CLUB AGAIN THE WINNER

Defeated the Players of the West Side Republican League in a Game of Cinch.

The West Side Central Republican club won its second game of cinch from the members of the West Side Republican League last night when eight representatives from both fraternities met in the club's room and fought with spades, clubs, etc. It was a sure cinch and the League was severely punished.

Before the game was commenced a committee from each organization inspected the packs of cards. In one pack there were found six "pedros." Who put them there is a mystery. Mr. Daniels denies that he did. Several holes were found in all the picture cards in one deck, marked "Moxey." At the first table were "pedros" players, i. e., those who had made a complete study of Hoyle and had a big shirt sleeve. When the cards in the pack were counted there were 52. There should have been 52. Somebody wanted a hand badly.

SMOKER AND DEBATE.

St. Leo's battalion held its first debate last evening in the presence of a large assemblage of young men in the battalion quarters at St. David's hall. The subject was "Resolved, That a profession is preferable to a trade." On the affirmative side, which won, were Thomas Murphy, David Reese and Thomas Tierney; negative, Patrick Buckley, James Bolton and P. J. Gilroy. The arguments were all excellent, and the speakers showed much skill in the debate. The judges were John P. Durkin, Thomas McHugh and J. H. Deane. After the debate cigars were smoked while members of the battalion gave an impromptu entertainment. President Gallagher was in the chair.

INSPECTION TOMORROW.

The public is invited to visit the West Side hospital tomorrow afternoon between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock. This is the regular day for public inspection. Matron Smith, the janitor and the directors will be present at that time and will escort their visitors through the building. There is certainly a great deal of public interest in the new institution, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to see the well equipped building.

Suburban News In General

The North End and St. John's basketball teams played a close and exciting game last evening in Company H armory in the presence of a large crowd. The St. John boys indulged in considerable rough playing and showed a disposition to huffize the officials. The first half of the game ended with the score standing 10 to 9 in favor of the North End. In the second half the home team succeeded in getting in more of their team work, and by excellent passing added three more points to their score, making the final score 4 to 0. Next Thursday evening the North End team will play the Pittston Regimental team. Tomorrow evening the Green Ridge Assembly Dancing class will meet in Brown's hall on East Market street. Miss Anna Mulley, of North Main avenue, is visiting friends at Brooklyn, N. Y. The funeral of John F. Coleman, late of Parker street, took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence of friends and relatives of the deceased attended the services in the Holy Rosary church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. W. P. O'Donnell, who also preached an excellent sermon from the text: "Woe and woe, for ye know not the hour wherein the Son of man cometh." After the services the remains were taken to the Dunmore Catholic cemetery, where interment was made. The pall-bearers were Robert McGuire, Robert McGuire, Jr., Michael McDonald, James Lynch, Thomas McGowan and Peter Lynch. Miss Mollie Hanson, of Leggett's street, who has been ill for the past few weeks, is recovering.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sallio, mother of A. O. Mitchell, died at West Dunsmuir, Wayne county, on the 21st, aged 86 years. The death is noted in Brooklyn, N. Y., of Rev. John Sheridan, a clergyman and author of several books, last spent his annual vacations in Hawley. At South Canaan, Jan. 25, Mrs. Anna G. wife of Fred C. Niles, of Wichita, Kan., died of consumption at the age of 38 years. She was the daughter of John Lerch. Michael Whalen, a resident of the lower portion of the county (lay over forty years, is dead, at the age of 78. He was identified with the coal mining industry at Coleraine. Henry Whalen, son of Daniel Whalen, of Tobyhanna, died last Friday in Fort-Land, Ore., from rheumatism of the heart. The remains have been shipped east and are expected to arrive at Tobyhanna Saturday. J. W. Decker, for many years a resident of Preston township, died at his home in Preston Park, Jan. 29, of pneumonia, aged about 60 years. He was tax collector of the township and was a well known and held nearly all of the town offices. Henry Floyd, of Sugar Notch, while working in the mines on Wednesday, suddenly dropped dead. He was a native of Cornwall, England, 57 years old and regarded as an excellent workman and citizen. A wife and five children survive. William M. Rapsher died on Jan. 27 at Lehighton, Pa., aged 55 years. He was a district attorney of Carbon county in 1883, and was an active Democrat in local politics. He served over four years in the war of the rebellion. William, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Tiche, of 1138 Thompson street, died Wednesday morning at 10 months and 3 days. The funeral will take place Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Hyde Park Catholic cemetery. Henry T. Dolmetsch, a prominent young business man of Honesdale, died at the home of his mother, in Honesdale, Tuesday evening. He was born in Scranton, Sept. 3, 1877, and two years later his parents removed to Honesdale. When a young man he learned photography, his way to his career in business, and was engaged in the studio of Joseph Bode for nineteen years. In 1894 he established a studio of his own, which he continued until his death. He was married to Miss Jessie Ball, a daughter of the late Henry Ball. She, with one child, Marguerite Constance, nearly 3 years old, survives him. Mr. Dolmetsch was a member of the Episcopal church. The funeral services will be held at his mother's home this (Friday) afternoon at 3 o'clock. Henry Asher, proprietor of the Lackawanna House, in that town, for thirty years, died Jan. 21, of consumption, aged 68 years. Mr. Asher was a native of Westphalia, Germany; served in the Crimean war; came to America some time in the early sixties; for a time was engaged in the clothing business in New York city, and in 1867 purchased the hotel property at Lackawanna, which has since been his residence. Three children survive him. Mr. C. P. Phipps, of New York; one unmarried son and daughter at home. His remains were taken to New York last Saturday, and in compliance with the wishes of his family, he was buried in the Cypress Hills cemetery beside his wife. In an old pamphlet which was discovered recently in the Astor library in New York, are some interesting figures with reference to the cost of a piece of track laid by the Baltimore and Ohio in 1829 and 1831. L. L. Sullivan, evidently a civil engineer, in a report to R. L. Colt, estimates that the track laid with wood sleepers, wood bearers and plate rail, exclusive of ground and graduation, would cost $4,362 per mile; with stone blocks, wood bearers and plate rail, of which the cost of iron was $1,324, the cost would be $5,115 per mile; with granite sills in line with plate rail, of which the iron was $2,637, the cost would be $6,590 per mile, divided as follows: Sills at $11.50 per 100.....$3,650 Bar iron.....1,300 Broken stone.....640 Various items.....80

