TRANSACTION OF THE LATE JUDGE HANDLEY

It is a Subject of a Dispute Now Before

SHARP PRACTICES ARE ALLEGED

The Equity Improvement Company of Winchester, Va., and the Equity Improvement Company of Scranton Are Fighting a Case Stated Arising from the Sale of the Handley Block .. Other Matters in Argument Court.

Whether or not the late Judge John

Handley was guilty of sharp practices—to put it mildly—in his dealings with the Equity Improvement company of Winchester, Va., is a question that was submitted to the local court yesterday. The matter was presented in the form of a case stated between the Equity Improvement company of Scranton and the Equity Improvement company of Winchester, with Messrs. Palmer and Amerman as attorneys for the local company, the plaintiff and Attorney John F. Williams, of Winchester, representing the Virginia corporation, the defendant, Mr. Amerman argued the ase for his side. Mr. Williams preented the defendant's cause in an elabrate brief, forwarded by mail.

The Handley block, corner of Wyoming avenue and Spruce street gives rise to the contention. The Equity Improvement of Winchester, in which Judge Handley owned five-sixths of the stock and of which he was president, bought this property for $225,000. The concern became impoverished and at Judge Handley's suggestion concluded to dispose of the property in order to liquidite its indebtedness. At a meeting of the directors the judge was authorized to sell the property for twenty-five per cent, less than was paid for it. after this Judge Handley went to Win-chester and informed the company there that he had sold the property for the price they had fixed, $168,750, to the Equity Improvement company of Scranton, under certain conditions contained in a bond, which bond howver he did not produce, averring that he had not brought it along with him. The Virginia company by resolution ratified the sale, without the precaution of informing itself of the condiions of the bond, relying, as is stated n the brief, upon Judge Handley's in egrity and the presumption that he ould not do anything to injure the aterests of a company in which he was ilmost the sole owner.

BOND NOT SATISFACTORY. After Judge Handley's death his exec itors came across the bond and proeeded to enforce a compliance with its provisions. These provisions were, to he minds of the Winchester people, unfair and inequitable and for this reason and the discovery that Judge Handley vas himself the Equity Improvement company of Scranton, being president and owning all but four shares of stock, hey refused to accept the provisions of the drastic bond and hence the suit. In a nutshell the Winchester people claim that Judge Handley sold a property for a company in which he held five-sixths of the stock to a company n which he held all the stock and by making the terms of the sale immeas urably favorable to the latter com pany hurt himself a little that he might benefit himself much. The brief does not mince words but openly avers that while acting in the capacity of double fiduciary he was guilty of fraud and

The answer made by Mr. Amerman o these allegations is that the company had every opportunity of acquainting itself with the terms of the bond, before it ratified the sale; that after it did learn of the bond's provisions it took no steps to repudiate the sale or object to the terms and that the objections offered now are solely for the purpose of continuing their enjoyment of the proceeds of the sale without living up to the agreement under which the sale was made

The amount over which the dispute arises is $15,000, represented by coupons on the bonds given originally by the Winchester company for the Handley block. Judge Handley's stipulations as to how these coupons should be assumed is where the alleged sharp prac-tices come in, the Winchester people believing that they were rid of this sponsibility when the sale was made to the Scranton company, but it developing later that they are made to assume

NEW TRIAL WANTED. The rule for a new trial in the case of

W. C. Tunstall against Joseph F. Baumeister and others, was argued by Mr. Hamilton, representing the defendants who are the petitioners, and Mr. Ross representing Tunstall. The case grows out of the disruption of the Sons of America Printing company. The paper was printed at the Providence Register plant. When the company decided to give up the management the paper it turned it over to J. U Hopewell in payment for what was owing for printing, believing, as is alleged, that Mr. Hopewell was the owner of the Providence Register. Mr. Hopewell says he is not the owner of the Register, but that W. C. Tunstall is, and Mr. Tunstall seconds the assertion by coming in with a bill of $319 or the printing of the Sons of America. the court erred in several instances but particularly in not admitting a evidence a campaign circular bearing John U. Hopewell's portrait, the an nouncement that he is a candidate for auditor and the statement among other things that he is the proprietor and editor of the Providence Register.

Other cases argued were: Jacob Plecher against Scranton Traction company, rule to strike of non-suit; John Myers against E. Pringle and others, rule for new trial; A. E. Betterly against Henry Chappel and others, rule for a new trial; Emma May Van Horn against John S. Van Horn, rule for decree in divorce; Patrick McHale against George D. Brown, demurrer; J. Elliot Ross against James Johnson committee, rule for judgment. The rule for a new trial was dis-charged in the case of Caroline M. Reed against Charles Tropp.

AMUSEMENTS. That the theater-going public hanker after melodrama is evinced by the reception accorded "The Land of the Living" wherever it is presented. It belongs to that class of plays that appeals to the masses, and is replete with pathetic and humorous incidents while the climaxes and scenic effects are thrilling and novel. Indeed it easily takes rank with the best of Frank Harvey's works which includes the "Wages of Sin," "Brother for Brother" and "Shall We Forgive Her." The scenes of the play are laid in the diamond fields of Africa and in London. It will be produced at the Academy of Music this and tomorrow evening with a special Saturday matinee.

. . . "A Bowery Girl," one of the most sucessful of melodramas, comes to the Frothingham this evening for a two night and Saturday matinee engage-ment at popular prices. "Be natural" is the admonition given by Ben Teal to the actors and actresses in "A Bowery Girl," and those who have worked under him, acknowledge he is one of the greatest stage managers in Amerlca The New York World of December

4, speaking of this play, says: "The greeting which met Ada Lee Bascom's New York melodrama at the Grand opera house last Monday night, could not fail to gratify both her and the Bowery Girl proper. The play is in four stirring acts, all of which are well staged. Numerous dancing and singing specialties are introduced in the first, second and fourth acts. They are very entertaining and the play itself is spirited in action and healthy in sentiment."

The sale of seats opens this morning for the engagement of the famous Spooner Comedy company, which takes place at the Frothingham all next week, opening with a special Washington birthday matinee on Monday, pre senting at the matinee "The Judge's Wife," and on Monday evening "Inez," Mexican romance. Russ, manager, Scrantor lights and a special matinee commenc on Washington's Birthday, Monday, Feb. 22. In "Other People's Money" Mr. Leroyle will play a somewhat eccentric character part. He will be a Chicago poard of trade man with a barrel of money, who is forever on the lookout for any kind of chance to add to his nillions. He will not appeal to the sympathies of the audience, but to their sense of humor. There will be a dashng young fellow, brimful of magnetism and nerve, very properly to be imper-sonated by Percy K. Bowles who works for the millionaire board of trade man and makes love to his daughter. Know-ing that he cannot win the father's consent by direct attack, he tries strat egy. A comedy's plot seldom sounds funny in print, but this certainly promses to play well.

Was Not Sent to Jail. Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: Please permit me through the columns of your widely read paper to deny the statement made in this morning's Republican to the effect that I was committed to the county jail by Alderman Howe. A short time ago I met my broth-er, Joseph Olchefski, who had on my overcoat, which he took from my store on the South Side. I took the coat from him and thereupon he swore out a war-rant charging me with assault and bat-tery. As soon as I learned that a war-rant was issued I waived a hearing and entered hall for my appearance at court. At no time was I committed to jail, and that portion of the article is an unquali-fied falsehood. Leon Olchefski. Scranton, Pa., Feb. 18.
