◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆ EDITOR LANGOWSKI GUILTY OF LIBEL

Jury Makes Its Return After Being Out Over Forty Hours.

Owing to the Illness of His Wife the Term of Argument Court Begins, stay here.

Editor Daniel Langowski, of the Polsh weekly, was yesterday returned guilty of libel in two of the four cases rought by Rev. Buno Iwanowski, of Priceburg and his housekeeper, Fran es Schurka. The jury was out from o'clock Saturday evening until 10.30 'clock yesterday morning.

The first two cases were based on an rticle which was printed August 1, Langowski established to the jury's satisfaction that he was only a ompositor on the paper at that time, and that A. Lipinski was the actual editor. The second charge was founded on an illustrated article which appeared Feb. 6, 1897. It was a doublecolumn, double-leaded mass of biblical quotations, bearing upon unfaithful shepherds and the like and in the center was printed portraits of Father Iwanowski and Miss Schuka, Editor Langowski pleaded that the facts justified the article and disclaimed all malice. The jury could not see it this way and found him guilty of like in publishing this last article.

Langowski was brought into court at noon by his attorney, N. Vokalek, and a request was made that sentence be postponed until next term owing to the illness of Langowski's wife. Judge Archbald agreed to this when Langowski gave $500 ball for his appearance next term. Martin Rebega became his bondsman.

MY FRIEND FROM INDIA.

A Great Laugh-Producer Seen at the Academy of Music. A good cure for the blues is "My Friend from India," which received its initial Scranton production at the Academy of Music last night. It is one of the greatest mirth provokers in the way of a farce that has been seen in this city. H. A. Du Souchet, a telegraph operator, is the author of the farce. He also wrote "The Man from Mexico," which is one of the reigning New York successes

To enjoy "My Friend from India" to the fullest it is not necessary to be in critical or an analytical frame of mind-in fact the farce won't stand that kind of treatment very well. You just go to the theater, sink into your comfortable seat, forget your cares and laugh until you can't summon the energy to laugh any more and then you go home and possibly wonder what it's all about.

That's the reason "My Friend from India" is so successful and so interest-

It would be difficult in a brief space to give an idea of the innumerable mirth-provoking complications caused by the appearance of A. Keen Shaver, a barber, in the home of a Kansas City millionaire who is trying to break into New York society. Mr. Shaver comes in the guise of an East Indian theosophist and is received with joy by the millionaire because he sees an opportunity to make a social lion of the alleged theosopist and thus pave the way for his wn entrance into the charmed circle of the 400. Several love stories are dovetailed in between the complicated and ludicrous situations to keep up the heart interest in the farce and each one is very cleverly carried along to a satisfactory termination.

The company that produced the farce last night was highly satisfactory in almost every particular, Frederic Bond, Walter E. Perkins, Edward S. Abelles, Marion Giroux, Miss Louise Galloway and Miss Mary Vokes did excellent work and carried the farce along with a swing and dash from beginning to end. With that cast there are no dull moments while the curtain is up on "My Friend from India."

Continuous Trip to Pittston Is Made Impossible.

SUPREME COURT DECISION DID IT

Trolley People Cannot Figure Out a Feasible Plan of Getting Cars Bethe Delaware & Hudson Tracks at Moosic Except at Grade and as This Is Forbidden by the Chief Tribunal of the State, the Only Alternative Is to Transfer Passengers -- Ready for an Emergency.

Since the supreme court reversed the superior court and Judge Gunster, last Monday, and adjudged that the Scranton and Pittston Traction company should be enjoined from the crossing the Delaware and Hudson road at grade near the Moosic station, the officers of the trolley company have been assiduously figuring out some method of surmounting the difficulty that this decision entails.

Their labor however has been of no for yesterday they announced that there is no possible way of getting their cars over the crossing in question except at grade and the only alternative is to compel the passengers to change cars at that point. Mr. Amerman to a Tribune reporter yesterday said that his company had considered the difficulty in every form and shape and had striven earnestly and energetically to arrive at some scheme for making a continuous trip to Pittston possible, but despite all their labors no feasible plan could be hit upon. "The people will have to walk over the crossing; that is all there is to it, said Mr. Amerman. The Traction company which operates the road is fearful lest the Delavare and Hudson company may tear up the street car tracks on the crossing during the night and to prevent its service from being suddenly crippled keeps three or four cars on the other side of the crossing all the time. It was rumored Sunday night that the railroad company was about to begin the tearing up operations but as yet there have been no indications of it. The street cars ran over the crossing yesterday as usual. It is probable the supreme court will e asked to listen to a re-argument of the case.