COST OF TRACK.

The engineer speculated on two ton loads and one ton cars, and said in his report that the Baltimore and Ohio would be doing a very rash thing if they went beyond this point. He also says "the locomotive engine now operating successfully on the Baltimore road, made by Mr. Winans, is run on a friction carriage, though of moderate power, has a great useful effect." Mr. Winans was apparently the first to patent outside journals and to reduce the resistance from friction from 1 1/2 to 4 pounds per ton. On July 4th, 1825, Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, the celebrated signer of the Declaration of Independence, laid the first stone on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

DUNMORE.

A concert was held in the Presbyterian church last night in which the best of local talent took part. The rostrum and auditorium were brilliantly decorated under the supervision of Florist Clark with a profusion of ferns, palms and potted plants, which presented a very pleasing and attractive appearance. The following are those who took part in the program: Selection for the organ, E. E. Southworth; part song, choir; flute solo, Alfred Gable; recitation, Miss Edith Ripley; solo, Mrs. Geo. Dub. Dimmick; chorus of little maidens, Misses Louise Smith, Ruth Hull, Beth Savage, Joan Meyer, Frances Moffatt, Margaret Bryden and Frances Irely; tenor solo, E. Damon; whistling solo, A. J. Harber; reading, Miss Ida Doty; song, Misses Helen Farrer, Beale Head, Grace Jenkins, Marion Swartz, Pearl Market, Catherine Tester and Florence Shepherd; duet, Messrs. A. J. Harber and E. Bowen; part song, choir. The Young Men's Institute held their annual social last night in Washington hall. The hall was elaborately decorated, fairly blazing under the number of colored lanterns, with which, together with ferns, palms and evergreens, it was decorated. It was the most brilliant society event of the year and greatly exceeded all previous ones. The music was furnished by the Lawrence orchestra. The Women's guild of St. Mark's church served an oyster supper in the church parlors last night. The supper was well attended and was a decided financial success. The many friends of Charles Webber, of Blakely street, will be pleased to hear of his improved condition. Harry Treveser, of South Blakely street, is convalescing after his recent illness. Richard W. Winterstein, of North Blakely street, has resumed his employment after an illness of two weeks. Miss Jane Henderson and Mr. Lee Gill are being entertained by Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Haughton. The executive committee of the county legions will meet in Boyle's hall this evening. Special business appertaining to the coming county convention will be discussed. The women in blue will be discussed at the Dunmore hotel, is indisposed.

The Progress of the World.

It is Artistically Symbolized in the Interior of the Remodeled House of Representatives.

Pennsylvanians who can, should by all means examine the decorations on the interior of the Pennsylvania house of representatives. These decorations are being roughly criticized, and it must be admitted that they are in some instances a trifle gay for the quiet tastes of the average rural legislature. But as specimens of art they command appreciation, and reflect creditably upon the taste of Leon P. Dabo, the artist who gave them birth. The following description is taken from the Pittsburg Times: The effect of the interior is one of stately richness. The color scheme as a whole is red, green and gold. The ceiling is divided into oblong panels, richly ornamented with modeled ornaments in the renaissance style. The walls have been covered with felt and the old wainscoting of imitation marble replaced by a handsome paneling of San Domingo mahogany.

