lying on the floor writhing

GIRL WAS VERY SICK.

At 4 o'clock the mother of the girl came home and then the girl was very sick and was vomiting. Dr. Stegner, of Rendham, was sent for, but he was not at home and when the messenger got back the girl was feeling better.

Along about 11 o'clock at night she got worse and her step father went after Dr. Stegner again. The doctor learned the symptoms and gave the step-father some medicine to take home. When Roesch arrived at the house the girl was dead.

She laid on the bed where she had died from 1 o'clock yesterday morning until the time Coroner Longstreet ar rived at 7.30 last evening. The step-father is a middle aged German and his wife is an American. He is her second husband. The girl that is dead and another girl, one a few years older than her, were children by Mrs. Roesch's first husband. Last Saturday Roesch heard a very loud explosion and going through the woods to where the sound came from he found a gang of Italians around a tree that had been blown down by dynamite. They had a wheelbarrow with them and he took it home with him and left it in the yard. At 1 o'clock Monday afternoon he started decice Monday afternoon he started away from home with his wife to cut down a tree and get some evergreen branches for Christmas. She ran back into the bedroom to the window and screamed and her cries brought Mrs. Burgess.

The place where Roesch lives is about as hard to approach as any habitable place can be. It is situated on the side of the mountain, with no road leading up to it, and is in the middle of a patch of woods.

MRS. ROESCH'S STATEMENT.

Mrs. Roesch sald that when she came back from the woods her daughter was trembling like a leaf and complained about being sick to her stomach. She vomited several times and was very restless.

At 7.30 Coroner Longstreet and Deputy Coroner Pennypacker arrived at the house, accompanied by Dr. Stegner, of Rendham, and Drs. Baker and Myer, of Duryea. A post-mortem exam-ination was held and the heart was found to be free from any symptoms indicating that she had died from

appearance The lungs were in a healthy condition and the blood was in a healthy-looking state. Poisoning was the only thing that suggested itself as the cause of death.

There was nothing to show that she had been poisoned. She was only 15 years old, there was no poison in the house, and it is a long distance to any drug store where poison could be obtained. No reason could be assigned either why she should take poison. She maintained that she was all right until the Italians came to the house.

Roesch says that he has at various times surprised Italians stealing wood from the tract, and he believes that because he drove them away they attacked his home and are responsible for his step-daughter's death.

The jury empaneled by Coroner Longstreet consists of Dr. Pennypacker, Dr. Stegner, of Rendham, Drs. W. M. Mycr and A. J. Baker, of Duryea; William Rosser, of Austin Heights, and John T. Brown. The stomach and the liver of the dead girl were removed and the contents of the former will be submit-

Meeting of New England Society Held Last Night.

The arragements for next Tuesday night's banquet of the New England society, white not completed in de-tail, were made known at a meeting of the society last night in the board of trade rooms. President E. B. Sturges was absent and A. F. Law was chosen to preside.

The banquet will take place at the Hotel Jermyn and will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. There will be a reception from 6.30 to 7.30 o'clock. This will be the society's tenth anniversary and on that account it is proposed to make Tuesday night's event the most elaborate and distinctive of any yet given.
