GEORGE T. BUGDEN DRILL MASTER

He Has Had the Idea of Forming a Boys in Mind for a Long Time -- He Belonged to Such a Company When in a Boys School at Albany, N. Y. Superintendent Approves the Idea. Kind of Training the Boys Receive.

Few public schools in this state are progressive as is No. 27 of Green Ridge, of which Professor Hawker is Aside from the advanced methods of instruction in vogue at the school it can boast that which no other public school in all this wide and energetic commonwealth has, a company of uniformed boys, who are supplied with muskets and caps, and are taught, weekly by a competent drill master, the various infantry manoeuvres.

The name of this organization is com-pany A, No. 27 school, drill corps of the Junior American Guards, and the proficiency its members have acquired aroused no small amount of comment when they drilled before nearly a thous and people on the occasion of the flag presentation at the school last month. It was a year ago last September that George T. Bugden, a supply teacher in the city school, decided to carry into active operation a plan for a military company, in the public schools that he had cherished ever since graduating from the boys' military school in Albany, N. Y., in which institution, it might be of interest to state, he was under the tutilage of Charles Emory Swith, the now eminent Philadelphia editor. Mr. Bugden selected school No 27 and securing the hearty co-operation of the principal, Professor Hawker, he organized a corps of 32 boys. At 6 o'clock the ladies were given a complimentary dinner at Hanley's by Superintendent Garrett Bogart, after which the new society gave a recep-tion at the Railroad Young Men's Christian Association hall. During the course of the evening Conductor Patrick F. Duffy, on behalf of Superintendent and Mrs. Garrett Bogart, presented the auxiliary with two gavels and a Bible, and for Lackawanna division, No. 12, Order of Rallway Conductors, presented $100 in cash as a nucleus for the treasury. His neat and appropriate speech was responded to by the grand president, Mrs. Moore, who accepted the gifts in the name of the auxiliary. and who was afterwards called upor

A few years ago the Grand Army of the Republic of this city made an un successful attempt to have companies of the American Guards formed in all the Scranton schools where there were enough boys between the ages of ten and seventeen years. While the plan was looked upon with favor by a ma-jority of the board of control, the board had not the financial resources to equip the Guards after the organization had been formed. The amount necessary to do so would aggregate about $2,500, but the inestimable benefits accruing from their organization and active work would more than compensate the expenditure. SUPERINTENDENT APPROVES. Superintendent George Howell, of the ity schools, is very much in favor of the American Guards as an invaluable means of teaching, first, subordinacy (a quality so often lacking in the youth); secondly, the engendering of a precision, harmony and grace in muscular movements, and thirdly, as a means of maintaining an active, aggressive gymnastic exercise, the effects of which alone, in the generations of school boys to come, who would use the equipments, purchased by the $2,500, would greatly exceed the value of the monetary out-sion next Thursday night. The judiciary committee reported favorably a resolution dismissing all counsel at present engaged on city legal cases. It was approved.

Captain Moir cited the loss of a resolution that had been referred to some committee several weeks ago and which was designed to give the board of health more scope and power in enforcing sewer connections with unsanitary properties. Captain Moir remarked upon the approach of spring and dis-case-breeding weather and the board of health's anxiety for the passage of the resolution. No member could reveal its whereabouts, and the representative of the Ninth announced his purpose of re-introducing the measure.

Scott ($200), W. P. Connell & Sons $1,169) and the Kingsbury Rubber and Supply company ($194) and referred to committee. The proposal of Connell & Son only included all the articles contained in the specifications. The select council ordinance making the selection of inspectors of city work a civil service matter was received and referred to committee.

Mr. Keller, of the Seventeenth, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, directing the city engineer to pre-pare plans and specifications for a sewer on the south side of Linden street, from the corner of Monroe avenue to Mahon court.

Mr. Oliver introduced a resolution directing the streets and bridges com mittee to investigate and report to councils on the condition of the tracks Constable and Deputies Make Up a Sing. of the Scranton Traction company on South Main avenue, from Scranton to Washburn streets, and along the latter thoroughfare. It was adopted. Mr. Oliver and Mr. Thomas made some slight objections and a counter amendment to a resolution offered by Captain Moir that a special committee be appointed to consider an adjustment of the claim of Muldoon & Bowe for extra masonry work performed on the Linden and South Side bridges. The claim amounts to $2,300 and is presented by Patrick Muldoon, the surviving member of the firm.
