ON THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Merchants of the City.

WERE PRESENTS FOR EVERYBODY

That is the Conclusion One Would Come to After Seeing the Army of Shoppers That Was Abroad Last Night -- Hunting Out and Providing for the Poor and Needy .- How the Work Was Carried On.

Yesterday was one of the busiest, if not the very busiest days that Scranton merchants have ever recorded. From early morning till nearly midnight there was a big crush in all the central city stores and when finally they found it possible to close an army of clerks wended their weary way, homeward as thoroughly tired as any army that ever marched.

army that ever marched.

At some of the business places such as the notion stores, throngs of shoppers were so great at times that peo-ple were compelled to wait outside the door for their turn to even get inside. Everybody seemed to be out, every-body carried a package. The street cars were jammed full going in every direction and during the earlier hours of the evening when those who started out shopping late in the afternoon beout shopping late in the afternoon began to turn homewards a wait of an hour was no uncommon thing before room could be found for even the proverbial "one more." The express companies had to call extra wagons into service and the mail carriers in many listicity were accommanied by helpers. service and the mail carriers in many districts were accompanied by helpers. It seemed scarcely possible that there would be anyone in the city who would not receive a visit from Santa Claus, but withal there were many chimnies in which the soot was not disturbed last night. It is no reflection, however, on the charity of Scrantonians that such should be the case.

The Board of Associated Charities, the official channel for the distribution of the city's benevolence and the various charitable societies connected rious charitable societies connected with the churches, sedulously hunted out every deserving poor family and did as much as their means allowed to brighten their homes for at least the year's greatest day. The Associated Charities distributed over 100 dinners, 300 pounds of candy and several wagon loads of toys. One church society alone gave out one hundred sacks of flour contributed by a wealthy member of the church.

Only those who allowed their pride to hide their poverty need have suffered for the want of a Christmas pot.

AMUSEMENTS.

Charles Frohman sends to Scrantor today one of his best companies, head-ed by the only Henry E. Dixey, and they will present at the Frothingham they will present at the Frothingham the most laughable comedy of recent years entitled "Thoroughbred," which ran in New York last season for 150 nights and was successfully revived this season for a long engagement. "Thoroughbred" has been one of the greatest successes that Manager Frohman has ever offered to the public and he has retained the brilliant cast with which he provided the piece tor the crucial test of a New York production. "Thoroughbred" is described as a very jolly entertainment, with just a very jolly entertainment, with just enough serious sentiment to give it distinction.

A play that has met with an unin-terrupted career of success is Russ Whytal's drama, "For Fair Virginla," in which the author and his clever and The Christmas exercises of Elm Park Sunday school will be held in the auditorium this evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Russ Whytal appear in light comedy parts, and the company is headed by such able people as Helene Lowell, Alex-ander Kearney, George F. Farren, John Woodard, and that exceptionally clever child-actress, Lottle Briscoe.

"In Old Kentucky," one of the most successful of latter day dramas, come to the Frothingham tomorrow and will be presented by the original company As the title would indicate, the play deals with Kentucky life and character and is a very graphic story set amid scenes of picturesque beauty and heightened by a number of intensely dramatic situations. The heroine is a laughing, romping, dainty, charming Kentucky girl, far removed from the soubrette style of character so common just now, and she figures prominently and heroically in most of the exciting attactions. The scenery is rich and appropriate and the general setting of the play costly and elaborate. ate. One scene represents the race track in Lexington at the most exciting moment-the finish of a closely contested race and it is described as the perfection of scenic detail.

In the realms of music, nothing has offered so much novelty at popular prices this season as the Waite Comic Opera company, announced to begin a week's engagement next Monday even-ing at the Frothingham, in an elaborate production of the intensely amusing "Tar and Tartar," at this popular play house. MR. VANDLING RETIRES.

Will Be Succeeded as Superintendent of the D. & H. Coal Department by Charles C. Rese.

A. H. Vandling, of this city, is about to retire as superintendent of the coal department of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company. He has been in the service of the company for many years and will be succeeded by Charles C. Rose, also of this city.

