MAYOR HAS SIGNED IT.

Columbia Construction Company Has the Contract for Paving Mulberry Street. Pressure Was Brought to Bear.

Mayor Bailey has signed the resolution awarding the contract to the Columbia Construction company, of Syracuse, the contract for paving Mulberry street. He attached his signature to the measure yesterday and it is now in the possession of City Clerk Laywell.

The mayor's action in signing the resolution is explained by the statement that he wished to have City Solicitor Torrey's assurance that the award was regular and legal. Meanwhile no little pressure has been brought to bear on the city's chief executive to veto the award.

However, the mayor asked his signature and he and council are rid of any further consideration of the matter. The like award is being made only in the event of an injunction from court. It is not known that they will make such a move, but an effort to obtain an injunction would create no surprise.

MISSING WITNESS CAPTURED.

Anthony Sehno Run Down by County Detective Leyschon.

At the last term of criminal court it was made necessary to continue the Pallya murder case because of the absence of the principal witness for the prosecution, Andrew Sehno, brother of the murdered man, George Sehno, who is claimed to see the fatal blow struck.

District Attorney John R. Jones in his petition for a continuance, stated that he was informed and believed that the witness, Sehno, had been led to flee by threats that his life would be taken if he testified against Pallya.

A few days ago County Detective Leyschon heard that the missing witness was working at Pottsville and going thither he verified the report. Sehno was taken into custody and yesterday brought to this city. He is now in the county jail and will remain in the keeping of the sheriff until the trial is over.

District Attorney Jones will place the case at the head of the list for the April term which begins one week from next Wednesday.

The house is a two-story frame dwelling with a basement fronting immediately upon the sidewalk. The basement was occupied by Max Hirsch and family; the rest of the first floor by a Hungarian family and the remaining portion of the building by Mrs. Gaughan.

There was no insurance upon the goods held by any of the parties and but a few dollars upon the house, as written by D. J. C. Campbell. The main portion of the goods owned by the occupants was destroyed by the fire or damaged by water.

TRYING TO PROVE HER INSANITY

Evidence Offered by the Defense in the Dickinson Case.

PLAINTIFF'S CONDUCT DESCRIBED

Witnesses Told in Detail How She Acted During the Days Preceding That on Which She Was Taken to the Danville Insane Asylum—Her Conduct on the Train—Dr. Oglesby Gives the Result of His Investigation.

Miss Anna Dickinson was in court all day yesterday watching with keen interest the progress of her suit for $50,000 damages against those who were instrumental in taking her to Danville insane asylum which is on trial before Judge Ayreson in the United States circuit court. The attorneys for the defense stated last evening that it will take about two days more to get in all of their testimony. They intend to call Thomas W. Harlow, assistant district attorney of Philadelphia, who is also attorney for the state lunacy board and a legal expert with reference to insanity. Dr. Wetherell, of Philadelphia, secretary of the state board of lunacy, will also be called to give expert testimony. He has been in court since Monday.

Mrs. Stanton, the dress maker who made gowns for Miss Anna Dickinson in West Pittston in 1893 and 1894, was the first witness called yesterday morning. She described the visits of the plaintiff to her house and the language she used. Frequently, she said, Miss Dickinson would use such an expression as "Damn the thing" and some other words which she did not repeat to the witnesses out of decency. On the day that Allen Eggleston drove Miss Dickinson to her house the plaintiff laid on the floor and kicked her feet up against the wall pounding her toes. While on the floor she had her stomach but did not complain of any pain there. She said she had a pain in her head.

THEY HEARD A SCREAM.

Mrs. Stanton remembered one evening when she and her daughter, Mrs. Marcy, were out walking, that they had heard screams which they supposed came from the house of the plaintiff. She said that the latter part of the answer be stricken out.

Witness on one occasion saw Miss Dickinson take a large drink of whiskey without any water. The cross-examination was very short. Mrs. Stanton contracted herself about some details but her story in the main was unshaken.

Mrs. Marcy, daughter of the preceding witness, testified to the same facts corroborative of her mother's story and Conductor Baldwin who was in charge of the train on which Miss Dickinson was taken to the Danville asylum was the next witness.

He said her sitting in the last car of the train after they left West Pittston but noticed nothing particular about her appearance with the exception that her eyes were red and somewhat blurred. Miss Dickinson asked him for paper and pencil. Dr. Heitman motioned his head for him not to do so and he had passed on down the aisle.

When the train reached Danville asylum it stopped to let Miss Dickinson alight. He stated in the door of the smoking car waiting for her to get off, when she held up her hand in a threatening attitude and said to him: "Remember young man, there is a day of reckoning coming for you. I will send you two telegrams for me, one to ex-governor Robert E. Pattison and one to Jay Gould."

TELEGRAM TO GOVERNOR.

He said that to the best of his knowledge the one addressed to Mr. Pattison read: "We must have universal suffrage," while the one to Jay Gould spoke of money. He got out of the train but did not notice any violence used in helping Miss Dickinson.

Brakeman Ridgeway Randall, of this city, gave important testimony about the journey to Danville and Mrs. Marcy's story. He said that on the train he saw a man in a suit and a woman in a dress, who were in a heated conversation. The woman was called. She swore that Miss Anna was sick and about a year or two previous to Mrs. Dickinson's death and had journeyed to Honesdale to be doctored. Miss Susan accompanied her on that occasion. The second Monday before Miss Dickinson was taken to Danville, when she was getting up about 4:30 a. m., Miss Anna called to her and wanted to know where her vest was, saying that she had placed it on the baggage train. The following Thursday Miss Anna had sent her to Dr. Hall's six times in one day for her bill. The same afternoon Miss Anna chased Dr. Hall out of the house and called him a devil.

