WRECK ON THE D. & H.

The Narrow Escape of Engineer Ling-

felter and Fireman Burdick. A serious wreck occurred last evening at 5 o'clock in the Delaware and Hudson yard in which an engineer and firemen narrowly escaped death. They were Samuel Lingfelter, engineer, and Arthur Burdlek, fireman. The engine was pushing seven cars of coal up the incline to the coal pockets when the second car from the engine left the track and fell to the ground below, taking cars and engine with it. They dropped about ten feet. In some mirac-ulous way both fireman and engineer escaped death, and strange to say, escaped even serious injury. Both were in the cub when they went down. The engine was not badly damaged, but the cars were smushed,

At once men were put at work with shovels and It was not long before the wreck was cleared away.

JERMYN MAYFIELD

The animatoscope and phonograph entertainment to be given this evening under the auspices of the Crystal Fire ompany in Enterprise hall promises to be one of the most successful enter-tainments of the season. "The Sun" of Danville recommends the entertainment in the following:

"Prof. Lyman D. Howe gave a highly interesting entertainment in the Opera house last night, made up of the remarkable life-inotion pictures of the animatoscope and a large number of very catchy selections from the phonograph reproduced from distinguished singers, orchestras, impersonators, etc., perferming on the metropolitan stage By means of a funnel-shaped appliance attached to the phonograph every se lection reproduced was to be heard distinetly in all parts of the house. The audience derived much enjoyment from the realistic sounds issuing from the phonograph and expressed their appreclation by frequent applauses. During the time the doctor was in college about twenty years ago be met Miss Taylor and they became engaged. It was decided that the doctor should finish his course before they were married. Time passed, the doctor finished his studies, had gained a lucrative practice, but on account of the bride's parents being seriously ill. it was again deferred, but at last it was arranged and last night the words were spoken which made them man and wife.
