KNOCK-OUT THIEF CAPTURED AT LAST

Charles Still Who Drugged and Plundered to Be Extradited.

HE IS RECOGNIZED BY A TOURIST

The Fugitive Stupefied and Relieved a Man of $350 -- Convicted, Fled, and Was Captured by Chance. Recognized at a Scotch Fair.

York, April 27 .- One of the most interesting cases of the chance detection of a criminal wandering in foreign lands, and presumably safe from prosecution, was brought out this evening by the receipt of an Associated Press cablegram from London saying that Charles Still, wanted in York, Pa., for a crime, was today examined under an extradition warrant in the famous old Bow street police court. A telegram from Washington, D. C., adds that "the secretary of state has asked the British government for Still's extradition on a charge of receiving stolen money."

As to the character of the crime, the above messages are mistaken; but as to the arrest and extradition they are accurate, and Chief of Police White, of this city, who has the extradition papers, says he will at once leave for London to bring back Still, who is wanted as a notorolus "knock-out"

STILL'S MOST DARING DEED.

The crime which brought Still to grief in this far-off land was that of administering stupefying drugs to a young man named Herbert Stough for the purpose of robing him of $355. The evidence brought out at the trial, which was held during the second week of the August quarter sessions of 1895, was to the effect that Still met Stough in the Colonial hotel bar room on the night of October 4, 1894, and after taking him to several places in a cab drugged him, and while he was sleeping on a lounge in Doll's hotel on North street, relieved him of the money.

The accused man was convicted, but on the Friday night previous to the opening of the October sessions, at which court Still was commanded to appear for sentence, he skipped out, and until recently it was not known RECOGNIZED AT A SCOTCH FAIR. Still, who felt perfectly secure from apprehension with an ocean between him and prison, was traveling through England and Scotland with all the traditional assurance of an itinerant book agent-for he was one. He even dared to appear in such public places as fairs in the country towns, and it was at one of these assemblages, near Glasgow, that a man from York, wandering around seeing the sights, recognized Still. Communication was at once opened with authorities here, and the result is that after the employment of much red tape the "knock-out" man is to be brought back to York and imprisoned. His crime entitles him, if he is tried upon no other accusation-and there is at least one other against him -to a maximum imprisonment in the jail or penitentiary of eight years.

and robbery has been reported to the Mercer county authorities, which has groused public indignation and set the officers of the law upon the trail of the perpetrators.

On the road between Pardoe and Balm, in Mercer county, is a small tayern known as the Hewitt house of which Lewis Hewitt, well known in the county, is the proprietor. It is a lonely place with but few dwellings widely scattered, in the vicinity.

Early this morning masked men, said to be three in number, broke into the tavern. They carried burglar's tools and appeared to be acquainted with Making their way to the proprietor's room they broke open the door, and, dragging him from his bed, demanded his money. He refused their demand, whereupon they securely bound him and heating irons over a lamp, tortured him until in his pain he told them where it was concealed. One of them remained on guard while the remaining two ransacked the place and secured over $300. They then left the hotel and have not since been The authorities have thus far been unable to locate Mr. Hewitt's assail-

It is said that a number of suspicious characters were seen in the vicinity of Pardoe yesterday, and the supposition is that the men guilty of the outrage were among the number.

The place at which the tavern is located is a desolate spot, particularly at night, and knowing this, the flends were able to accomplish their purpose without fear of interruption.

Jury Decides Richard McCullough's Death Was Accidental.

Pittsburg, April 27.-Mrs. Catharine quitted on a charge of having killed her husband, Richard McCullough. The killing was accidental, as the testimony showed, McCullough, as a night watchman, carried a revolver and his wife carried one when she took his meals

One evening McCullough took both weapons to the mine to clean them. He returned from duty the next morning and his wife asked for her revolver. It would not work right and she began ! snap it when the weapon discharged, the bullet killing McCullough.

Mrs. McCullough testified in her own behalf that she had quarreled with her husband and that arrangements had been made for her to return to Scot-

PARSON PRICE'S WEIRD STORY.

Sticks to His Story That He Was

Drugged and Enslaved. Quakertown, April 27.—Everybody in this section who knows Rev. Jonas H. Price, of Richlandtown, the tailor and Dunkard preacher, who has just returned from the South with a remarkable story of his being kidnaped and enslaved in South Carolina phosphate mines, is discussing his strange adventures. To all with whom he will consent to talk Mr. Price reiterates his story that he was drugged on the train at Ridley Park, treated as a lunatic in custody and taken to work in the Southern mines.

Skeptical neighbors call attention to the fact that Mr. Price, as a successful tailor, had several bank accounts, was well known to a score of prominent Philadelphia clothiers, and so had no occasion either to take steerage passage from Charleston to New York, or to walk from Bethlehem home. They say he could, at either place, have drawn a check which a single telegram to Philadelphia or Quakertown would readily have verified. Mr. Price, however, does not care at present to add to the details of his story as already given, and those who know him best are most inclined to believe him.

TRACTION COMPANY WINS.

Judge Wickham Declares a Chester Ordinance Void.

Pittsburg, April 27.-In the Superior ourt Judge Wickham filed an opinion in the appeal from the Chester county courts by the Chester Traction company.

The appeal involved the validity of an ordinance requiring the Traction company to sprinkle its tracks for a distance of three feet six inches from the middle of the road so that no dust would be raised by the cars.

For each violation the company was compelled to pay $25 per day, and for continued violations the city would be permitted to stop the cars. Judge Wickham says that the portion of the ordinance which authorizes the stoppage of cars is clearly unreasonable and so oppressive as to be void. The court concludes the ordinance is

GLASS WORKERS' TROUBLES.

An Increase in Wages Likely to Be Demanded.

Pittsburg, April 27.-In order to ally dissatisfaction among a part of its membership the Window Glass Workers' association has sent out a circular calling for a vote on the question of demanding an increase for the blowers and gatherers.

It is likely the vote will result in faor of the proposition. In that event the next scale will be made to includ an advance of 15 per cent, for double strength blowers and gatherers and about 8 per cent, for those working on single strength glass.

Blowers and gatherers claim they have been discriminated against in favor of the cutters and flatteners in wage settlements.
