After the car moved someone, it is claimed, turned the lights off and left the road open to the outbound car, which immediately "caught the lights" and started up the hill. There is a slight curve at the top of the hill and another at the bottom forming a weakly defined "S." This with the intervening obstructions, the Eureka hotel barn particularly, make it impossible for a motorman either on an ascending or descending car to get a full sweep of the hill. The point where the cars met is just midway between the two switches and it is evident that they must have started out almost at the same time. They came together with great force, as the descending car was going at a high rate of speed. Both the motormen, however, Enoch Evans, of the Providence car and W. Harland, of the Peckville car, aver that they had their cars under control. Neither however was expecting another car, as each supposed he "had the lights" and thus the aceident occurred. The fenders, headlights and dash boards of both cars were badly wrecked but both cars continued their trips. Both motormen, though they stuck to the brakes, escaped without injury None of the people in the incoming car sustained any more serious damage than a rough shaking up.
