EXPERIENCE OF THE SENTA'S CREW

They Were Taken from a Rudderless Ship at Sea.

THE TERRORS OF A CYCLONE

Hurricane Sweeps the Deck, Wrecking Masts and Rigging, and Carries Away the Life Boats--Heroic Efforts of the Officers and Crew of the Snowflake in the Work of Rescue.

Philadelphia, April 16.—Captain Haavik, First Mate Hollison and nineteen members of the Norwegian ship Senta, who were supposed to have been lost at sea, were brought into this port this morning on the British ship Snowflake from Fenwick by Philadelphia for a cargo of petroleum. No one on board the Senta was lost but all experienced a distressing time during the twenty-four hours prior to their rescue.

The abandoned ship was recently reported at London as having been sighted by the steamer Idaho in latitude 40, longitude 29, abandoned until this morning. It was believed that all who had been on board the unfortunate vessel were lost.

The Senta left St. John March 16 for Newport, England. From the time of her departure from St. John she had strong westerly gales and on the night of April 1, she was struck by a terrific cyclone. At 2 o'clock on the following morning her deck load of deals was swept overboard, her main and mizzen masts together with her rigging were wrecked and swept away and two of her life boats also went overboard. Later on the tiller broke and the rudder was lost, thus leaving the vessel helpless. The pumps were also smashed, and the water tanks and all movables were swept from the deck. The crew had many narrow escapes from injury from falling masts and other flying wreckage and one poor fellow, a Belgian sailor, had a leg broken. Three others sustained severe bruises but were not seriously hurt.

SIGHTED BY THE SNOWFLAKE

Signals of distress were displayed, and after the Senta had floated about helplessly for several hours, she was sighted by the steamer Snowflake, Mate Cook, of the latter vessel, with four men, put off in a small boat to lend succor to the unfortunate crew, but owing to the rough sea and the danger of their boat being smashed by the wrecked steamer, they were obliged to lay off some little distance from the vessel. After several unsuccessful attempts they finally got a line on the Senta, which was made fast by them on board. The work of rescue then began. In an orderly manner, with an entire absence of confusion, the twenty-one men, lowered themselves on the rope to the water and passed along to the small boat, and were then taken to the Snowflake. The injured Belgian was tenderly aided by companions and later received surgical treatment on the wrecking vessel. The Senta was abandoned between 4 and 5 o'clock on April 2 in latitude 45 20, longitude 29 20. The Senta was built in Holland in 1868. Her registered tonnage was 2,008.

Harrisburg, April 16.—Charles Eichelberger left his home here nineteen years ago. A body supposed to be his was sent home from Arizona and later buried by the family. He arrived home this week. His letters were found on the body of his chum and this led to the mistake.

PITTSBURGH MINERS.

Legislative Committee Decides That Something Must Be Done to Alleviate Their Condition.

Pittsburgh, April 16.—The Dispatch tomorrow will say: The legislative committee that is investigating the condition of the miners of the Pittsburgh district completed its second day of personal inspection among the miners today. When the work was finished, the members of the committee made the statement that no such suffering was ever known to exist before, and they are well convinced that something must be done and at once to alleviate the condition of the unfortunate thousands who are in the district.

The territory that was inspected was in and about Hanning, on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie road, and about forty miles above Pittsburgh. The miners are unable to make more than $1 a day at the outside, and very much more frequently their pay for the day is from 25 to 50 cents. The greater part of these employes are foreigners, there being but ten American born families in the entire number.

VALUABLE DOGS BURNED UP.

The dogs destroyed are said to have been the best in America, being bred by the late Dr. J. H. Hoyt, of Pittsburgh, St. Louis and at every big bench show where they were exhibited. The loss on the dogs and kennels is over $3,000. No insurance.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

[Under this heading short letters of interest will be published when accompanied, for publication, by the writer's name. The Tribune, however, will not be responsible for opinions here expressed.]

His Name Not Authorized.

Sir—Copies of the following letter were received this morning by some friends. While I have every sympathy in general with evangelistic methods and with Gospel wagon work, I have nothing to do with this matter in any respect, and expressly refused to have my name identified with it, not because of lack of sympathy with good things in general, but because I was personally led up to enough good things claiming the name of Christ, and I deny the right of any man or set of men to use my name without my consent.

Dear Sir—The following gentlemen viz: A. W. Dickson, G. W. Fritz, J. S. Miller, Dr. G. E. Dean and J. W. Guernsey, have expressed their approval and general sympathy with the proposition to purchase and equip a Gospel wagon, to be used in and about Scranton, and to be financed by the sum of $100,000, but as much more as the Lord sends will be acceptable and can be used to good advantage.

It may be known that the financial support can be relied upon, will you kindly fill out the appended paper, showing the amount of your offering to this work, and return the same by mail promptly as practicable to Dr. G. E. Dean, treasurer, 65 Spruce street, city.

Yours in the Master's service, Dr. G. E. Dean, G. L. Field, Committee.

Dear Sir—Toward the "Gospel Wagon" work as proposed by the committee for the summer of 1897, I hereby subscribe the sum of $100.

Yours truly,

DR. DOYLE'S LECTURE.

By the way, I had another great treat last night, when some friends of mine took me to a lecture at the Royal Society of Arts hall, where the Irish Literary society holds its meetings. These halls are very beautifully decorated, the buildings having been done by a famous Irish artist named Barry. Two or three generations ago, I know you will turn green with envy when I tell you that the lecturer was no less a personage than Dr. Conn Doyle himself, and his subject a most engaging one, affording, as it did, some interesting side-light on the history of this country and Ireland. The lecture was upon the origin and achievements of the Irish soldier, who, driven from native land and home by the oppression of William of Orange and the stringent and unjust laws of the Penal code, enlisted under the flag of Louis Fourteenth, becoming the pith and marrow of the foreign army, an example to his French brethren, and a terror to the king's enemies, the English especially. I had never read of this particular episode in history and was profoundly interested in Dr. Doyle's recital of these brave deeds of his countrymen of two and three centuries ago. While every statement made was perfectly authentic, being in every case backed by historical references, the whole discourse was as brilliant and delightful as any of Dr. Doyle's own historical novels. When it was brought to a close, discussion followed, in which joined some notabilities as Justin McCarthy, senior, the Justin you know, Tim Healy, Tom Curran and others. There were, I am glad to say, many people there, the rooms being, indeed, overflowing with other duties, healthful occupation. I write you particularly, enclosing stamp, $1.00, for the purchase of the book, "The Irish Soldier," by Dr. Doyle, published by the Irish Literary Society, 10, St. John street, New York.

deed him in the concert, which suited him perfectly—as indeed it should, having been written for him—and the work itself is in Sir Alexander's best vein. Of course the audience clamored and clamored for more, although endeavoring to restrain themselves by the harmonium directors, and at last they got it, for not only did he play the first movement over again, but also delighted us with the lovely Schumann Nachspiel, after further entrants on the part of his hungering and thirsting hearers.
