ANGLO-AMERICAN TREATY HELD UP

Arbitration Will Probably Have a Hard Time in the Senate.

THE STATESMEN ARE DISTRUSTFUL

If the Trenty is Ratified Jingoes Will Be Out of a Job -- Silver Men Want War as They Think It Will Help White Metal -- Cieveland's Foes Do Not Intend to Let the President Retire Amid a Blaze of Glory.

Washington, Jan. 13.-It looks as though the ratification of the new arbitration treaty by the senate might be long delayed. There are senators, indeed, who predict that congress will adjourn without action on the treaty and that it may have to be withdrawn for revision. This is a state of affairs which will doubtless be something of a surprise to the country and which will afford anything but pleasure to Secretary Olney. The intent of the treaty is so good and it makes so remote the possibility of war between Great Britain and the United States that those who have greeted its signing with a shout of approval will have some difficulty in understanding how it is that the senate should hesitate at all about the ratification. But the senate is a peculiar and crotchety body, with a very high opinion of its own prerogatives and with little inclination to accept the judgment of outsiders. The treaty will b held up for rigid examination, and if the sentiment which has been freely expressed continues to prevail it may be held up for a long time.

PRESSURE FROM OUTSIDE. It is too much to say that the rejection of the treaty is probable. Tre mendous pressure will be brought to bear upon the senate from commercial interests, religious bodies and peace associations just as soon as an intimation goes out that there is any hesitation about ratifying. Before this pressure technical objections may melt away, and senators may be willing to accept the general provisions of a convention which does not suit them in details. But many senators are at present inclined to a very strict and thorough overhauling of the document. There is no expressed objection to the rangement which would do away with the probability of war without too great a surrender on the part of the United States, but they are naturally suspicious of a document which seems so plausible at first sight; they fear the Greeks bearing gifts. This may be ac countable in part for a general ten-dency to criticise the treaty, but some

A WHACK AT CLEVELAND. Senator Gorman says the treaty will be a long time pending in the senate, and a similar opinion is expressed by almost every other senator who has anything to say about it. The lawyers in the senate say it is extremely doubtful whether the system of appeals provided for in the treaty is outlined with Regrets That He Called Out the Milisufficient distinctness to make it prac-

Another consideration which tells with a good many silver Democrats is the fact that Grover Cleveland regards the treaty as the crowning work of his administration, and they would like to blunt Cleveland's pleasure by postponing ratification until a new administration has come in.

IS THE PRESIDENT IN REALITY A KING

Mr. Bacon Speaks on the Recognition of New Powers.

QUESTION OF NATIONAL INTEREST

If the President Has the Power Indicated by the Secretary of State it Is Greater Than That Yielded by Any Constitutional Monarch .- The Triumph of Olio in the House.

Washington, Jan. 13,-The senate spent the first two hours of today's session behind closed doors in the consideration of executive business (the extradition treaty with Argentine Republic) and the remainder of the day was occupied by Mr. Bacon, of Georgia, on the question whether the rec ognition of a new power was an executive or a legislative act. His contention was that it was a legislative func tion; only exclusively for determination. Even where the recognition was by the president, its validity, Mr. Bacon argued, was derived from the assent of congress either direct or implied. If the president had such exclusive power it was greater than any which any constitutional monarch yielded. Never, he said, was challenge of the power more sharply made than that by the secretary of state, in the matter, and never was defiance of authority more boldly given.

Mr. Bacon confined himself to the constitutional and legal points in the argument, refraining from every allusion to the practical question of rec ognizing the republic of Cuba. spoke for nearly four hours.
