iam C. Bulli, a Democrat. In the session of 1850 he was active in securing the passage of the act providing a new government for Philadelphia, commonly known as the Bullitt bill. In 1886 Mr. Penrose was elected to represent the Sixth district in the state senate, and re-elected in 1886, and again in 1884—his term expiring in 1888. He was elected president pro tem, at the sension of 1889, and re-elected in 1886. Among the many subjects of legislation that Mr. Penrose took an active pair in were those relating to the questions of railroad discrimination, revenue and taxation. He was prominent in all the debates on these subjects, as well as in the discussions on the legislation required to carry gut the provisions of an act establishing a new form of local government for Philadelphia.

In the state senate he is a recognized leader, a skillful debater, a fluent speaker, and one ever powerful in argument. In the session of 1893 he introduced a bill to abolish the public buildings commission of Philadelphia, and notwithstanding the active hostility of a powerful tobby, he succeeded in safely piloting the measure through both houses and placing it in the hands of the governor for his signature. He was a candidate for the mayoralty of Philadelphia in 1895 but was defeated at the last moment by the Combine on account of his anti-corporation record. In Philadelphia he is today the idol of the masses—a fact due to the magnificent and successful battle he has recently waged against the ringsters—and is recognized by all as one wholly deserving of confidence, by reason of his superior judgment in sizing up public affairs, his steadfast—ness of purpose, and his conceded ability to battle in the line of his convictions. Mr. Penrose by training and inheritance is devoted to his profession, the law, and is engaged in active practice in Philadelphia, in partnership with S. Davis Page and Edward P.
