Bpecial Correspondence to The Tribune. Susquehanna, Jan. 12 .- Peter Mc Guirk, of Pleasant Valley, a few days since registered at a Susquehanna the cat's daily diet. hotel. During the evening he fell asleep on a sofa in the sitting room. His sleep was so deep that several trains pulled into the station, near by, with much noise, but failed in any way to disturb When everything had become quiet he raised himself from the sofa, walked to the end of the veranda, and asked in a keen falsetto: "Where's my mules?" The other men about the house discovered that he was fast asleep, but told him that his mules at the station. Immediately he walked across the intervening space to the station, and imagined a truck full trunks to be his mules. He Was handed a bucket of water and told to water them, which he did, holding the water to the truck handles. Then he was handed some straw, and being told to feed the mules, placed it under their imagined heads. By this time some one finest in this section of the state. had secured a glass of water, which being dashed into McGuirk's face, immediately awoke him. He was quite angry, but the situation being explained to him he soon recovered his good account of her obliging neighbors. humor, and said that if some one had They told her that kerosene would burn only touched him with the hand he better if it was boiled before would have been instantly awake. The peculiar part of the matter is, that he never owned a pair of mules in his life.

RAILROAD JOTTINGS.

Five locomotives have just been completed in the Erie shops here, and five others, of a different class, will be constructed at once.

There is a new freight run on th Delaware and Hudson road, between Carbondale and Oneonta, 96 miles, It is a two days' trip. There are two crews, each leaving Oneonta and Carbondale every other day,

The Baldwin Locomotive works re cently shipped forty-four locomotives of improved design to Japan.

President E. B. Thomas, of the Eric says: "While business is dull for the moment, we look forward to a better condition of affairs. If the legislatures, state and national, would only adjourn and go home, we would have a revival of business next day.

By the contract made between the Erie and the state, Susquehanna county has in the last forty years lost $400,- the use of the nearly 5,000 volumes, placed but our entire business, and moneyon the open shelves for free public access would necessarily interfere with and re-strict such use. The same is true as to the current periodicals in the reading saving people will do well to investigate.

The constant, and oftentimes crowded attendance of persons making avail of those parts of the library has been a matter of great satisfaction; although, to just ly serve them, has frequently taxed both the room and the limited assistance at our command for those purposes. The regular issues of 34 weekly, 71 75 pieces fine wool dress goods, 45c, and monthly and 2 quarterly periodicals were received during the year. Slight increase in the sets of bound periodicals was possi ble, owing to want of means from appro-priations. Several hundred volumes of such material awalt binding and the lack of them is becoming felt to a considerable extent. At the close of last year there were 25,294 volumes in the library. Accessions of 1899 numbered 3,157 volumes, of which 395 were by gift and exchange, 2,163 by purchase and 599 of United States documents depoited. VOLUMES DISCARDED.

During the year, 482 volumes were dis arded because of wear and tear, 19 on ac-ount of other damage or loss, and 7 others canceled or withdrawn for various cause a total of 506 deductions. Balance on hand at the end of the year being 27,943 volumes (See table appended for details.) Additions by direct purchases were not quite 200 volumes more than in 1895; and but a limited number thereof were in the nature of replacements of books worn out For the coming year it will be desirable to use a considerable portion of the book funds in that direction, since it is the most popular books (and in some senses the most useful one), that first wear out and need replacing. However gratifying it may be to report a large and increasing circulation, it re-mains to be borne in mind, no less, that such facts carry with them the corre-sponding necessity of additional expendi-tures for maintenance.
