THE PLANS OF THE MOTHERS' CONGRESS

High Aims of the Unique Assemblage in Washington Today,

PRACTICAL AND UNIQUE FEATURES

An Exhibit of Nursery Equipments and the Necessary Paraphernalia. Papers on Live Themes Affecting Motherhood--Latest Ideas with Reference to the Proper Training of the Young.

Isabel W. Ball, in Washington Star. A celebrated writer has given it as opinion that the best time to begin the education of a child is at least one hundred years before it is born. This is the all-embracing idea of what is going to be undertaken by the delegates to the national congress of mothers, which convenes in the Arlington hotel on Wednesday, Feb. 17. If the ideas of the thoughtful, earnest women who have worked with such unflagging zeal to convene this congress of mothers could be embodied in one single sentence, it is probable that one quoted on their program would cover the ground, "Character cannot be talked into or taught into a child; it must be lived Doctor Clara Bliss Finley, one of the bright progressive Washington women, who is particularly interested in this longress, believes implicity in this theory. And she thinks that what mothers must have before they can become fitled for the cares of motherhood is practical education for its duties. It is as good as a whole course of lectures on hygiene and health to hear her discourse on what "mothers ought to know about children," but it would scarcely be safe to print all that she thinks the most of them do not know, or, at least, the indifference they display in putting the little knowledge they possess into practice.

"I think sometimes that most mothers look upon children that come to them as an incident, or accident in their lives, rather than a part of God's great plan to people and improve the world, said, "and till wives come to regard the advent of children as the crowning giory of marriage, we cannot look for much improvement in the morals of the home, or place great faith in the stability of the government. Weak mothers and degenerate fathers wrecked imperial Rome when she ruled the world. The same influences-immoderate love of wealth, ambition to shine as fashion's arbiter, love of display, the longing to sway society, the greed for power in the political world, the accumulation of tremendous fortunes for self-aggrandizement—all these aided in the downfall of Rome, and they might lead to the downfall of our own grand republic if the canker of worldliness were permitted to eat into the hearts of our American men and women any deeper. great good may come."

ORIGINATED IN WASHINGTON. The inception of this movement was evolved from the brain of a Washington woman, Mrs. Theodore Birney, the happy mother of nine children. It has widened with the process of the suns," men of science all over the United States rise up and tell these devoted women that they have struck the keynote of herolsm at last, and wish them God speed For three months thousands of ministers have made this mothers' congress the text for innumerable sermons. A paragraph from one old pastor serves to show how deep the plea for this congress has sunk into the hearts of those who have lived long enough to appreciate the good that may come out of it. "How giad I am," says the writer, "to have lived until dore Birney will head the list with her this day when such a convention as nine healthy examples of posterity, you have set for February is possible and Dr. Clara Bliss will bring up the and prospectively a realization. Wonderful! I date from the days when Samuel Adams, Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton were the great persons and actors. I was born before the United States had any historywhen it was not big enough to go outdoors alone and had to have a bar or embargo to hold it back. When Spain held America, even so much of what is now our best, and cast her shadow so far over to our outer boundary that the memory of our danger awakens a gloomy and also a grateful emotion. Then the writer says that, if age did not incapacitate him, he would be glad

Letters of encouragement have poured Incomplete by Dickinson, Miss Francis Willard, Mrs. the hundred from ministers and mothers, fathers, and many people who Miss Mary E. Mumford. are neither. The letters in themselves would be a magnificent symposium of bright thought and suggestion if they rould be printed, and would doubtless aid many a struggling mother to better light on the subject of child rear-to "blaze out upon this glad occasion, both sermons and prayer."

MRS. HEARST'S BENEVOLENCE. This congress is unique in many ways. It is a little like Topsey, it just "growed," and, like a big snow ball, has gathered substance in its travels, till it has gone | the speakers that will be in attendance beyond the wildest hopes of the mothers who first thought of it. Mrs. Theodore Birney, who is president, was called away by the illness of her husband, just when her dearest dreams of success for a lifelong project were about to be realized, and the management of the enterprise had to be placed in other hands. Those hands happened to belong to the first vice president, Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, whose name has grown to be one to conjure with when philanthropic deeds are to be done. great wealth at her command, Mrs. Hearst's sole idea of its value is to use It in making the world better and happier. One day it is a musicale for her society friends, the next it is in establishing a kindergarten for street waifs Here it is a girl who has brains, but no money to cultivate them, and tomorrow it is perhaps to be a youth wh has latent within him great inventive genius, and, like a patron saint, Mrs. Hearst gives him the "chance" that may one day make him famous. This congress of mothers appealed to Mrs Hearst at once, and the money that has made it go, has been given as freely as though it grew on bushes, and she had but to pick it. The office of the business end of the congress is close to her home, and she has been constantly con sulted. Without her material assistance it never would have reached the point it has, and too much praise cannot be bestowed on this gentle, gracious wo man, who is so instant and ardent to lend a helping hand where real merit lies. She hopes for great results from the meetings, and on looking over the programme it looks as though she could not be disappointed

The cabinet ladies, headed by Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Stevenson, have aken the livellest interest in everything pertaining to the congress, and the press ill over the country, particularly the church and woman's magazines, have given the matter the widest publicity. There is no real organization. There are no by-laws, no constitution; there never was a petition, and the women who have become the officers came together in the most unostentious manner, slipped into the offices by apparent natural selection, and have worked like Trojans bound together by their comnon interest in humanity, and working without hope of emolument!

A PRACTICAL PROBLEM.

