GAGE FOR THE TREASURY

He Is Summoned to Canton, and Will, It Is Believed, Surely Be Appointed.

EXPERTS PRONOUNCE JOHNSTON INSANE

Interesting Testimony Adduced in the New Bloomfield Trial.

DELUSIONAL INSANITY DEFINED

According to Dr. Moulton the Man Who Erroneously Thinks His Wife Has Been Untrue to Him and Kills Somebody Is Not Mentally Responsible for His Deed and Should Be Put in an Asylum.

New Bloomfield, Pa., Jan. 27.--The trial of Thomas L. Johnston followed the order of Druggist George S. Henry, at Duncannon last fall, was resumed today by recalling Dr. Moulton, the specialist on insanity from Philadelphia, who said persons who suffered from delusional or morbid insanity, without displaying such weakness to the people with whom they may associate. They also are usually able to perform their own ordinary duties of every day life. If the powers of self-control are not weakened too much, the untrained ordinary people who come in contact with such people are incompetent to pass judgment. Such testimony, he said, would be absolutely valueless.

Dr. Moulton said that he was positive Johnston was insane when he did the shooting. He went so far as to say that had he known of the doctor's condition and conduct he would have advised his removal to an insane hospital. During the cross-examination a close distinction was drawn regarding the difference between a murder committed by a sane man with cause for the belief of his wife's infidelity and a killing by a man who was laboring under delusional or morbid insanity, without any foundation for the belief that his wife had been unfaithful. Dr. Moulton, who has examined thousands of patients suffering from delusional or morbid insanity, said with reference to the first case, that the man would be guilty of murder because he had a perfect knowledge of right and wrong and should be punished for the crime. In the second instance, which corresponds with the case of Dr. Johnston, he said the man would be crazy and irresponsible and a fit subject for a lunatic hospital.

MORE EXPERT TALK.

Dr. Charles K. Mills, professor of mental diseases in the University of Pennsylvania, and an expert on insanity, corroborated what Dr. Moulton had said in reference to Dr. Johnston's condition. He had examined the prisoner on Nov. 15, 1896, in the jail, and learned in court he had no hesitancy whatever in pronouncing him insane when he killed Druggist Henry. He gained much of his information from the prisoner himself, who answered his questions readily. Dr. Johnston's case was an unusual one and if a thousand persons would act in the same way he would pronounce them all insane. Dr. Mills' testimony tallied exactly with that of Dr. Moulton, who is the star witness for the defense, and by whose testimony the attorneys hope to save the life of Dr. Johnston.

WARSHIPS FOR BERMUDA.

Peculiar Orders Are Given by the British Admiralty.

Washington, Jan. 27.--The United States naval attaches at London, Commander Cowles, sends the following to the navy department, dated January 12: The British Admiralty has given instructions for the Hotspur (coast defense ship) and the Monarch (third-class battleship) to be commissioned at an early date for service in Bermuda. On receipt of this information Commander Wainwright, chief intelligence officer, reported to Secretary of the navy that the vessels are at present in the British North Atlantic and West Indian squadrons. This indicates a considerable increase of naval strength in North America waters.

Under ordinary circumstances these reports would possibly lead to an inquiry from Secretary Olney addressed to the British government as to the reason for such an order, but it cannot be learned whether the state department whether such action has been taken or not. The strategic importance of the Bermuda fortifications can be appreciated by the statement that they are the center of a 700 mile circle which includes the north American coast line from Maine to Florida.