Over the speaker's chair is a group of statuary, with figures showing Law, Commerce and Agriculture, indicating the highest human development. This is carried out throughout the room. In fact, the features which attract most notice is a frieze of allegorical figures painted upon a gold ground. It was at first proposed to have Pennsylvania subjects, but Superintendent Delaney decided, after consultation with the architect, to have a frieze of general subjects, and that for the hall of the house, the progress of the world should be symbolized.

The frieze is five feet in height and extends all around the room. The problem was to find "under the beneficence of good laws, mankind progresses from barbarity to the highest form of civilization, the fine arts and sciences following." The composition proper begins at the left of the speaker's desk. The first group with fishing implements lead the procession and are immediately followed by men of arms, a particularly robust, half-nude man holds in check two large-looking dogs. Behind another figure, whose clothing from a mistle sheepskin has already been cut out worn by earlier persons, sounds the battle cry, the rejoicing of victorious arms. A youth on one knee is adjusting his sandals straps and is followed by two particularly straggling nude men bearing on a pole carried on their shoulders a wild fowl, the proceeds of the chase. This is followed by some women with flax thread, a particularly fine old man is weaving a primitive carpet, illustrating the primitive man hunted for a living his women folk at home took such rude articles of attire as they need, culminating, as intelligence grew in the weaving of those wonderful rugs of the Orient, which are to this day our admiration.

SOUTH SIDE NEWS.

In the midst of the snow storm yesterday, a ragman was slowly making his way to the city center, when he approached the intersection of Washington and Pittston avenues. The ground was covered with ice and the steadily falling snow had rendered it obscure. On this dangerous path the horse slipped and fell. Being content with a reclining position, the sagacious animal refused to rise. After about an hour of waiting, the man, with the assistance of a few passers-by, succeeded in once more raising his lazy friend to its feet. No damage resulted aside from the breaking of the harness. Wednesday afternoon Frank Reid Miller, of Irving avenue, was painfully injured while at work. He was employed in Hagen's planing mill, where he accidentally got his hand caught in a machine, cutting off two of his fingers. Dr. Manley attended him. The funeral of Michael O'Malley, of South Washington street, who died at the Moses Taylor hospital early Wednesday morning, will take place from his home. Interment will be made in Hyde Park Catholic cemetery. Hugh Mooney, the motorman who was injured Tuesday morning by the street car near Moore's, is being improved at the Lackawanna hospital. THE PROGRESS OF THE WORLD.

It is Artistically Symbolized in the Interior of the Remodeled House of Representatives.

Through not a big industry, it is a profitable one, and a good many farmers up in that end of the state own half a dozen, or even more, little limburger factories, each employing several men and keeping busy all the year round. Wisconsin is New York's only competitor in this line, and by mutual agreement the manufacturers have divided the country, the Wisconsin men taking all the West and the New York men the entire East. In this way each manages to sell at a good profit, just low enough to compete with the German article even by serious-minded Teutons, who are gourmards when it comes to cheese. Although not a big industry, it is a profitable one, and a good many farmers up in that end of the state own half a dozen, or even more, little limburger factories, each employing several men and keeping busy all the year round. Wisconsin is New York's only competitor in this line, and by mutual agreement the manufacturers have divided the country, the Wisconsin men taking all the West and the New York men the entire East. In this way each manages to sell at a good profit, just low enough to compete with the German article even by serious-minded Teutons, who are gourmards when it comes to cheese.

Just why there are only two regions in this country where limburger can be successfully produced is something the farmers do not know, and no one has been able to find out. Experiments have been tried in other places, but they have all resulted in failure. All that is certain is that there is some peculiarity in the grass of Wisconsin and Northwestern New York that gives the milk precisely the right chemical properties for limburger. In New York the right sort of grazing ground does not extend much beyond the boundaries of Jefferson county. Exactly the same curious freak of nature and vegetation is to be noticed in Ohio. There the farmers can turn out Swiss cheese equal in quality to any that the Continent of Europe can produce. But in Ohio, cows will not give limburger milk any more than the Jefferson county (N. Y.) cows will give Swiss cheese milk. Each section thus has a comfortable little trade in its own and is secure against competition.

The making of limburger is a complicated matter, the process taking six weeks. Unlike most cheeses, limburger is not pressed, and it is only heated up to 90 degrees, thereafter. The good, old-fashioned American cheese is made at a temperature of nearly 120. People who do not understand the process of making limburger, but who have eaten it, or at least been close to it, may be interested in knowing that what causes the recent smell is the whey working out through the coating of salt with which each cheese is thickly covered.
