SPANISH ATTACK THE FILIBUSTERS

Battle on the Cuban Coast With Filibusters from the Bermuda.

CUBANS COME TO THEIR RESCUE

The Spaniards Driven Back and the Warlike Cargo, Which Had Been Captured, Retaken -- Ocean Tugs the Revenue Cutters in the Harbor.

Key West, Fla., March 28.-It is stated on good authority that a fillbustering expedition which sailed from this the north coast of Cuba, west of Havana, near Mariel.

According to rumors which are current here, startling circumstances attended the landing. The Spanish, it is said, had been informed that such an United States and thence ino Mexico. expedition would land from the steamer Bermuda, and a strong force was placed in ambush on the northern coast that the party would attempt to reach

SPANISH ATTACK THE EXPEDI-TION.

The spot where the expedition really landed was, in fact, only a short distance from the reported ambueh of the Spaniards, and as soon as the Cubans came ashore with their arms and ammunition they were met by a sharp fire and attack, before which they were powerless. Several of the Cubans, according to the rumor, were killed, and the munitions of war were selzed.

Later, the rumor states, a large body of Cubans came to the rescue of the newly landed men, and boldly attacked the victorious Spanish, who, in their turn, were put to flight, the warlike cargo remaining in the hands of the

The Spanish had also, it is said, sent several gunboats to this part of the coast, and when the fillbustering vessel sailed she was chased and fired upon. but, according to the report, was unin-

As stated above, the prevailing rumor here gives the Bermuda the credit of having landed the expedition. Whether this be true or not, it is regarded as certain that a combination of the steamer and two ocean tugs was necessary to get arms, ammunition and men out of the United States.

Safe conclusions can be drawn as to the tugs engaged in the enterprise from the simultaneous return to this neighborhood of the tugs Samson and Monarch. The former passed through this harbor Thursday morning, boldly steaming between the two revenue cutters at anchor. When at a safe distance she unfurled a large American nal by those ashore that her work of oading the fillbustering steamer had been accomplished.

Subsequently the revenue steamer Forward started in pursuit and followed the bold tug to sea.

GRIDIRON CLUB DINNER.

McKinley and Members of His Cabinet Were Among the Guests.

Washington, March 28.-The presidential dinner of the Gridiron club at the Arlington last night was attended by the president of the United States and a majority of his cabinet, two or three ambassadors and ambassadorsto be, justices of the Supreme court, senators, representatives, and other distinguished guests, covers being laid for 130, including the forty hosts, the Washington correspondents, who form the regular membership of the club. Secretaries Gage, Long, Alger and Wilson, and Attorney General Mc-Kenna represented the cabinet. J. Addison Porter, President McKinley's private secretary, joined his former newspaper associates as one of their guests. The retiring first assistant estmaster general, Mr. Jones, and the Hon, Perry S. Heath, his installed successor (himself a member of the club), sat in harmonious juxtaposition.

Speaker Reed beamed upon a fair assortment of tariff debaters from the house, including Representatives Dalzell, Strode, Henderson, and others. Senators Aldrich, Hanna, Spooner, Burrows, Mitchell and Carter in part represented the upper house. Justice Peckham spoke for the Supreme court. The German ambassador, Baron Thielman, and his first secretary of legation, and Minister Mendonca, of Brazil, were among the distinguished members of the diplomatic corps. John Hay, United States ambassador to England, was present. Invited jour nalists from a distance included Milton A. McRae, of Cincinnati, and Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia.

The decorations of the beautiful banqueting hall surpassed anything before attempted, and the music and decorous wit which enlivened the diener made the affair quite memorable, even among the many memorable dinners given by the club,

HIS STORY TRUE.

Telfair's Tale of Wealth Believed by Chief Hart of Olean.

Olean, March 28.-Chief of Police Hart says he is convinced of the genuineness of the statement of the man who went to sleep on March 11 as Charles Brown and awoke forty-eight hours later as David J. Telfair, a common to extra steers, $3.75a5.5c; stockers and freders, $3.75a5.5c; stockers and $3.75a5.5c belt" and, upon being told that he had none, he exclaimed. "Then I have been robbed of my diamonds." He has lived with Chief Hart ever since, and that officer has repeatedly questioned and cross-questioned the man, who seems unable to recall anything that has happened since last August, when he went to Jackson park, Chicago, to hear a band concert. He thinks he may have been sandbagged and robbed. He dimly remembers being thrown into a carriage, and from that time all was blank until he awoke in the Olean hospital. Telfair claims that he had in his belt 103 diamonds, the product of his

STARTLING CRIMINAL REVELATIONS

Persons on Trial Are Now Telling All They Know -- Most of the Victims Killed to Obtain Insurance Money, Murder by Poison a Family Custom.

London, March 28,-The poisoning trial which is still continuing at Hodmezoe, Hungary, has developed into the greatest criminal revelation of corner, and, seeing that she could not escape, began to reveal fresh facts and to inculpate the accused midwife Jager, the latter not only made a full dull; continent, $4.70; South America, $4.55 confession, but also referred to cases which had not even been suspected. She gave names and facts in such detail that the court was bound to order fresh arrests, and the exhumation of welve more bodies. The number has increased still further, as all the accused are now vying with each other in making startling revelations. A pork butcher named Horvath, nicknamed the Evangelist because of his habit of quoting Scripture, now stands accused of having polsoned his mother, father, parentsin-law, and finally his wife. The woman Csordas owns to having poisoned her sister and niece in addition to the crimes of which she was originally accused. She also informed the court that the midwife Jager procured the polson from a chemist's assistant, whose arrest has been ordered. It was uspected that the cases under trial

Sometimes it was a poor person who had nobody to care for him and was thankful to be received into a house on any terms. All these were insured for moderate sums. One man who lived in extreme poverty got $400 when his mother died, having insured her in five societies. Midwife Jager, it is said, always supplied arsenic, which was ready when the insured person became ill and it could be given with the medians. ine without arousing suspicion. When ers, $4.50a5. death took place the doctor examined the body and declared that everything was in order, and the midwife was money was received. In some cases persons previously insured were asked dinner and received poisoned food.
