Over-Heated Oven in a Bake Shop. Terrible Task Before the Firemen. Narrow Escape of the Bakers.

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.-The fire, which started at 6.45 o'clock this morning from an overheated oven in the basement of the six-story iron building, 1309 to 1317 Market street, burned over the block bounded by Thirteenth street and Juniper street, and Market and Filbert streets, destroyed or gutted sixty buildngs and consumed property valued at a million and a half dollars. Many small storekeepers lost their all and everal thousand working people were cast out of employment. The damaged buildings were generally fully insured. The fire was the worst that has been experienced in Philadelphia in a gen-eration. The scene of the destruction was located in the heart of the city. Many of the properties destroyed, especially on Thirteenth, Juniper and Silver streets, the latter a small thoroughfare running between Market and Filbert streets, were small old fashloned dwelling houses, and, aside from the loss to their tenants their destruction will probably be to the ultimate good if newer and more modern buildings are erected on their sites. Surounding this section, though, are many handsome wholesale stores, and, on the south side of Market street, directly opposite to where the fire raged the fiercest, is located the general store of ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker. Though on fire time and again, and, while the frontage on Market street was badly damaged, the store was saved from destruction. To the west of the fire, but separated from it by the great width of the street and pavement at this point, is the great pile of white marble buildings used as the city hall. Beyond the cracking of some of the plate glass windows by the intense heat, the hall escaped unscathed.

BOOKKEEPER DROFS DEAD.

While there were a numer of minor asualties among the firemen, no one was very seriously hurt, but one death is chargeable to the fire. John A. Felt, a bookkeeper in the employ of a business firm in the vicinity, dropped dead from heart disease produced by the excitement attending the fire.

The building at 1309 to 1317 Market street was occupied on the upper floors by the umbrella manufactury of Hirsch Brothers. They also occupied the lower floor of 1309 as a salesroom. Dennett's eating cafe occupied two other rooms on the ground floor, and the western the basement of their store as a bakery and in this basement two bakers were at work this morning. Their furnace was overheated, a little spark flew out a blaze followed and almost in an instant the two workmen were stretched half conscious on the floor by the overpowering smoke. The smoke curled its way up through the floor and a porter at work sweeping out the room, dashed into the street calling fire. A policeman at the corner rung in an alarm and then went back to the building to investigate the fire. Some one bethought themselves of the two bakers, and two young men employed in the establishment bravely descended through the smoke and dragged the half soffocated men out. It was a fearful morning to fight a fire. The termometer was near zero and the first line of hose as it was unreeled burst and covered everything surrounding with water that turned to ice the moment it struck. The flames gained on the firemen and alarm after alarm was rung in until every engine in