That evening Miss Anna went up in the garret and called to her, saying, "Martha, bring a lamp." She got the lamp and was taking it upstairs when Miss Susan took it away from her. She called again and asked for the lamp, but Mrs. Brown told her she would not bring it, whereupon Miss Anna chased her out of the house and down the street, calling after her, "Come back here, you little devil." She afterwards returned to the house.

BARRICADED HER DOOR.

That night when she went to bed she barricaded her door with a couple of large trunks, for fear of being harmed. The Monday previous to her incarceration, Miss Anna called to her and Miss Susan and told them to take away some trays upon which meals had been served. Miss Susan told witness to get them and while she went for them Miss Anna clutched Miss Susan by the throat and choked her. She ran down stairs and met Grant Eggleston, who helped Miss Susan free.

One time Miss Anna asked the witness for some bread and when it was given her, she tore the inside out of the loaf and placed the crust in the stove. The witness removed Miss Anna for her wastefulness, saying that they might see the need of it before they died. Miss Dickinson answered her with the expression: "Damn it, what's the odds?"

Mrs. Griffiths, of West Pittston, was the first witness called after the noon recess. She was in the Dickinson house that day that Anna was taken to the insane asylum and assisted in attaching her door with a couple of large trunks. She related the conversations that took place between Dr. Holman and Dr. Underwood and Miss Dickinson. No unreasonable force was used and the skin on Miss Dickinson's wrists was not broken nor was any blood drawn, when an attempt was made to take the plaintiff down stairs she resisted with all her strength and talked very loud. Frequently, the witness said, Miss Dickinson told her that she was the victim of a conspiracy in which her friends and attorneys were engaged. She was decidedly of the opinion that

LAST NIGHT'S CONCERT.

Musical Treat Enjoyed in the Penn Avenue Baptist Church.

Professor Haydn Evans' Glee club gave a delightful entertainment last evening at the Penn Avenue Baptist church where Professor Evans is in charge of the regular choir. The concert last night was under the auspices of classes 8 and 35 of the Sunday school taught by Mrs. Frutcher and Miss Fashold respectively. There was a large and appreciative attendance. Professor Evans opened the programme with an organ solo, brilliantly executed and enjoyed by the audience. This was followed by a chorus song "The Tanner" by the Glee club.

The club consists of twenty-six well-known local singers, mixed voices. Last night the singing was warmly applauded. Following the Glee club a male chorus sang "Daddy Work's 'On the Sea.'" Richard Thomas (Dlev Herliert) the Elm Park bass soloist, sang "The Bedouin Love Song," followed by a solo by Tom Beynon, the Second Presbyterian church tenor soloist. Mr. Beynon sang "Light of the World." Mrs. B. T. Jayne, of the Washburn Street Presbyterian church quartette, sang the "Spring Song" by Gounod. The male chorus beautifully rendered the only "Annie Laurie."

In place of a solo by Tom Beynon and Mosses H. Morgan, Mrs. Frank Brundage and Richard Thomas sang, "The Male chorus rendered 'Martyrs of the Arena' and the closing number was 'Good Night' by the Glee club.

The entertainment was very creditable to Professor Evans and his singers. Refreshments were served at the close.

ACCIDENT AT AVOCA.

Michael Purick Instantly Killed and His Brother, William, Probably Fatally Injured, in Avoca Colliery.

A sad accident occurred yesterday morning at the Avoca colliery at Avoca by the result of which one man lost his life and another is now hovering on the brink of eternity. Two brothers, Michael and William Purick, were in the act of tamping a hole in which was placed a heavy charge of powder when it suddenly exploded.

Michael's death must have been instantaneous. The upper part of his body was torn in shreds and the features could not be recognized. William's injuries are of such a character that death would be a great relief to his terrible sufferings.

Michael was a single man, William is married and has a wife and two small children. The funeral of Michael will take place tomorrow. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery, Avoca.

AN ARTISTIC DISPLAY.

The Leader's Millinery Opening Is a Well-Patronized Event.

Yesterday was the first day of "The Leader's" spring opening and nothing prettier has been witnessed here in some time. At 8 o'clock in the morning the entire establishment was in the hands of the up-to-date saleswomen and the interior was a beautiful sight to behold. Tropical plants of every description heightened the effect throughout the whole store and seemed to pave the way to a millinery show that has had no equal in this city.

After a short time the entrance of a merchant may be recognized by the manner of his display and in this particular respect the establishment of Messrs. Lebeck & Corin is all its name implies. "The Leader."

Because Select Council Negatived the Lower Branch's Amendments, the Latter's Democrat's Adjourned Sine Die and Legislated the Whole Body Out of Office—Republicans Issue a Call for a Special Meeting Monday Morning.

Rather than swallow select council's amendments to the appropriation ordinance, the Democrats of the lower branch last night adjourned sine die, that is, the members legislated themselves out of office. The new councils meet for reorganization at 10 o'clock Monday morning and should the present council fail to meet a. m. occur in the appropriation amendments that morning at 9 o'clock the measure will be as invalid as though it had never been introduced.