To tell the ground that they hope to cover with their work would be to sum up all that goes to make existence tolerable. The congress will consider subjects bearing upon the better and broader spiritual and physical as well as mental training of the young, such as the value of kindergarten work and the extension of its principles to more advanced studies, a love of humanity and of country, the physical and mental evils resulting from some of the present methods of our schools and advantages to follow from a closer relation between the influence of the home and that of institutions of learning. Of special importance will be the subject of the means of developing in children characteristics which will elevate and ennoble them, and thus assist in overcoming the conditions which now prompt crime and make necessary the maintenance of jails, workhouses and reformatories. There will be talks on physicial culture, heredity, reproduction and natural law, dietetics, music parental reverence, moral responsibility of women in heredity, child studies and many other subjects. All over the country "mothers' clubs" have been forming ever since this congress became an assured fact, and these clubs will send their representative women to the congress to get new ideas and have their own brightened up.

Very naturally many of the mothpressions from them and all others ter of voters, Lewis Latchen, R., 108, who wish to be heard in that manner, School controller, George Shires, R., 108. who wish to be heard in that manner, a question box will be on the table of presiding officer. Into this all questions may be dropped, unsigned if desired, but fully stated, and at certain hours each day these question, O. P. Miller, D., -; M. J. Gerrity, D., 3. distributed to the various members of Register of voters, David J. Evans, R., the committees who seem best fitted to answer them, will be presented in "conference," the title that has been given to quiet little meetings that will be held at stated periods in smaller rooms in the Arlington, and in charge of Frances Newton.

THE NURSERY EXHIBIT.

One of the practical things of the congress is the "Model Nursery," which will be fitted up in the Arlington, where mothers can see what a child's nursery should be like. In some respects, of course, this will not be quite 'model," for in real, up-to-date nurseries no big mirrors would ornament the walls, and such a thing as a bit of drapery at the windows would give don't want it to get to the point where the model nurse heart failure, but barit is perceptible, and so we propose to ring those two anachronisms, the nurbegin in time. This first congress of sery will be quite fin de siecle in all its mothers is the first step in the grand appointments. There will be the very scheme. We are hopeful that out of it latest thing in bedsteads, and mattresses, and pillows, in bathing robes, tubs, soaps, towels, night lamps and all the other paraphernalia of a well-appointed nursery. There will be a small cabinet fitted up with medicines to be used in emergencies until the doctor arrives, and during the conference of Thursday morning Dr. Clara Bliss Fintill the whole world has been set talk-ing about it. Truly "a little child shall these models as and it will probable by J. O'Malley, D., 88; Joseph Stewart, R., 3. ing about it. Truly "a little child shall these medicines, and it will probably be Register of voters, John Flynn, D., 88; one of the most valuable subjects to to send delegates to this congress, and mothers in the whole congress. This model nursery will be in charge of some lady who will explain all its trappings. There will be a model kindergarten, in which all the materials for a successful school of this character will be displayed and explained.

One of the features of the congress that will be of interest is the photograph gallery. This will consist of photographs of all the officers, and then each officer who has a family will have a photograph of herself and family to hang on the wall. Mrs. Theorear with her cherished one daughter.

WHO WILL ATTEND. Many distinguished people from a distance will be present at the congress and present papers, or talk on some subject. Dr. Vincent, the great Chautauquan; Margaret Sangster, Anthony Comstock, Hamilton Mabie, Dr. Walter L. Harvey, Mrs. Ellen Henrotin, Mrs. Stanton Blatch, Miss Anna Schryver Mrs. Ellen Richardson, Mrs. Sallie A. Cotton, Mrs. W. H. Felton, Mrs. H. A. Stimson, Dr. G. Stanley Hall, Miss Constance McKenzie, Miss Francis Newton, Mrs. Ballington Booth, Mrs. Helen H Gardner, Miss Amalie Hoffer, Mrs. Rebekah Kohut, Rev. W. A. Bartlett, Mrs.

These are all people who are known from one side of the continent to the other, as editors, kindergarten teachers, workers in mission fields, in Sunday schools, members of that largest of all organizations of women, the National Council of Women, and writers for children, authors of books on sociological problems, temperance workers, ministers, in fact, nearly all the fields of thought along educational and scientific lines will be represented in

RESULTS IN OTHER PLACES.

Pittston City.

The Democrats, as usual, carried the city, almost unanimously. Over in the borough of West Pittston the Republicans defeated a composite ticket in which the ingredients were Democrats, Citizens, Independents, Populists and women, Ev-ery Republican was elected. The result in city and borough was as follows: FIRST WARD.

Select Council-James Langan. School controllers-John Doyle; Willam Jordan.

SECOND WARD. Common Council-Martin Gerrity, P. F. Joyce.
School Controllers-Charles H. O'Brien, Thomas Redding.

Archbald.

For the first time in many years Archbald was carried by the Republican local candidates and although the majorities are small they are considered safe. At this writing the indications are that John J. Langan will be elected burgess majority of about fifty, and A. J. justice of the peace by about eighty. P. J. McDonnell, who was nominated both by the Democrats and Republicans, had no opposition. In the first ward John E. Jones was elected councilman and Henry Probst, school director. In the Second ward, a strong Democratic stronghold, the fight was remarkably close. Although the count has not been completed at this writing the indications are that M. J. Dean, Republican, will be elected coun-cilman and W. T. Cummings, Democrat, school director by a small majority. In the Third ward P. J. Loftus was elected councilman, and P. J. O'Rourke re-elected school director. The vote as counted so far stands as follows:

FIRST WARD. First District-Tax collector, McDon nell, 230. Justice of the peace, Duffy, 128; Munley, 99. Burgess, Langan, 147; Lane, 82. Councilman, Jones, 130; Ball, 101.
