IT WAS A CARELESS ELECTION.

A story is told in connection with the primaries held here Saturday in several of the West Side districts. At one of the polling booths was a typical ward-healer of the bolder style. He had been imbibing and was in a mood for anything. Besides, it was a dull election, and there was no opposition to the candidates. While standing in front of his district voting place he noticed a slit in one of the doors just about where a letter box ought to be. From the time of discovery on every voter who happened along and whose condition permitted the deceit placed his ballot in this fake opening in the door. When the "count" was made from the ballots dropped to Nowhere there were as many bits of paper as there were "drunks" in the district and the heeler who did the guiding was happy.

FELL FIFTEEN FEET.

Frank Grady, an employe at the South Mill of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal company, was injured Saturday while at work. He fell into one of the iron pits, fifteen feet deep, and when picked up he was unconscious and terribly injured. The employes of the mill thought that Grady's back was broken. Inquiry at the Moses Taylor hospital, where Grady was taken after the accident, showed that his condition is not so serious as was reported. No bones are broken and his recovery is a matter of only a short time. Grady's home is on North Main avenue. He is 26 years of age and is unmarried,

BACHELORS ARE NO MORE

That Well Known Social Organization Has Disbanded .- There Will Be an Annual Ball, However.

The Bachelors are no more. Th dissolution of the splendid social organization that has given Scranton its magnificent annual balls ceased to exist at a largely attended meeting held Saturday night in the office of Colonel

In the dissolution there was a disagreement and an agreement. All the twenty-three members present agreed that the ball had become too large, and that the invitation list had become too general. The disagreement came in planning for the future. In the discussion all deemed it advisable to give next New Year's and possibly annually thereafter, an ultra swell ball with the restrictive attendance. Twelve voted, to continue the Bachelors and have that organization father the new ball project, while ten voted that the Bachelors should disrupt and that any future affair should be given without any genial organization for the pur-

The ten who wanted to continue the Batchelors were for the most part the young married element; the twelve who took an opposite view and carried their point were the single men and younger element. The minority, though vigorously opposed to seeing the Bachelors go out of existence, yielded, gracefully when the vote deciding the matter was announced. The next ball will be given in the handsomely appointed rooms of the board of trade in the new building on Linden street. When the time comes for arranging it a few of the leading social spirits will get together, select a patronage and make their proper plans. Only Scrantonn's best with a few guests from outside the city, will be on the list. The ball, while not so massive a thing, will cutshadow in its elegance anything ever attempted in the old Bachelor days.

BURGLARS AT WORK.

Safe and Another Job in Dunmore-Neither . Successful.

The barking and restlessness of a bull dog prevented the success of an attempt at burglary Friday night in the office of the Keystone Plaster company, 422 Sixth street. When the local agent of the company, A. W. Cooley, entered the office Saturday morning he found the place in disorder. An investigation showed that an attempt had been made to crack the safe.

A hole was found drilled near the combination and tamped full of powder. A "jimmy" which the cracksmen neglected to carry away was left on the office table. All the details necessary to the firing of the charge in the safe door had been completed excepthanging of "sound" blankets. A bull dog owned by a neighbor across the way kept up an incessant barking from 11 to 2 o'clock at which hour its owner called him inside the house. Ordinarily he is a quiet animal. It is supposed he was aware of the burglars' presence and frightened them away by his barking.

Access was gained to the office through a window which was forced with the "jimmy." The men left by a rear door. There was nothing of value in the safe. The police were notified of the attment which was evidently made by Another gang took a hand in a job in Dunmore the same night and overlooked $400 in coin and bills in the office of the Dunmore Lumber company. They, too, broke open a window but did not have to resort to explosives.

They burst open several drawers, scattering the contents about the room. A compartment containing $400 was missed, an evidence that they had not finished their search when frightened away. It was the third recent job of th kind in Dunmore. Tramps are suspected in this case as in that of the central Henry Jackson, a negro, under arrest for stealing clothing, is suspicioned in connection with previous burglaries in Dunmore. He was arrested Friday and committed to the jail in default of $500

BILL AGAINST KEELEY IGNORED

The Charge Was Mayhem and it Was Preferred by James J. Burke -- Dave

Roche Also Escaped .- Judge Gunster Lectures the Jury for Tattling. GALLERY ..... Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument Approved Of--Work of the Jury Not Yet Finished.

The grand jury made a second report Saturday morning. True bills were found against Con stable Max Koehler and Frank Dam-brasio for murder. Arthur Hitchcock was indicted for embezzlement; Attorney C. S. Woodruff, for perjury in connection with the Taylor-Hannick dispute and true bills were found against the eight Italians implicated in the riot at the Florence colliery at the Ridge.

The charge of assault and battery preferred against Sanford Grant by T. W. Brodish, from whose wife Grant is alleged to have stolen $10,000 worth of kisses, was ignored and the costs put on the prosecutor. David Roche got free of the charge of attempting to bribe Police Lieutenant John Davis, M E. Keeley escaped prosecution in the charge of biting holes in Safe Agent James J. Burke's nasal appendage. The bill against R. E. Escott alias H. H. Howard, charged with insurance frauds, was also ignored.

MONUMENT PAVORED.

The jury also presented a favorable report on the petition for the erection of a soldiers' and sailors' monument This petition is directed to the county commissioners and is drafted on the strength of an act of assembly authorizing them to creet a suitable monument on the petiton of fifty citizens of the county. Two grand juries must favor it before it can be done When the jury had completed its report Judge Gunster gave them a lecture on the matter of divulging the secrets of the jury room. He said he was much surprised to learn on his way to court that a certain bill had been ignored. As the returns showed that the bill had been ignored it was evident he said that some juror had broken his vow on else cavesdroppers had been at work. He did not want to be severe with them, he said, but he wanted to impress upon them that the business of the grand jury was not public property until after it had been

THE BURKE-KEELEY CASE. The case which the judge had reference to is understood to be the Burke Keeley mayhem bill which was ignor ed Friday and which was street talk Friday night. It is possible and quite probable that the information referred to leaked out through the operations of eavesdroppers. The council chambers are separated only by two role curtains. The grand jury sessions were held in the common council chamber The curtain on the Select council side was found to be raised Saturday and it is presumed was raised all week. With only one curtain down it was easily possible for anyone to sneak into the Select chamber and hear everything that was going on in the other room. The jury was unable to finish its work by Saturday as was expected until this week. There are one hun-