The following circular bearing on the matter was received by The Tribune Delaware and Hudson Canal company; of Delaware and Hudson Canal company; offlee of the second vice-president.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 21, 1896.
Circular No. 103.
Mr. A. H. Vandling has been relieved from the charge of the coal department at his own request, after thirty years' faithful and efficient service; to take effect on the 31st. inst.
Mr. Charles C. Rose is appointed superintendent of the coal department with headquarters at Scranton, Pa., to take effect on Jan. 1, 1897.
H. G. Young,

H. G. Young, Second Vice-President.

Mr. Rose, the new appointee, is Mr. Vandling's son-in-law. He has been Mr. Vandling's assistant over a year. For five years previous to his con-nection with the Delaware and Hudson company, Mr. Rose was attached to the engineering department of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company, and for several years was the first assistant of Chief Engineer James Archbald.

Mr. Vandling will for a short period after January 1 be subject to call and consultation by the Delaware and Hud-son company. He proposes, however, to retire from active business. He is 71 years of age. To his effective man-agement much of the success that has attended the company' coal business is

Are the Daughters of a Man Named Bastedo and One is Eight Years of Age and the Other Twelves-They Were Taken in Charge by the Police Here Last Summer for Performing in Saloons -- Austin Required to Give Bail for His Appearance at

Harry Austin, proprietor of the Palace Museum, a place of amusement which was opened Monday last on Lackawanna avenue, was arrested last night while the show was going on at the instance of County Detective Leyshor on a warrant sworn out before Alderman Howe.

Austin was arrested on the charge of having on exhibition two little girls, one 8 and the other 12 years old, in a place dangerous to their moral character. The girls are daughters of a man named Bastedo and are exceptionally good singers and musicians.

Their father migrates from place to place with the girls and has them give public performances,

He was at one time a prosperous saloon-keeper in Binghamton and was worth upwards of $25,000. He owned the building in which he kept the saloon and had a flourishing trade. He was then able to give his family a good education. The girls had strong talents in the musical line and he was giving them a thorough training in that direction MISFORTUNES CAME FAST.

One night, not yet two years ago, his place burned down and his wife was so frightfully burned before she could escape that she lived only a few hours, Bastedo carried no insurance, and he had to face the world without scarcely

Instead of aiming to stem the tide of adversity he lost heart, took his little girls away from Binghamton with him and began a tour of inland towns. His knowledge of the world had well in-formed him that the dimes and possi-bly larger coins would come with more liberality from half tipsy revelers in the barrooms around town, and into these places he often led them.

He paid his first visit to Scranton the He paid his first visit to Scranton the early part of last August. Chief of Police Robling saw that Bastedo brought his daughters into only the sa-loons, and he arrested him. The girls had done well that day and had in their pockets over $19 apiece in silver of small denominations. Chief Robling let him go on his promise to leave town the next day.

AUSTIN HELD IN BAIL. Austin, the manager of the Palace Museum, was held to bail in the sum of $300 for his appearance at court. Hastedo was present at the hearing before Alderman Howe and so were the children, and he promised that they will not appear any more at the Palace and that he will take them back to Binghamton and provide for them. He said he was innocent of any wrong intent in allowing his children to be on exhibition in a dime museum, and he averred that this was his first visit to Scranton. If he does not get out of town today steps will be taken to have him incarcerated and the children re-moved from his control.

ACCIDENT AT THE BALTIMORE.

What Mine Inspector Williams Has to Say About It.

Mine Inspector G. M. Williams has erence to Monday's accident in the Baltimore No. 2 shaft at Wilkes-Barre wher a number of miners had a narrow escape from being smothered:

escape from being smothered:

The workmen in the gangway fired a blast of dynamite in the coal, which ignited a number of gas feeders. The men applied water, it did not run with sufficient force to extinguish the fire, owing to something blocking up the pipe. While they were trying to put out the tipe in this manner the flames caught the timbers. This was in the slope workings. The men imprisoned were on the top of the plane on the same current of air, but about a mile away from the fire in the slope workings. On their way out the current traveled in the same direction as they did. This current carried the smoke with it and as it traveled more rapidly than the men the dense volumes of smoke overtook them. The men still strove to make their way through the smoke, which make their way through the smoke, which each moment was becoming denser, but they were overcome by it and sank in conscious.

they were overcome by it and sank inconscious.

We found that in order to get up to the men to rescue them it would be necessary to get some air up to the plane, it was accordingly arranged to split the air current, driving the smoke back toward the fire from that point and send a split of fresh air up the plane workings. This purified the air up in the plane, so that the rescuers were able to reach there. The men were found scattered all along the gangway and were all lying on their backs unconscious. The air current was restored to its proper condition before the officials left the mine.

It is probable that the part of the

It is probable that the part of the mine where the fire is will be idle for at least a month, while the other workings will be operated again next week. The loss by damage to the mine will not be very great, as the fire has all been
