The Senate Exhibits Contempt for the Chief Magistrate.

AROUSED BY TEXAS JUDICIAL BILL

Grenter Part of the Day's Session is Devoted to the Anglo-American Arbitration Treaty-Business Transacted Behind Closed Doors .- The House Considers Affairs Relating to District of Columbia -- Report of Civil Service Commission.

Washington, Feb. 8.-Practically the motion to proceed to executive busi- of the national committee. ness was made by Mr. Sherman, of from a bill passed by both houses. It was a bill creating a new judicial district in Texas. The United States judge, district attorney, marshal and clerk had reported to the department of justice that the proposed legislation was not only unnecessary, but that it would be a serious interruption to the business of the court. And on that report the president had noted in vetoins the bill. He was roundly taken to task by Mr. Mills, of Texas, for having consulted those officials instead of consulting the two senators and thirteen representatives from the state of Tex-"very strong, good and honest rea-sons" for the president's action, but the people living in the countles embraced within the new district. And when it came to the yea and nay vote there was but one senator-Cantery, of tial mistake in it, led Mr. Hill, of New York, to question the constitutionality of such a proposition, and the matter went over for further consideration. went over for further consideration.

SESSIONS OF THE HOUSE.

This report embodies the work raged, jumped from the sleigh and of the commission for the past two years, as the report for 1895 was not issued, owing to the various amendments made to It by the president, and the commission deferred its report for that year so as to include the thousands of positions placed under the classified service during the past eighteen months. The total approximate number of positions in the civil branch of the government is 178,717, of which 87,107 are in the classified service, and 91,610 in the unclassified service

Of those not yet classified, $6,725 are postmasters of the fourth class. Of those remaining in the classifiable, but unclassified group, many will be transferred to the classified service by the action of the rules, as, for instance In the customs service, when the number of employes in a custom house becomes as many as five, and in the postoffice service when a postoffice becomes a free delivery office. The aggregate compensation paid in the executive civil service of the United States during the year ended June 20, 1896, was $100,000,000. The whole number examined for the five branches of the classified service during the year were 31,370, of whom 20,493 passed and 10,876 failed to pass. Under the head of removals the report says that during the last four years the removals from competitive positions in the classified departmental service at Washington have been less than 2 per cent, a year for all causes, not including such removals as resulted from necessary reductions in the ed service at Washington, the removals are believed to have aggregated in and obtained from the little wizard a arge profit on their investment. Some years ago, when Mr. Gould was buying railroads, Messrs, Billings and Jarrison were in control of Missouri Pacific and losing money on it every day. Learning that Mr. Gould was quietly buying up the stock, they waited for him to discover that they hald the key to the situation, and at the proper time sold out to him at a high figure. Mr. Billings leaves an estate valued at $29,000,000.

Soon after his father's death he married Miss Albertina Leisse, and about that time entered the St. Louis Medical college, from which he was gradu- Del, & Hudson

For a short time Duestrow abandoned the bibulous habits he had formed of the votes of the several states for and his friends believed that he had sowed his wild oats and had settled down to a respectable life. A baby main on the table until the official the young husband and wife were proud and happy. But when the baby was about a year old Duestrow fell on the immigration bill was presented from grace. He became infatuated to the house by Mr. Danforth, who with Clara Allen, or Howard, the gave notice that he would call it up for keeper of an improper house in St.

When the baby boy was two years old the climax came. About 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Feb. 13, 1894, Dueson the afternoon of Feb. 13, 1894, Duestrow drove up to his home in a sleigh. His wife saw him from a window and was intoxicated, a condition that had ingly replied to the maid's query. She administration there were about 43,000 turned and started back into the started after her. She became fright ened and ran upstairs, taking refuge in Mrs. Duestrow's room. Duestrow followed and struck the girl.

"How dare you strike that girl?" exclaimed Mrs. Duestrow. "If you want to hit some one, hit me."

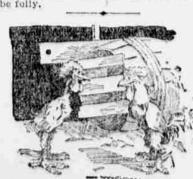

The maddened man struck her, and she turned and ran into the hall. He followed, beating her. In the hall she turned to defend herself and pushed him. He staggered and fell against the wall, and almost immediately drew a revolver and fired. The bullet took effect in the woman's side, and she sank to the foor. Then Duestrow, apparently realized what he had done and bent over his wife, calling her by name and asking her to look up and speak to him. Just then Louis, the baby, toddled into his father's arms and began kissing

The caresses of the child scemed to again enrage the father, and he turned on it in a fury. With his baby clasped tightly to his breast, Duestrow placed the revolver against the child's temple and sent a bullet crashing through the infant's head, causing instant death. Then he placed the body beside that of the dying mother, bent low and fired another bullet through her head and fled from the house. Duestrow ran to the nearest police station, where he wildly exclaimed: "It was an accident-an accident, I tell you. I am no murderer. I did not kill her.' These words helped later to condemn him when he pleaded insanity in defense of his double crime. Duestrow was locked up and has been force. In the unclassified and except- in jail ever since.
